When the article seized exceeds five sers in weight, the Commissioner of the Division may, if satisfied on the report of any customs-officer, or on such enquiry as he deems fit to make, that such offence has been committed, declare such article to be confiscated, or impose such lesser penalty in lieu of confiscation as to him may seem fit.

If the quantity seized does not exceed five sers, the Collector shall possess the same powers in regard to its disposal which by this section are conferred on Commissioners of Division in regard to quantities exceeding five sers, and may also confiscate the vessel, package or covering in which such article is contained.

Whenever a Commissioner of Division declares under this section any article to be confiscated, he may also declare to be confiscated any vessel, package or covering in which such article is contained, and any animal or conveyance used in carrying it.

Power to levy additional duty as a penalty.

15. The Governor General in Council may from time to time by rule direct that any customs-officer not inferior in rank to a Sub-Assistant Patrol, if satisfied in such manner as such rule may prescribe that any offence mentioned or referred to in section eleven has been committed in respect of any dutiable article shall, instead of preferring a complaint before a magistrate or instituting proceedings with a view to confiscation, impose as a penalty an additional duty on such article not exceeding the duty paid or leviable thereon under chapter II of this Act.

The imposition of every such penalty shall be at once reported, if the article in respect of which the offence has been committed exceeds five sers, to the Commissioner of Division, and if such article does not exceed five sers, to the Collector, and shall require the sanction of the Commissioner or Collector to whom it is so reported.

Punishment for connivance at offences mentioned in section 11.

16. All zamíndárs and other proprietors of land or their agents, who wilfully connive at any offence mentioned or referred to in section eleven, shall for every such offence be punishable by any magistrate exercising powers not less than those of a magistrate of the second class, with fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, or with imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or with both.

Power to arrest.

18. Any customs-officer may arrest any person whom he has reasonable ground to suspect of having committed any such offence as last aforesaid.

such officer shall first record in writing (so far as may be practicable), (a) the name, residence, and calling of the informant (if any), (b) the locality and description of the house, boat or place where the officer believes the salt or saltpetre is being manufactured, refined or stored, (c) the name of the person for or by whom the salt or saltpetre is manufactured, refined or stored, and (d) the supposed quantity and description of the salt or saltpetre, with the grounds of believing the same to be unlawfully manufactured, refined or stored, and may then summon in writing the officer in charge of the police-station within whose jurisdiction the house, boat or place to be searched is situate to attend him;

and may then, between sunrise and sunset (but always in the presence of an officer of police not inferior in rank to a head constable), enter and search any house, boat or place in which there is reason to believe that salt or saltpetre is being so manufactured, refined, or stored, and, in case of resistance, may break open any door, and force and remove any other obstacle to such entry, and may seize and carry away all salt and saltpetre so unlawfully manufactured, refined or stored, and all materials used in the manufacture or refinement of such salt or saltpetre, and may also arrest the occupier of the said house, boat or place, together with all persons concerned in the manufacture or refinement or storing of such salt or saltpetre, or in the concealing thereof.

If the place so entered is an apartment in the actual occupancy of a woman, who, according to the customs of the country, does not appear in public, the officer entering the same shall be guided by the rules prescribed in the Code of Criminal Procedure, section 384.

Before conducting a search under this section, the officer conducting it shall call upon two or more respectable inhabitants (if any) of the locality in which the house, boat or place to be searched is situate, to attend and witness the search, and the search shall be made in the presence of such inhabitants (if any), and also (if practicable) of the occupant of the house, boat or place searched.

Whenever it is necessary to cause a woman to be searched, the search shall be conducted with strict regard to the habits and customs of the country.

Failure of police-officer to attend.

20. Any officer in charge of a police-station, who, on application in writing made by a customs-officer to attend for any of the purposes specified in section nineteen, fails so to attend or to depute a subordinate officer not inferior in rank to a head constable so to attend, shall for every such offence be punished with fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.

Report of arrest, seizure or search.

21. Whenever a customs-officer under the rank of Collector arrests any person under this Act,

Every officer making any arrest under this section, or his official superior, shall, if generally empowered to do so by the Collector, either send with all convenient despatch the person arrested to the Magistrate having jurisdiction to deal with the case, or order the discharge of such person.

And every officer of police attending any search made under section nineteen shall report the same to his official superior.

Procedure in respect of articles seized.

22. Whenever the Collector is informed of the seizure of any article exceeding five sers in quantity, as liable to confiscation under this Act, he shall, with all convenient despatch, report the circumstances of the case to the Commissioner of the Division, who may thereupon proceed under section fourteen.

If the quantity seized does not exceed five sers, he may dispose of the case himself under the said section.

Procedure on detainer of article subject to additional duty.

23. Any article in respect of which a penalty is imposed under section fifteen may be detained pending the receipt of the order of the Commissioner of the Division or Collector on the report required by the same section:

Provided that, if the owner of any article so detained deposits the amount of such penalty with, and pays all ordinary duty and charges payable on such article to, the customs-officer detaining the same, such article shall be at once released.

When an article is so detained it shall, on the receipt of the said order, be dealt with in accordance with the rules made in this behalf under section twenty-seven.

When an article has been released under the second clause of this section, and the Commissioner or Collector reduces, or declines to sanction, the penalty imposed in respect of such article, the amount refundable to the owner shall be paid to him on his applying therefor to the Collector within six months, to be computed (where the order has been made by the Commissioner) from the day on which the Collector has received such order, and (where the order has been made by the Collector) from the date of such order.

When any penalty the amount of which has been deposited under the second clause of this section, is sanctioned, or when any sum refundable under this section has not been claimed within the said period of six months, Vexatious search, seizure, &c., by customs-officer.

26. Any customs-officer who,

Any person wilfully or maliciously giving false information and so causing a search to be made under this Act shall be punishable by a Magistrate exercising the same powers with fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, or with imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or with both.

Power to regulate seizures and disposal of things seized

27. The Governor General in Council may make rules to regulate the seizure, disposal, and destruction of things liable to be seized under this Act.

Such rules may among other matters provide—

(a) that the owner or person having the charge of any animal seized and detained shall provide from day to day for its keep while detained, and that, if he omits to do so, such animal may be sold by public auction, and the expenses (if any) incurred on account of it defrayed from the proceeds of the sale:

(b) that when anything is seized and an order for its release is subsequently passed and the owner does not within a period to be fixed by such rules appear to claim such thing and tender the duties, penalties and charges (if any) due in respect thereof, it may be sold by public auction, and such duties, penalties and charges defrayed from the proceeds of the sale:

CHAPTER III.

OF PROCEDURE ON COMMITMENTS.

Cases tried by High Courts to be tried under this Act.

6. The provisions of this Act shall apply to all criminal cases triable by the High Court.

Consideration and amendment of charge.

7. When any person is committed for trial before a High Court, the Clerk of the Crown, or, if there be not a Clerk of the Crown, a Judge of the High Court, shall, on receipt of the charge, peruse and consider it, and may, if it appear necessary or expedient so to do, alter or redraw the same, having regard to the rules as to the form of charges contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure.

How Court may deal with charge.

8. If a prisoner is committed to the Court without any charge at all, the Clerk of the Crown, or, if there be not a Clerk of the Crown, a Judge of the High Court, may draw up a charge, having regard to the rules referred to in section seven. If a prisoner is committed upon a charge which the Court, upon reference to the proceedings before the committing Magistrate, considers improper, the Court may draw up a charge for any offence or offences which it considers to be proved by the evidence taken before the committing Magistrate.

Prisoner may apply for amendment.

9. Any accused person may apply to the Court for an amendment of the charge made against him; and in considering whether any error in a charge did in fact mislead the accused person, the Court shall take into account the fact that he did or did not make such an application.

Court may amend charge.

10. The Court may, upon the application of the accused person, or of the prosecutor, or upon its own motion, amend or alter any charge at any stage of the proceedings before the verdict of the jury is delivered. Such amendment shall be explained to the accused person.

When trial may proceed immediately after amendment.

11. If the amendment or alteration is such that proceeding immediately with the trial is not likely, in the opinion of the Court, to prejudice the accused person in his defence, it shall be at the discretion of the Court, after making such amendment or alteration, to proceed with the trial as if the amended charge had been the original charge.

When new trial may be directed or trial suspended.

12. If the amendment or alteration is such that proceeding immediately with the trial is likely, in the opinion of the Court, to prejudice the accused person in his defence, the Court may either direct a new trial, or suspend the trial for such period as may be necessary to enable the accused person to make his defence to the amended or altered charge; and, after hearing his defence, the Court may, if it thinks fit, further adjourn the trial, to admit of the appearance of any witness whose evidence the Court may consider to be material to the case, or whom the accused person may wish to be summoned in his defence.

Charge to be recorded.

Copy of charge.

13. The charge, with such alterations (if any) as may have been made therein, shall be recorded in the High Court and a copy of such charge shall be given to the person gratis, if he demands it.

Copies of depositions.

The person charged shall also be entitled to a copy of his own examination before the committing Magistrate, and to copies of the examinations of witnesses upon whose depositions he has been committed, and of all documents read and made exhibits as part of such depositions by the committing Magistrate, if the person charged demands them a reasonable time before the case comes on for trial and pays for the same a reasonable sum not exceeding one anna for each folio of ninety words.

The Court may for any special reason remit any such payment.

Entry on unsustainable charge.

14. When any charge, or portion of a charge, recorded as aforesaid appears to a Judge of the High Court, at any time before the commencement of the trial of the person charged, to be clearly unsustainable, such Judge may make on the charge an entry to that effect.

Effect of entry.

Such entry shall have the effect of staying proceedings upon the charge or portion of the charge (as the case may be), but shall not operate as an acquittal of the person charged.

Prosecutor and accused person may recall witnesses.

15. In all cases of amendment or alteration of a charge during the trial, the prosecutor and accused person shall be allowed to recall and examine any witness who may have been examined.

Previous sanction to be obtained if offence in amended charge require it.

16. If the offence stated in the amended or altered charge be one for the prosecution of which previous sanction is necessary, the case shall not be proceeded with until such sanction is obtained; unless sanction has been already obtained for a prosecution on the same facts as those on which the amended or altered charge was founded.

Joinder of Charges.

Separate charges for distinct offences.

17. There must be a separate charge for every distinct offence of which any person is accused, and every such charge must be tried separately, except in the cases hereinafter excepted.

Illustration.

A is accused of a theft on one occasion, and of causing grievous hurt on another occasion. A must be separately charged and separately tried for the theft and the causing grievous hurt.

More offences than one of same kind may be charged within a year of each other.

18. When a person is accused of more offences than one of the same kind, committed within one year of each other, he may be charged and tried at the same time for any number of them not exceeding three.

EXPLANATION.—Offences are said to be of the same kind under this section if they fall within the provisions of section twenty.

Trial of more than one offence.

19. I. If in one series of acts, so connected together as to form the same transaction, more offences than one are committed by the same person, he may be charged with and tried for every such offence at the same time.

One offence falling within two definitions.

II. If the acts alleged constitute an offence falling within two or more separate definitions of any law in force for the time being, by which offences are defined or punished, the person accused of them may be charged with each of the offences so committed; but he must not receive a more severe punishment than could be awarded for any of such offences.

Acts severally constituting more than one offence, but collectively coming within one definition.

III. If several acts, of which one or more than one would by itself constitute an offence, form, when combined, a different offence, the person accused of them may be charged with every offence, or any of the different offences, which he may have committed; but he must not receive for such offences, collectively, a punishment more severe than that which might have been awarded for any one of such offences.

(k.) A wrongfully kills a buffalo worth sixty rupees belonging to B, and then takes away the carcase in a manner amounting to theft. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 429 and 379, Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a more severe sentence than if it had convicted him under section 429 only.

(l.) Several stolen sacks of corn are made over to A and B, who know they are stolen property. A and B thereupon assist each other to conceal the sacks at the bottom of a grain-pit. A and B may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 411 and 414, Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries them may not inflict a severer sentence than if it had convicted them under one of those sections only.

(m.) A uses a forged document in evidence, in order to convict B, a public servant, of an offence under section 167. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 471 (read with 466) and 196 of the Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a severer sentence than if it had convicted him under one of those sections only.

To paragraph III.

(n.) A commits house-breaking by day with intent to commit adultery, and commits, in the house so entered, adultery with B's wife. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 454 and 497, Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a severer sentence than if it had convicted him under section 497 only.

(o.) A robs B, and, in doing so, voluntarily causes hurt to him. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 323, 392 and 394 of the Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a severer sentence than if it had convicted him under section 392 or 394 only.

(p.) A entices B, the wife of C, away, and then commits adultery with her. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 498 and 497, Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a severer sentence than if it had convicted him under section 497 only.

Where it is doubtful what offence has been committed.

20. If a single act or series of acts is of such a nature that it is doubtful which of several offences the facts which can be proved will constitute, the accused person may be charged with having committed all or any of such offences; and any number of such charges may be tried at once, or he may be charged in the alternative with having committed some one of the said offences.

Illustration.

A is accused of an act which may amount to either theft, receiving stolen property, criminal breach of trust, or cheating. He may be charged separately with theft, criminal breach of trust, and cheating, or he may be charged with having committed either theft or criminal breach of trust, or cheating.

When a person is charged with one offence, he can be convicted of another.

21. If, in the case mentioned in section twenty, one charge only is brought against an accused person, and it appears in evidence that he committed a different offence, for which he might have been charged under the provisions of that section, he may be convicted of the offence which he is shown to have committed, although he was not charged with it.

Illustration.

A is charged with theft. It appears that he committed criminal breach of trust, or receiving stolen goods. He may be convicted of criminal breach of trust, or receiving stolen goods, though he was not charged with it.

When offence proved included in offence charged.

22. When a person is charged with an offence, and part of the charge is not proved, but the part which is proved amounts to a different offence, he may be convicted of the offence which he is proved to have committed, though he was not charged with it.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is charged, under section 407, Indian Penal Code, with criminal breach of trust in respect of property entrusted to him as a carrier. It appears that he did commit criminal breach of trust under section 406 in respect of the property, but that it was not entrusted to him as a carrier. He may be convicted of criminal breach of trust under section 406.

(b.) A is charged with murder. He may be convicted of culpable homicide, or of causing death by negligence.

What persons may be charged jointly.

23. When more persons than one are accused of the same offence, or of different offences committed in the same transaction, or when one person is accused of committing any offence, and another of abetment of, or attempt to commit, such offence, they may be charged and tried together or separately, as the Court thinks proper, and the provisions hereinbefore contained shall apply to all such charges.

Illustrations.

(a.) A and B are accused of the same murder. A and B may be charged and tried together for the murder.

(b.) A and B are accused of a robbery, in the course of which A commits a murder with which B has nothing to do. A and B may be tried together on a charge, charging both of them with the robbery, and A alone with the murder.

(c.) A and B are both charged with a theft, and B is charged with two other thefts committed by him in the course of the same transaction. A and B may be both tried together on a charge, charging both with the one theft, and B alone with the two other thefts.

24. Effect of errors. › error, either in the way in which the offence is stated, or in the particulars required by the Code of Criminal Procedure to be stated, and no omission to state the offence, or to state those particulars, shall be regarded at any stage of the case as material, unless the person accused was in fact misled by such error or omission.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is charged, under section 242 of the Indian Penal Code, with "having been in possession of counterfeit coin, having known at the time when he became possessed thereof that such coin was counterfeit;" the word "fraudulently" being omitted in the charge. Unless it appears that A was in fact misled by this omission, the error shall not be regarded as material.

(b.) A is charged with cheating B, and the manner in which he cheated B is not set out in the charge, or is set out incorrectly. A defends himself, calls witnesses, and gives his own account of the transaction. The Court may infer from this that the omission to set out the manner of the cheating is not material.

(c.) A is charged with cheating B, and the manner in which he cheated B is not set out in the charge. There were many transactions between A and B, and A had no means of knowing to which of them the charge referred, and offered no defence. The Court may infer from such facts that the omission to set out the manner of the cheating was, in this case, a material error.

(d.) A is charged with the murder of Khodá Baksh on the 21st January. In fact, the murdered person's name was Haidar Baksh, and the date of the murder was the 20th January. A was never charged with any murder but one, and had heard the inquiry before the Magistrate, which referred exclusively to the case of Haidar Baksh. The Court may infer from these facts that A was not misled, and that the error in the charge was immaterial.

(e.) A was charged with murdering Haidar Baksh on the 20th January, and Khodá Baksh (who tried to arrest him for that murder) on the 21st January. When charged for the murder of Haidar Baksh, he was tried for the murder of Khodá Baksh. The witnesses present in his defence were witnesses in the case of Haidar Baksh. The Court may infer from this that A was misled, and that the error was material.

25. When irregular commitments may be validated. If any Magistrate, or other authority purporting to exercise powers conferred, but not being actually so empowered, commits an accused person to take his trial before a High Court, the Court may, after perusal of the proceedings, accept the commitment if it considers that the accused person has not been prejudiced, unless objection was made on behalf either of the accused person or of the prosecution to the jurisdiction of the committing Magistrate during the inquiry and before the order of commitment.

If such Court considers that the accused person was prejudiced, or if such objection as aforesaid was so made, it shall quash the commitment, and direct a fresh inquiry by a competent Magistrate.

26. Custody pending direction as to place of trial. Pending the directions of the Court as to the place of trial, every person committed for trial shall (if not admitted to bail) be committed by the Magistrate for intermediate custody to the criminal jail in which he can be most conveniently confined.

Procedure thereafter. If the trial be directed to be held at the ordinary place of sitting of the Court, the Magistrate shall bind over the person charged to appear and take his trial at such place of sitting, or shall commit him to the jail at such place.

If the Court direct that the person charged be tried elsewhere than at its ordinary place of sitting, the Magistrate shall bind him over to appear and take his trial at the place so directed, or shall, if necessary, cause him to be removed to the criminal jail at or nearest to the place at which he is directed to be tried.

27. Intermediate custody of European British subjects. The Court may direct that all European British subjects committed or bailed for trial by it within certain specified districts or during certain specified periods of the year, shall be tried at the ordinary place of sitting of the Court, or direct that they shall be tried at a particular place named, and may also order that they shall, if not bailed, be committed for intermediate custody to a particular jail, being one of the jails appointed by the Government for the reception of such prisoners.

CHAPTER IV.

OF THE COMMENCEMENT OF THE TRIAL.

28. Commencement of trial. When the Court is ready to commence the trial, the accused person shall be brought before it, and the charge shall be read and explained to him, and he shall be asked whether he is guilty of the offence charged, or claims to be tried.

29. Plea of guilty. If the accused person pleads guilty, the plea shall be recorded, and he may be convicted thereon.

30. Refusal to plead or claim to be tried. If the accused person refuses to, or does not, plead, or if he claims to be tried, the Court shall proceed to choose jurors as hereinafter directed, and to try the case.

31. Right of accused to be defended. Every person accused of an offence may of right be defended by any advocate of a High Court.

Any such person may, with the permission of the Court (but not otherwise), employ any person not being an advocate, attorney or pleader, to assist him in his defence.

CHAPTER V.

OF JURIES.

(a) Of Juries generally.

Trials to be by jury. 32. All trials under this Act shall be by jury; and, notwithstanding anything contained in section sixty-four of the Code of Criminal Procedure, in all criminal cases transferred to a High Court under that section or under the Letters Patent of any High Court established under the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth of Victoria, Chapter 104, the trial may, if the High Court so direct, be by jury.

33. Number of jurors. The jury shall consist of nine persons, who shall be chosen by lot from the persons summoned to act as jurors: provided that, in case of a deficiency of such persons, the number required may, with the leave of the Court, be chosen from such other persons as may be present.

Successive trials by same jury.

34. Subject to the right of challenge hereinafter mentioned, the same jury may try as many accused persons successively as the Court thinks fit.

Majority of jurors for trial of European British subjects.

35. If before the first juror is called and accepted, any European British subject charged as aforesaid requires to be tried by a mixed jury, the majority of the jurors shall consist of Europeans or Americans, or both Europeans and Americans.

Trial of European British subject and Native jointly accused.

36. In any case in which a European British subject is accused jointly with a person not being a European British subject, and such European British subject is committed for trial before a High Court, the person so jointly accused shall (if the committing Magistrate thinks that he ought to be tried) also be committed for trial before such High Court, notwithstanding any provision to the contrary in the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Such persons may be tried together, and the procedure on the trial shall be the same as it would have been had the European British subject been tried separately.

Provisions for European British subject requiring majority of Europeans in jury.

37. Provided that, if before the first juror is called and accepted the European British subject requires the majority of the jurors to consist of Europeans or Americans, or both Europeans and Americans, and the person not being a European British subject requires that he shall be tried separately by a jury of which at least five members shall be persons not being Europeans or Americans, the latter person shall be tried separately.

Native may claim separate trial.

(b) Of Juries in the Presidency Towns.

Trials before special jury.

38. Every person tried in Calcutta, Madras or Bombay, shall be tried before a special jury

42. The Clerk of the Crown shall, before the first day of April in each year, and subject to such rules as the High Court from time to time prescribes, prepare

(a) a list of all persons liable to serve as common jurors;

(b) a list of persons liable to serve as special jurors only.

Regard shall be had, in the preparation of the latter list, to the property, character and education of the persons whose names are entered therein.

No person shall be entitled to have his name entered in the special jurors' list, merely because he may have been entered in the special jurors' list for a previous year.

The Governor General in Council may exempt any salaried officer of Government from serving as a juror.

Discretion of officer preparing lists.

43. The Clerk of the Crown shall, subject to such rules as aforesaid, have full discretion to prepare the said lists as seems to him to be proper, and there shall be no appeal from, or review of, his decision.

Publication of lists.

44. Preparatory lists of persons liable to serve as common jurors and as special jurors, respectively, signed by the officer by whom the same have been prepared, shall be published once in the local official Gazette before the fifteenth day of April next after their preparation.

Revised lists of persons liable to serve as common jurors and special jurors, respectively, signed as aforesaid, shall be published once in the local official Gazette before the first day of May next after their preparation.

Copies of the said lists shall be affixed to some conspicuous part of the Court-house.

Number of jurors to be summoned.

45. Out of the persons named in the revised lists aforesaid, there shall be summoned for each sessions at least twenty-seven of those who are liable to serve on special juries, and fifty-four of those who are liable to serve on common juries.

No person shall be so summoned more than once in six months unless the number cannot be made up without him.

Supplementary summons.

If, during the continuance of any sessions, it appears that the number of persons so summoned is not sufficient, such number as may be necessary of other persons liable to serve as aforesaid shall be summoned for such sessions.

Failure of jurors to attend.

46. Any person summoned under section 45 who without lawful excuse fails to attend as required by the summons, or who having attended departs without having obtained the permission of the Judge, or fails to attend after an adjournment of the Court after being ordered to attend, shall be deemed guilty of a contempt and be liable by order of the Judge to such fine as he thinks fit, and, in default of payment of such fine, to imprisonment in the civil jail until the fine is paid.

Peremptory challenges.

47. Challenges without cause shown shall be allowed to the number of eight on behalf of the Crown and eight on behalf of the person or all the persons charged.

(b) Some presumed or actual partiality in the juror:

(c) A previous conviction of the juror of a non-bailable offence under the Indian Penal Code, or of a similar offence under any other law in force in British India:

(d) Inability to understand English when spoken.

Trial of challenges.

48. The Judge before whom a person charged is about to be tried shall try any challenge, other than a challenge without cause shown; and if the Judge allow the challenge, the juror shall be set aside.

The decision of the Judge as to any challenge shall be final.

Powers of Presidency High Courts as to jurors.

49. Save as herein provided, the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay shall retain all their present powers respecting the summoning, empannelling, qualification, challenging, and service of jurors, and shall have power to make such rules on these subjects (consistent with the provisions of this Act) as seem to them to be proper.

All rules relating to jurors now in force in the same High Courts shall (so far as they are consistent with this Act) remain in force until repealed or altered by new rules made under this section.

(c) Of Juries in the Mofussil.

Summoning jurors.

50. Whenever a High Court has given notice of its intention to hold sittings at any place (other than the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay) for the exercise of its original criminal jurisdiction, the Court of Session at such place shall, subject to any direction which may be given by the High Court, take and cause to be taken the measures prescribed by sections 407, 409, 410 and 411 of the Code of Criminal Procedure for the summoning of jurors.

Military jurors.

51. In addition to the persons so summoned as jurors, the said Court of Session shall, if it think needful, after communication with the Commanding Officer, cause to be summoned such number of Commissioned and Non-Commissioned Officers in the military service, resident within ten miles of its place of sitting, as the Court considers to be necessary to make up the juries required for the trial of European British subjects charged with offences before the High Court as aforesaid.

All Commissioned and Non-Commissioned Officers so summoned shall be liable to serve on such juries notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure; but no Commissioned or Non-Commissioned Officer shall be summoned whom his Commanding Officer desires to have excused on the ground of urgent military duty, or for any other special military reason.

Juries for trial of European British subjects.

52. The juries for the trial of European British subjects as aforesaid shall be formed in the manner required by the Code of Criminal Procedure and by this Act from the persons summoned in accordance with sections 50 and 51.

Names of jurors to be called.

53. As each juror is chosen, his name shall be called aloud, and, upon his appearance, the accused person shall be asked if he objects to be tried by such juror.

Objections to jurors

Objection may then be made to such juror by the accused person, or by the prosecutor, and the grounds of objection shall be stated.

Grounds of objection.

54. Any objection made to a juror on any of the following grounds, if made out to the satisfaction of the Court, shall be allowed:—

(a) his holding any office in or under the Court or the local Court of Session;

(b) his executing any duties of Police or being entrusted with any Police functions;

(c) his having been convicted of any offence against the State, or of any fraudulent or other offence which, in the judgment of the Court, renders him unfit to serve on the jury;

(d) his having by habit or religious vows, relinquished all care of worldly affairs;

56. If the objection be allowed, the place of such juror shall be supplied by any other juror attending in obedience to a summons; or, if there be no such other juror present, then by any other person present in the Court whose name is on the list of jurors, or whom the Court considers a proper person to serve on the jury, provided no objection to such other juror or person be made and allowed under section 54.

57. The Judge shall not allow any person to serve on the jury, unless such person understands the language in which the evidence is given or interpreted.

If a majority of the jury do not agree in the appointment of a foreman, he shall be appointed by the Court.

CHAPTER VI.

OF THE TRIAL.

59. The prosecutor shall then open his case, and the witnesses shall be examined, cross-examined and re-examined according to the law for the time being relating to the examination of witnesses.

Examination of witnesses.

60. The examination of the accused person before the committing Magistrate shall be given in evidence at the trial.

61. The Court may from time to time, at any stage of the trial, examine the accused person.

The accused person shall not be liable to any punishment for refusing to answer, or for answering falsely, questions asked under this section, but the Court shall draw such inference as seems just from such refusal or false answer.

Accused not punishable for refusal to answer.

No oath or affirmation shall be administered to the accused person.

62. When the examination of the witnesses for the prosecution and the examination of the accused person are concluded, the accused person shall be asked whether he means to call witnesses. If he says that he does not, the prosecutor may sum up his case. The Court may then, if it thinks that there are no grounds for proceeding, direct the jury to return a verdict of acquittal.

Defence.

If the Court considers that there are grounds for proceeding, it shall call on the accused person to state his grounds of defence and produce his witnesses.

The accused person, or his Counsel may then state the case for the defence, and may examine the witnesses, if any, produced for the defence, and at the conclusion of such examination may sum up his case.

63. If any evidence is adduced on behalf of the accused person, the prosecutor shall be entitled to reply.

Prosecutor's right of reply.

64. Whenever, in the opinion of the Court, it is proper and convenient that the jury should view the place in which the offence charged is said to have been committed, or any other place in which any other transaction material to the inquiry in the trial took place, an order shall be made to that effect, and the jury shall be conducted in a body, under the care of an officer of the Court, to such place, which shall be shown to them by a person appointed by the Court. Such officer shall not suffer any other person to speak to, or hold any communication with, any of the jury.

View by jury.

65. The High Court may from time to time make rules as to keeping the jury together during a trial lasting for more than one day, and, subject to such rules, the presiding Judge may order whether and in what manner the jurors shall be kept together under the charge of an officer of the Court, or whether they shall be allowed to return to their respective homes.

Locking-up jury.

66. The Court may, in its discretion, postpone the hearing of the case; and may, from time to time, adjourn the trial, if it considers that such adjournment is proper and will promote the ends of justice.

Postponement of trial. Adjournment.

67. If a trial is adjourned, the jury shall be required to attend at the adjourned sitting, and at every subsequent sitting, until the conclusion of the trial.

Jury to attend at adjourned sitting.

68. The Court may, if it think fit, from time to time, by general rule prescribe the manner in which evidence shall be taken down in cases coming before the Court in the exercise of its ordinary or its extraordinary original criminal jurisdiction, and the Judges of such Court shall take down the evidence or the substance thereof in accordance with the rule (if any) so prescribed.

Power to prescribe mode in which evidence shall be taken down.

69. If a juryman is personally acquainted with any relevant fact, it is his duty to inform the Judge that such is the case, whereupon he may be examined, cross-examined and re-examined, in the same manner as any other witness.

Evidence of jurors.

70. When the services of an interpreter are required by the Court for the interpretation of any evidence or statement, he shall be bound to state the true interpretation of such evidence or statement.

Interpreter.

CHAPTER VII.

OF EVIDENCE.

71. The examination of a Civil Surgeon or other medical witness, taken and duly attested by a Magistrate, may be given in evidence in any criminal trial, although the person examined is not called as a witness.

Evidence of medical witness

The Court may summon such Civil Surgeon or other medical witness, if it sees sufficient cause for doing so.

Court may summon medical witness.

72. Any document purporting to be a report from the Chemical Examiner, or Assistant Chemical Examiner to Government, upon any matter or thing duly submitted to him for examination or anaslyis and report, in the course of any criminal trial, or in any preliminary inquiry relating thereto, may, if it bears his signature, be used as evidence in any criminal trial.

Genuineness of signature may be presumed.

The Court may presume that the signature of any such document is genuine, and that the person signing it held the office which he professed to hold at the time when he signed it.

Admission of accused.

73. If, after the commencement of the trial, the accused person admits before the Court the commission of an offence, the Court may convict him on his own admission, whether such offence is the same as the offence of which he is accused, or not.

Record of evidence in absence of accused.

74. If an accused person abscond, and after due pursuit cannot be arrested, the Court may, in his absence, examine the witnesses (if any) produced on behalf of the prosecution and record their depositions; and any such deposition may, on the arrest of such person, be put in on his trial for the offence with which he is charged if it is not practicable to procure the attendance of the deponent.

Evidence given at preliminary inquiry.

75. When a witness is produced, the evidence (if any) given by him before the committing Magistrate may, in the discretion of the presiding Judge, be treated as evidence in the case, if it was duly taken in the presence of the accused person.

EXPLANATION.—This section shall not authorize the Court to refer to the record of the evidence given by a witness who is absent, except in the cases in which such evidence may be referred to under the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, or other law in force for the time being upon the subject of evidence.

Commissions.

When a commission may issue.

76. Whenever, at any time after the commitment, it appears that the attendance of a witness cannot be procured without an amount of delay, expense or inconvenience which, under the circumstances of the case, would be unreasonable, the Court may dispense with his personal attendance.

Mode of issuing commission.

The Court may direct a commission to the Magistrate of the District, or to a Magistrate of the first class, in whose jurisdiction such witness may be. The Magistrate to whom the commission is directed shall proceed to the place where such witness is, or shall summon such witness before himself. Such Magistrate shall take the evidence of such witness in the same manner, and shall have for this purpose, and may exercise, the same powers as in trials of warrant cases under the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Where witness is in Native State.

When the witness is in the territories of any Native Prince or State in India in alliance with Her Majesty, the commission may be directed to any Justice of the Peace or other officer in the service of the Crown resident in such territories; and the provisions of the second clause of this section shall apply to such Justice of the Peace or officer.

Where witness is in a Presidency Town.

If the witness is within the local limits of the ordinary original criminal jurisdiction of any of the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay, the commission may be directed to any Police Magistrate within such limits, and such Magistrate shall have the like power to compel the attendance and examination of witnesses as he possesses for that purpose in cases pending before him.

Prosecutor and accused may examine witness.

The prosecutor and the accused person may forward interrogatories, upon which the officer to whom the commission is directed shall examine the witness, or the prosecutor may appear personally before the officer to whom the commission is directed, or the prosecutor or accused person may so appear by authorized agent.

Return of commission.

After any commission issued under this section has been duly executed, it shall be returned, together with the deposition of the witness examined thereunder, to the Court out of which it issued; and the commission, the return thereto, and the deposition of such witness may be used as evidence in the case and shall form part of the record.

Tender of Pardon to obtain Evidence.

Court may direct tender of pardon.

77. The Court may, with the view of obtaining on the trial the evidence of any person or persons supposed to have been directly or indirectly concerned in, or privy to, any offence mentioned in column 7 of the fourth schedule annexed to the Code of Criminal Procedure as triable exclusively by the Court of Session, instruct the committing Magistrate to tender, or itself may, at any time before judgment, tender, a pardon to such person or persons, on condition of his or their making a full, true and fair disclosure of the whole of the circumstances, within his or their knowledge, relative to the crime committed and every other person concerned in the perpetration thereof.

Any person accepting a tender of pardon under this section shall be examined as a witness in the case, under the rules applicable to the examination of witnesses.

Such person, if not on bail, shall be detained in custody pending the termination of the trial.

Commitment of person to whom pardon has been tendered.

78. When a pardon has been tendered under section 77, if it appears to the Court that any person who has accepted such tender has not conformed to the conditions under which it was made, either by wilfully concealing anything essential, or by giving false evidence, the Court may commit, or direct the commitment of, such person, for trial for the offence in respect of which the pardon was so tendered, or for any other offence of which he may appear to have been guilty in connection with the same matter.

The statement made by a person under pardon, which pardon has been withdrawn under this section, may be put in evidence against him.

Of securing Attendance of Witnesses and Production of Documents.

Procedure for obtaining attendance of witnesses.

79. The following procedure shall be pursued in order to obtain the attendance of witnesses before the Court.

80. The Court may, at any stage of any proceeding, inquiry or trial, summon any witness, or examine any person in attendance though not summoned as a witness, and it shall be its duty to do so if the evidence of such person appears essential to the just decision of the case.

Power to summon material witness or examine person present.

81. If the Court has reason to believe that any witness whose attendance is required will not attend to give evidence without being compelled to do so, it may, instead of issuing a summons, issue a warrant of arrest in the first instance.

When warrant of arrest may issue in first instance.

82. If such warrant cannot be executed, and the Court considers that the witness is absconding or concealing himself for the purpose of avoiding the service thereof, it may issue a proclamation, requiring his attendance to give evidence at a time and place to be named therein, to be affixed on some conspicuous part of his ordinary place of abode.

Procedure when warrant cannot be served.

If the witness does not attend at the time and place named in such proclamation, the Court may order the attachment of any moveable property belonging to such witness, to such amount as seems reasonable, not being in excess of the amount of costs of attachment and of any fine to which he may be liable under the provisions of the next following section.

Such order shall authorize the attachment of any such moveable property within the jurisdiction of the Court by which the order was made; and if any such moveable property be without the jurisdiction of the said Court, such order when endorsed by the Magistrate of the District in which such property is situated shall authorize the attachment of the property last aforesaid.

83. If the witness appears and satisfies the Court that he did not abscond or conceal himself for the purpose of avoiding the execution of the warrant, and that he had not notice of the proclamation in time to attend at the time and place named therein, the Court shall direct that the property attached be released from attachment, and shall make such order in regard to the costs of the attachment as the Court thinks fit.

Release of attached property of witness appearing and satisfying Court.

If such witness does not appear, or, appearing, fails to satisfy the Court that he did not abscond or conceal himself for the purpose of avoiding the execution of the warrant, and that he had not such notice of the proclamation as aforesaid, the Court may order the property attached, or any part thereof, to be sold for the purpose of satisfying all costs incurred in consequence of such attachment, together with the amount of any fine which may be imposed upon such witness under the provisions of section 172 of the Indian Penal Code.

Sale of property of witness not appearing or not satisfying Court.

If the witness pays to such Court the costs and fine as aforesaid, his property shall be released from attachment.

84. If any person summoned to give evidence neglects or refuses to appear at the time and place appointed by the summons, and no reasonable excuse is offered for such neglect or refusal, the Court, upon proof of the summons having been duly served, may issue a warrant under its seal to bring such person before it to testify as aforesaid.

Arrest of person disobeying summons.

85. The accused person shall be allowed to examine as a witness any person in attendance.

Right of accused as to examination of witness.

86. Whenever the Court considers that the production of any document is necessary or desirable for the purposes of any investigation or judicial proceeding, the Court may issue a summons to the person in whose possession or power such document is believed to be, requiring him to attend and produce such document at the time and place stated in the summons.

Procedure for obtaining production of document required as evidence

87. If there is reason to believe that the person to whom the summons is addressed will not produce the document as directed in the summons, the Court may issue a search-warrant for the document in the first instance.

When warrant for search for documents may issue.

88. The Court may, if it thinks fit, impound any document produced before it, or may, at the conclusion of the proceedings, order such document to be returned to the person who produced it.

Power to impound document produced.

89. If a witness refuses to answer any question which is put to him or to produce any document in his possession or power which the Court requires him to produce, and does not offer any just excuse for such refusal, he shall be deemed guilty of contempt of Court.

Procedure in case of refusal to answer or produce documents.

CHAPTER VIII.

OF THE CHARGE TO THE JURY.

90. When the case for the defence and the prosecutor's reply, if any, are concluded, the Court shall proceed to charge the jury, summing up the evidence for the prosecution and defence, and laying down the law by which the jury are to be guided.

Charge to jury.

91. It is the duty of the Judge to decide all questions of law, and especially all questions as to the relevancy of facts which it is proposed to prove, the admissibility of evidence, or the propriety of questions asked by parties or their agents, which may arise in the course of the trial; and, in his discretion, to prevent the production of inadmissible evidence, whether it is or is not objected to by the parties; to decide upon the meaning and construction of all documents given in evidence at the trial;

Duty of Judge

to decide upon all matters of fact which it may be necessary to prove in order to enable evidence of particular matters to be given;

to decide whether any question which arises is for himself or for the jury; and upon this point his decision shall be final.

The Judge may, if he thinks proper, in the course of his summing up, express to the jury his opinion upon any question of fact, or upon any question of mixed law and fact, relevant to the proceeding.

Illustrations.

(a.) It is proposed to prove a statement made by a person not called as a witness, under circumstances which render evidence of his statement admissible.

It is for the Judge, and not for the jury, to decide whether the existence of those circumstances has been proved.

(b.) It is proposed to give secondary evidence of a document, the original of which is alleged to have been lost or destroyed.

It is the duty of the Judge to decide whether the original has been lost or destroyed.

CHAPTER IX.

OF THE VERDICT AND THE DISCHARGE OF THE JURY.

Retirement to consider.

92. After the Judge has finished his charge, the jury may retire to consider their verdict.

Except with the leave of the Court, no person other than a juror shall speak to, or hold any communication with, any member of such jury.

Duty of jury.

93. It is the duty of the jury—

(a) to decide which view of the facts is true, and then to return the verdict which under such view ought, according to the direction of the Judge, to be returned;

(b) to determine the meaning of all technical terms and words used in an unusual sense, which it may be necessary to determine, whether such words occur in documents or not;

(c) to decide all questions which according to law are to be deemed questions of fact;

(d) to decide whether general, indefinite expressions do or do not apply to particular cases, unless such expressions refer to legal procedure, or unless their meaning is ascertained by law, in either of which cases it is the duty of the Judge to decide their meaning.

Illustrations.

(1.) A is tried for the murder of B.

It is the duty of the Judge to explain to the jury the distinction between murder and culpable homicide, and to tell them under what views of the facts A ought to be convicted of murder, or of culpable homicide, or to be acquitted.

It is the duty of the jury to decide which view of the facts is true, and to return a verdict in accordance with the direction of the Judge, whether that direction is right or wrong, and whether they do or do not agree with it.

(2.) The question is, whether a person entertained a reasonable belief on a particular point. Whether work was done with reasonable skill, or due diligence.

Each of these is a question for the jury.

Foreman to communicate verdict.

94. When the jury have considered their verdict, the foreman shall inform the Court what is their verdict, or what is the verdict of a majority.

Verdict to be given on each charge.

Judge may question jury.

95. The jury shall return a verdict on all the charges on which the accused is tried, and the Court may ask them such questions as are necessary to ascertain what their verdict is.

Procedure where jury differ.

96. If the jury are not unanimous, the Judge may require them to retire for further consideration. After such a period as the Judge considers reasonable, the jury may deliver their verdict, although they are not unanimous.

Verdict when to be delivered.

97. A verdict of guilty or not guilty, as the case may be, shall be delivered either when the jury are unanimous in their opinion, or when as many as six are of one opinion and the Judge agrees with them.

Discharge of jury in default of unanimity or majority of six with Judge's concurrence.

98. When the jury are satisfied that they will not be unanimous, but six of them are of one opinion, the foreman shall so inform the Judge.

If the Judge disagrees with the majority, he shall then discharge the jury.

If there are not so many as six who agree in opinion, the Judge shall, after the lapse of such time as he thinks reasonable, discharge the jury.

Discharge of jury in case of sickness of juror or prisoner.

99. The Judge may also discharge the jury whenever by reason of illness a juryman becomes incapable of attending through the trial or the prisoner becomes incapable of remaining at the bar.

Re-trial of prisoner after discharge of jury.

100. Whenever the jury is discharged, the prisoner shall be detained in custody or on bail (as the case may be) and shall be tried by another jury unless the Judge considers that he should not be re-tried, in which case the Judge shall make an entry to that effect on the charge, and such entry shall operate as an acquittal.

Power to reserve questions.

101. When any person has in a trial before a Judge of the High Court acting in the exercise of its original criminal jurisdiction, been convicted of an offence, the Judge, if he thinks fit, may reserve for the decision of a Court consisting of two or more Judges of the High Court any question of law which has arisen in the course of the trial of such person and the determination of which would affect the event of the trial.

Procedure when question reserved.

If the Judge reserves any such question, the person convicted shall, pending the decision thereon, be remanded to jail, or, if the Judge think fit, be admitted to bail, and the High Court shall have power to review the case, or such part of it as may be necessary, and finally determine such question, and thereupon to alter the sentence passed by the Court of original jurisdiction, and to pass such judgment and sentence as to the High Court seem fit.

Withdrawal of remaining charges, on conviction on one of several charges.

102. When more charges than one are preferred against the same person, and when a conviction has been had on one or more of them, the prosecutor may, with the consent of the Court, withdraw, or the Court of its own accord may direct the withdrawal of, the remaining charge or charges. Such withdrawal shall have the effect of an acquittal on such charge or charges.

CHAPTER X.

OF THE SENTENCE.

Form and direction of warrant of commitment.

103. Every warrant for the commitment of a person to custody shall be in writing and signed and sealed by the Judge who issues it.

Provisions of Criminal Procedure Code, ss. 303, 304, 305, applied in Mofussil.

104. In the case of a High Court holding its sittings elsewhere than in the towns of Calcutta, Madras or Bombay, the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, sections 303, 304 and 305, shall apply to the officers therein mentioned.

Levy of fine.

105. Whenever an offender is sentenced to pay a fine, the Court may issue a warrant for the levy of the amount by distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the offender, whether or not the offence be punishable with fine only, and whether or not the sentence direct that, in default of payment of the fine, the offender shall suffer imprisonment.

Such warrant may be executed within the jurisdiction of the Court, and it shall authorize the distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the offender without the jurisdiction of the said Court, when endorsed by the Magistrate of the District in which such property is situate.

Cases to which section applies.

This section shall not apply to cases in which any special procedure is laid down by any special or local law in force for the time being for the recovery of any fine, but shall apply to cases in which no such procedure is laid down, and to all fines not levied when this Act comes into force, but which might have been levied under this section if it had been in force when they were imposed.

Payment of fine in compensation.

106. Whenever the Court imposes a fine under any law in force for the time being, the Court may order the whole or any part of the fine to be paid in compensation,

(a) for expenses properly incurred in the prosecution;

(b) for the offence complained of, where such offence can, in the opinion of the Court, be compensated by money.

Such payment shall be made, as the Court thinks fit, to or for the benefit of the complainant, or the person injured, or both.

In any subsequent civil proceedings relating to the same matter, the Court shall take into account any sum which may have been awarded under this section.

Imprisonment in default of payment of fine.

107. In every case punishable under any law in force for the time being with imprisonment as well as fine, in which the offender is sentenced to a fine, whether with or without imprisonment, the High Court shall be guided by the provisions of sections 64, 65, 68, 69 and 70 of the Indian Penal Code in awarding the period of imprisonment in default of payment of the fine.

Execution of sentences of whipping.

108. Sentences of whipping shall be executed in manner provided by the Code of Criminal Procedure, sections 311, 312 and 313.

Sentence in cases of simultaneous conviction of several offences.

109. When a person is convicted, at one trial, of two or more offences punishable under the same or different sections of any law for the time being in force, the Court may sentence him, for the offences of which he has been convicted, to the several penalties prescribed by such enactment or enactments, which such Court is competent to inflict; such penalties, when consisting of imprisonment, or transportation, or penal servitude, to commence the one after the expiration of the other:

Maximum term of imprisonment.

Provided that in no case shall such person be sentenced to imprisonment for a longer period than fourteen years.

Currency of sentence on escaped convicts.

110. When sentence of death or whipping is passed on an escaped convict, the Court shall direct the new sentence to take effect without waiting for the expiration of the sentence from which he has escaped.

When any other sentence is passed on an escaped convict severer than the sentence from which he has escaped, the Court shall also direct the new sentence to take effect without waiting for the expiration of the sentence from which he escaped.

When the new sentence is not severer than the sentence from which he has escaped, the Court shall direct the new sentence to take effect after such convict has suffered imprisonment, or transportation, or penal servitude, as the case may be, for a further period equal to that which, at the time of his escape, remained unexpired of his former sentence.

When the former sentence on the escaped convict is or includes transportation or penal servitude for life and the Court does not sentence him to death, the new sentence shall direct that he be, as soon as practicable, sent back to the place from which he escaped.

EXPLANATION.—For the purpose of this section—

(a) a sentence of transportation or penal servitude shall be deemed severer than a sentence of imprisonment:

(b) a sentence of imprisonment with solitary confinement shall be deemed severer than a sentence of imprisonment without solitary confinement; and

(c) a sentence of rigorous imprisonment shall be deemed severer than a sentence of simple imprisonment with or without solitary confinement.

Sentence on offender already sentenced for another offence.

111. When sentence is passed on a person actually undergoing sentence of imprisonment or transportation, and the sentence is for imprisonment or transportation, the Court shall direct such imprisonment or transportation to commence at the expiration of the imprisonment or transportation to which he has been previously sentenced;

or, if he is undergoing a sentence of imprisonment, and the sentence on such subsequent conviction be for transportation or penal servitude, the Court may direct the sentence to commence immediately, or at the expiration of the imprisonment to which such person has been previously sentenced:

Provided that nothing in this section shall be held to excuse such person from any part of the punishment to which he is liable upon such former or subsequent conviction.

Proviso.

112. When any person under the age of sixteen years is sentenced to imprisonment for any offence, the Court may direct that such offender, instead of being imprisoned in the criminal jail, shall be confined in any reformatory established by the Local Government as a fit place for confinement, in which there are means of suitable discipline and of training in some branch of useful industry, or which is kept by a person willing to obey such rules as the Government prescribes with regard to the discipline and training of persons confined therein.

Confinement of youthful offenders in reformatories.

All persons confined under this section shall be subject to the rules so prescribed.

113. When any person is sentenced to death, the sentence shall direct that he be hanged by the neck till he is dead.

Sentence of death.

114. If a woman sentenced to death be found to be pregnant, the High Court shall order the execution of the sentence to be postponed, and may commute the sentence.

Postponement of capital sentence on pregnant woman.

115. When the trial is concluded, the Court may make such order as it thinks fit for the disposal of any property produced before it, regarding which any offence appears to have been committed.

Order for disposal of property regarding which offence committed.

Any order under this section may be in the form of a reference to a Magistrate, who shall in such case deal with the property as if it had been seized by the Police and the seizure duly reported to him.

EXPLANATION.—In this section the term 'property' includes not only such property as has been originally in the possession or under the control of any party, but also any property into or for which the same may have been converted or exchanged, and anything acquired by such conversion or exchange, whether immediately or otherwise.

116. Subject to any rules that may be passed by the Local Government with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, the Court may order payment, on the part of Government, of the reasonable expenses of any complainant or witness attending for the purpose of any trial before such Court under this Act.

Expenses of complainants and witnesses.

CHAPTER XI.

OF PREVIOUS CONVICTIONS OR ACQUITTALS.

117. A person who has once been tried for an offence and convicted or acquitted of such offence, shall, while such conviction or acquittal remains in force, not be liable to be tried again for the same offence, nor on the same facts for any other offence for which a different charge from the one made against him might have been made under section 20, or for which he might have been convicted under section 21.

Person once convicted or acquitted not to be tried for same offence.

A person convicted or acquitted of any offence may be afterwards tried for any offence for which a separate charge might have been made against him on the former trial under section 19, paragraph I.

A person convicted or acquitted of any offence in respect of any act causing consequences which, together with such act, constituted a different offence from that for which such person was acquitted or convicted, may be afterwards tried for such last-mentioned offence, if the consequences had not happened, or were not known to the Court to have happened, at the time when he was acquitted or convicted.

A person convicted or acquitted of any offence in respect of any facts may, notwithstanding such acquittal or conviction, be subsequently charged with and tried for any other offence which he may have committed in respect of the same facts, if the Court by which he was first tried was not competent to try the offence with which he is subsequently charged.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is tried upon a charge of theft as a servant and acquitted. He cannot afterwards be charged with the same theft as a servant, or, upon the same facts, with theft simply or with criminal breach of trust.

(b) A is tried upon a charge of murder and acquitted. There is no charge of robbery; but it appears from the facts that A committed robbery at the time when the murder was committed; he may afterwards be charged with, and tried for, robbery.

(c.) A is tried for an assault and convicted. The person afterwards dies. A may be tried again for culpable homicide.

(d.) A is tried under section 270 of the Indian Penal Code for malignantly doing an act likely to spread the infection of a disease dangerous to life and is acquitted. The act so done afterwards causes a person permanently to lose his eyesight. A may be charged, under section 325, with voluntarily causing grievous hurt to that person.

(e) A is charged before the Court of Session and convicted of the culpable homicide of B. A may not afterwards be tried for the murder of B on the same facts.

(f.) A is charged by a Magistrate of the first class with, and convicted by him of, voluntarily causing hurt to B. A may not afterwards be tried for voluntarily causing grievous hurt to B, on the same facts, unless the case comes within paragraph three.

(g.) A is charged by a Magistrate of the second class with, and convicted by him of, theft of property from the person of B. A may be subsequently charged with, and tried for, robbery on the same facts.

(h) A, B and C are charged by a Magistrate of the first class with, and convicted by him of, robbing D. A, B and C may afterwards be charged with, and tried for, dacoity, on the same facts.

118. If the accused person has been previously convicted of any offence, and if it is intended to prove such previous conviction for the purpose of affecting the punishment which is to be awarded, the fact of the previous conviction must be stated in the charge. If it is omitted, it may be added at any time before sentence is passed, but not afterwards.

Previous conviction to be set out in charge.

119. A previous conviction or acquittal may be proved by an extract certified under the hand of the officer having the custody of the records of the Court in which such conviction or acquittal was had, to be a copy of the finding and sentence.

Previous conviction or acquittal how proved.

CHAPTER XII.

OF CRIMINAL LUNATICS.

120. If any person committed for trial appears at his trial to the Court to be of unsound mind and incapable of making his defence, the Court shall, in the first instance, try the fact of such unsoundness of mind, and if satisfied of the fact, shall give a special judgment that the accused person is of unsound mind and incapable of making his defence; and thereupon the trial shall be postponed.

Procedure in case of person committed being lunatic.

The trial of the fact of the unsoundness of mind of the accused person shall be deemed to be part of his trial before the Court.

121. Whenever an accused person is found to be of unsound mind and incapable of making his defence, the Court, if the offence of which he is accused be bailable, may release him on sufficient security being given that he shall be properly taken care of, and shall be prevented from doing injury to himself or to any other person, and for his appearance when required.

Release of lunatic pending investigation or trial.

If the offence be not bailable, or if the required bail be not given, the Court shall report the case to the Local Government, and the accused person shall be kept in safe custody in such place as the Local Government directs.

Custody of lunatic.

122. Whenever a trial is postponed under section 120, the Court may at any time resume the trial, and require the accused person, if detained in custody, to be brought before the Court; or, if he has been released on security, may require his appearance.

Resumption of trial.

The surety of such person shall be bound, at any time, to produce him to any officer whom the Court appoints to inspect him; and the certificate of such officer shall have the same effect as the certificate of an Inspector General of Prisons or the Visitors of Lunatic Asylums, granted under section 127.

123. If, when the accused person appears or is again brought before the Court, it appears to such Court that he is in a fit state of mind to make his defence, he shall be put on his trial.

Procedure on accused appearing before Court.

If it appears that the accused person is still of unsound mind, and incapable of making his defence, the Court shall again act according to the provisions of section 121.

124. Whenever any person is acquitted upon the ground that, at the time at which he is charged with having committed an offence, he was, by reason of unsoundness of mind, incapable of knowing the nature of the act charged or that he was doing what was wrong or contrary to law, the finding shall state specially whether such person committed the act or not.

Finding in case of acquittal on ground of being lunatic.

125. Whenever such finding states that the accused person committed the act charged, the Court before which the trial was held shall, if the act charged would, but for the incapacity found, have amounted to an offence, order him to be kept in safe custody, in such place and manner as the Court thinks fit, and shall report the case for the order of the Local Government.

Person so acquitted to be kept in safe custody.

The Local Government may order such person to be kept in safe custody in a Lunatic Asylum or other suitable place of safe custody.

126. When any person is confined under the provisions of section 121 or 125, the Inspector General of Prisons, if such person is confined in a jail, or the Visitors of the Lunatic Asylums or any two of them, if he is confined in a Lunatic Asylum, may visit him in order to ascertain his state of mind; and he shall be visited once at least in every six months by such Inspector General or by two of such Visitors as aforesaid; and such Inspector General or Visitors shall make a special report to the Local Government as to the state of mind of such person.

Lunatic prisoners to be visited by Inspector General.

127. If such person is confined under section 121 and such Inspector General or Visitors as aforesaid shall certify that, in his or their opinion, such person is capable of making his defence, he shall be taken before the Court, at such time as it appoints, and the Court shall deal with him under the provisions of section 123; and the certificate of such Inspector General or Visitors as aforesaid shall be receivable as evidence.

Procedure where lunatic prisoner is reported capable of making his defence.

128. If such person is confined under the provisions of section 125, and such Inspector General or Visitors as aforesaid shall certify that, in his or their judgment, he may be discharged without danger of his doing injury to himself or to any other person, the Local Government may thereupon either order him to be discharged, or to be detained in custody, or to be transferred to a public Lunatic Asylum, if he has not been already sent to such an Asylum; and may appoint a commission, consisting of a judicial officer and two medical officers, whereof the chief medical officer attached to the Lunatic Asylum shall be one.

Procedure where lunatic confined under section 125 is declared capable of being discharged

The said commission shall make formal inquiry into the state of mind of such person taking such evidence as is necessary, and shall report to the Local Government, who may order his discharge or detention as to it may seem fit.

129. Whenever any relative or friend of any person detained under the provisions of section 125 is desirous that he shall be delivered over to his care and custody, the Local Government, upon the application of such relative or friend, and on his giving security to the satisfaction of such Government that the person detained shall be properly taken care of and shall be prevented from doing injury to himself or to any other person, may order that the person detained be delivered to such relative or friend.

Delivery of lunatic to care of relative.

Whenever such person is so delivered, it shall be upon condition that he shall be subject to be inspected by such officer, and at such times as the Local Government directs.

The provisions of sections 126 and 128 shall apply to persons detained under the provisions of this section; and the certificate of the inspecting officer appointed under this section shall be dealt with as a certificate of the Inspector General of Prisons or the Visitors of Lunatic Asylums, under the said sections.

130. If an accused person, though not insane, cannot be made to understand the proceedings, the Court may proceed with the trial; and if such trial results in a conviction, the Court shall pass thereon such order as it thinks fit.

Procedure where accused does not understand the proceedings.

CHAPTER XIII.

OF PROSECUTIONS IN CERTAIN CASES.

131. A complaint of an offence punishable under chapter VI of the Indian Penal Code, except section 127, or punishable under section 294 A of the said Code, shall not be entertained, unless the prosecution be instituted by order of, or under authority from, the Governor General in Council or the Local Government, or some officer empowered by the Governor General in Council to order or authorize such prosecution, or unless instituted by the Advocate General.

Prosecutions for offences against the State.

132. A complaint of an offence of which any Judge or any public servant not removeable from his office without the sanction of the Government is accused as such Judge or public servant, shall not be entertained against him, except with the sanction or under the direction of the Government, or of some officer empowered by the Government, or of some Court or other authority to which he is subordinate, and whose power so to sanction or direct such prosecution the Government does not think fit to limit or reserve.

No such Judge or public servant shall be prosecuted for any act purporting to be done by him in the discharge of his duty, unless with the sanction of the Government.

The sanction must be given before the commencement of the proceedings.

In this section the expression 'Government' means either the Local Government or the Governor General in Council; and the expressions 'Judge' and 'public servant' have the meanings assigned to them respectively by the Indian Penal Code.

133. A complaint of any offence described in chapter X of the Indian Penal Code, not falling within section 175, 178, 179 or 180 of that Code, shall not be entertained by any High Court, except with the sanction or on the complaint of the public servant concerned, or of his official superior.

Prosecution for contempts of the lawful authority of public servants.

134. The sanction referred to in section 133 may be expressed in general terms, and need not name the accused person, and may be given at any time.

Nature of sanction necessary.

EXPLANATION.—In cases under this chapter, the report or application of the public servant shall be deemed sufficient complaint.

135. When the Court is of opinion that there is sufficient ground for inquiring into any charge mentioned in section 133, it may, after making such preliminary inquiry as may be necessary, either commit the case itself, or may send the case for inquiry to any Magistrate having power to try or commit for trial the accused person for the offence charged.

Procedure in cases mentioned in section 133.

Such Magistrate shall thereupon proceed according to law; and the Court may send the accused person in custody, or take sufficient bail for his appearance before such Magistrate; and may bind over any person to appear and give evidence on such trial or inquiry.

The Magistrate receiving the case may, if he is authorised to make transfers of cases, transfer the inquiry to some other competent Magistrate, instead of completing the inquiry himself.

CHAPTER XIV.

OF BAIL.

136. The Court may in any case direct that an accused person shall be admitted to bail, or that the bail required by a Magistrate be reduced.

Power to direct admission to bail.

137. Whenever, by reason of default of appearance of the person executing the personal recognizance, the Court is of opinion that proceedings should be had to compel payment of the penalty mentioned in the recognizance, it shall proceed to enforce the penalty, by issuing a warrant for the attachment and sale of the moveable property belonging to such person, which may be found within its jurisdiction.

Procedure to compel payment of penalty by accused.

Such warrant may be executed within such limits, and it shall authorize the distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the accused person without such limits, when endorsed by the Magistrate of the District in which such property is situate.

138. Whenever, by reason of default of appearance by the person bailed, the Court is of opinion that proceedings should be had to compel payment of the penalty mentioned in the recognizance of the surety or sureties, it shall give notice to the surety or sureties to pay the same, or to show cause why it should not be paid.

Procedure to compel payment of penalty by sureties.

If such penalty be not paid, and if no sufficient cause for its non-payment be shown, the Court shall proceed to recover the penalty from such surety or sureties, by issuing a warrant for the attachment and sale of any moveable property belonging to him or them which may be found within its jurisdiction.

Such warrant may be executed within such local limits; and it shall authorize the distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the surety or sureties without such limits, when endorsed by the Magistrate of the District in which such property is situate.

If such penalty be not paid and cannot be recovered by such attachment and sale, such surety or sureties shall be liable to confinement, by order of the Court, in the civil jail, during a period not exceeding six months:

Provided that the Court may, at its discretion, remit any portion of the penalty mentioned in the recognizance of the party or witness, or of the surety or sureties, and enforce payment in part only:

CHAPTER XV.

OF SECURITY FOR KEEPING THE PEACE.

Personal recognizance to keep the peace in cases of conviction.

140. Whenever a person accused of rioting, assault, or other breach of the peace, or with abetting the same, or with assembling armed men or taking other unlawful measures with the evident intention of committing the same, is convicted of such offence, and the Court is of opinion that it is just and necessary to require such person to give a personal recognizance for keeping the peace, the Court may, in addition to any other order passed in the case, direct that the person so convicted be required to execute a formal engagement, in a sum proportionate to his condition in life and the circumstances of the case, for keeping the peace during such period as it may appear proper to fix in each instance, not exceeding three years, with a provision that, if the same be not given, he shall be kept in simple imprisonment for any time not exceeding three years, unless within such period he executes such formal engagement as aforesaid.

If the accused person be sentenced to imprisonment, the period for which he may be required to execute a recognizance, and the imprisonment in default of executing such recognizance, shall commence on the expiration of his sentence.

Security to keep the peace.

141. Whenever it appears necessary to require security for keeping the peace, in addition to the personal recognizance of the party so convicted, the Court empowered to require a personal recognizance may require security in addition thereto, and may fix the amount of the security-bond to be executed by the surety or sureties; with a provision that, if the same be not given, the party required to find the security shall be kept in simple imprisonment for any time not exceeding three years.

Power to restore possession of immoveable property.

142. Whenever a person is convicted of an offence attended with criminal force, and it appears to the Court that, by such criminal force, any person has been dispossessed of any immoveable property, the Court may cause such person to be restored to possession.

No order made for this purpose shall prejudice any right over such immoveable property which any person may be able to show in a civil suit.

If any such owner, Master, or other person neglect or refuse to produce such register, or otherwise to satisfy the Conservator as to what is the true tonnage of the vessel in respect of which such port-dues are payable, he shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees, and the Conservator may cause such vessel to be measured, and the tonnage thereof to be ascertained; and in such case the owner or Master of such vessel shall also be liable to pay the expenses of such measurement.

On refusal to pay port-dues, &c., the Collector may distrain and sell.

Penalty for evading payment of port-dues, &c.

In any proceeding before a Magistrate for the adjudication of such penalty, any such certificate as is mentioned in section fifty-four stating that the Master has evaded such payment, shall be sufficient primâ facie proof of the evasion, unless the Master shows to the satisfaction of the Magistrate that the departure of the vessel without having discharged the dues or charges payable was caused by stress of weather, or that there was lawful or reasonable ground for such departure.

Any Magistrate having jurisdiction under this Act in any port to which the vessel may proceed or in which she may be found, shall be deemed to have jurisdiction in any proceeding under this section.

The Local Government may, by like notification, withdraw any such exemption.

6. After section nineteen of the Court Fees Act, 1870, the following chapter shall be inserted, (namely) :—

"CHAPTER III A.

"PROBATES, LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION AND CERTIFICATES OF ADMINISTRATION.

Relief where too high a Court-fee has been paid.

"19A. Where any person on applying for the probate of a will or letters of administration has estimated the property of the deceased to be of greater value than the same has afterwards proved to be, and has consequently paid too high a Court-fee thereon, if within six months after the true value of the property has been ascertained, such person produces the probate or letters to the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority of the Province in which the probate or letters has or have been granted, and delivers to such Authority a particular inventory and valuation of the property of the deceased, verified by affidavit or affirmation, and if such Authority is satisfied that a greater fee was paid on the probate or letters than the law required,

the said Authority may—

(a) cancel the stamp on the probate or letters, if such stamp has not been already cancelled;

(b) substitute another stamp for denoting the Court-fee which should have been paid thereon; and

(c) make an allowance for the difference between them as in the case of spoiled stamps, or repay the same in money, at his discretion.

"19 B. Whenever it is proved to the satisfaction of such Authority that an executor or administrator has paid debts due from the deceased to such an amount as, being deducted out of the amount or value of the estate, reduces the same to a sum which, if it had been the whole gross amount or value of the estate, would have occasioned a less Court-fee to be paid on the probate or letters of administration granted in respect of such estate than has been actually paid thereon under this Act, such Authority may return the difference, provided the same be claimed within three years after the date of such probate or letters.

But when, by reason of any legal proceeding, the debts due from the deceased have not been ascertained and paid, or his effects have not been recovered and made available, and in consequence thereof the executor or administrator is prevented from claiming the return of such difference within the said term of three years, the said Authority may allow such further time for making the claim as may appear to be reasonable under the circumstances.

"19 C. Whenever such a grant of probate or letters of administration has been or is made in respect of the whole of the property belonging to an estate, and the full fee chargeable under this Act has been or is paid thereon, no fee shall be chargeable under the same Act when a like grant is made in respect of the whole or any part of the same property belonging to the same estate;

Relief in case of several grants.

Whenever such a grant has been or is made in respect of any property forming part of an estate, the amount of fees then actually paid under this Act shall be deducted when a like grant is made in respect of property belonging to the same estate, identical with or including the property to which the former grant relates.

"19 D. The probate of the will, or the letters of administration of the effects, of any person deceased heretofore or hereafter granted shall be deemed valid and available by his executors or administrators for recovering, transferring or assigning any moveable or immoveable property whereof or whereto the deceased was possessed or entitled, either wholly or partially as a trustee, notwithstanding the amount or value of such property is not included in the amount or value of the estate in respect of which a Court fee was paid on such probate or letters of administration.

Probates declared valid as to trust-property though not covered by Court-fee.

"19 E. Where any person on applying for probate or letters of administration has estimated the estate of the deceased to be of less value than the same has afterwards proved to be, and has in consequence paid too low a Court-fee thereon, the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority of the Province in which the probate or letters has or have been granted, may, on the value of the estate of the deceased being verified by affidavit or affirmation, cause the probate or letters of administration to be duly stamped on payment of the full Court-fee which ought to have been originally paid thereon in respect of such value and of the further penalty, if the probate or letters is or are produced within one year from the date of the grant, of five times, or if it or they is or are produced after one year from such date, of twenty times, such proper Court-fee, without any deduction of the Court-fee originally paid on such probate or letters:

Provision for case where too low a Court-fee has been paid on probates, &c.

Provided that if the application be made within six months after the ascertainment of the true value of the estate and the discovery that too low a Court-fee was at first paid on the probate or letters, and if the said Authority is satisfied that such fee was paid in consequence of a mistake or of its not being known at the time that some particular part of the estate belonged to the deceased, and without any intention of fraud or to delay the payment of the proper Court-fee, the said Authority may remit the said penalty, and cause the probate or letters to be duly stamped on payment only of the sum wanting to make up the fee which should have been at first paid thereon.

"19 F. In case of letters of administration on which too low a Court-fee has been paid at first, the said Authority shall not cause the same to be duly stamped in manner aforesaid until the administrator has given such security to the Court by which the letters of administration have been granted as ought by law to have been given on the granting thereof in case the full value of the estate of the deceased had been then ascertained.

Administrator to give proper security before letters stamped under section 19 E.

"19 G. Where too low a Court-fee has been paid on any probate or letters of administration in consequence of any mistake, or of its not being known at the time that some particular part of the estate belonged to the deceased, if any executor or administrator acting under such probate or letters does not, within six months after the first day of April, 1875, or after the discovery of the mistake, or of any effects not known at the time to have belonged to the deceased, apply to the said Authority and pay what is wanting to make up the Court-fee which ought to have been paid at first on such probate or letters, he shall forfeit the sum of one thousand rupees and also a further sum at the rate of ten rupees per cent. on the amount of the sum wanting to make up the proper Court-fee.

Executors, &c., not paying full Court-fee on probates, &c., within six months after discovery of underpayment.

"19 H. The provisions of sections 19 A to 19 G (both inclusive) shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to certificates granted under Act No. XL of 1858 (for making better provision for the care of the persons and property of Minors in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal) or Act No. XX of 1864 (for making better provision for the care of the persons and property of Minors in the Presidency of Bombay) and to the holders of such certificates."

Sections 19A to 19G applied to certificates under Acts XL of 1858 and XX of 1864.

REGISTRATION OF MAHOMEDAN MARRIAGES AND DIVORCES.

THE HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER moved that the Bill to provide for the voluntary registration of Mahomedan Marriages and Divorces be further considered in order to the settlement of the clauses. In explanation of these frequent amendments which he had to propose, he might mention that the Bill was one which had excited much interest amongst the Mahomedans, and was receiving much personal attention from His Honor the President. His Honor had taken the opportunity to consult the leading Mahomedan gentlemen of Calcutta. Moonshee Ameer Ali, who was well known to this Council, went up to Behar, and there ascertained personally the opinions of the chief Mahomedans in the parts which he visited; and the result of all these inquiries and examinations and discussions was to strike out here and there some new light, and to suggest amendments which really did not materially affect the Bill, but which would have the effect of allaying doubts and misgivings which were entertained by persons of different classes as to the effect of the Bill.

The HON'BLE MR. REYNOLDS said, before the Council proceeded to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill, he would ask permission to make a few remarks on the Bill in its general provisions. Having been for some years in charge of a large district, in which about two-thirds of the people were Mahomedans, he could add his testimony to that of others who had spoken of the urgency and importance of a measure of this kind. In the district of which he spoke, and generally throughout Eastern Bengal, complaints of offences punishable under Chapter XX of the Indian Penal Code were lamentably frequent, and they were a class of cases with which a Magistrate very seldom felt himself able to deal in a satisfactory manner.

He did not say that all the complaints that were made of this kind were made in good faith. Some were brought out of enmity; others were made with the object of extorting money; and others by persons who, by their own misconduct, by neglect, or cruelty, or desertion, had justly forfeited the rights which they sought to enforce. But when every allowance had been made for cases of this kind, there still remained a considerable residuum of genuine complaints, in which a real injury had been suffered and redress was really sought for; and MR. REYNOLDS felt bound to add that in many instances redress was not obtained.

The complaints were generally of two classes—either charges of bigamy, or charges under section 498 of the Penal Code, of enticing away or detaining a married woman with criminal intent.

The defences that were ordinarily set up were either a denial of the marriage, or a plea that a divorce had been pronounced. When the defence consisted of a denial of the marriage, it was a matter of great difficulty for the complainant to bring such proof of the marriage as would satisfy the Court. The evidence of his relations and friends who declared that they were present at the marriage was set aside as the testimony of interested witnesses, and he was called upon to produce independent evidence, which generally meant the evidence of the Moollah by whom the marriage had been performed.

It was not always that the parties could produce the Moollah before whom they were married, and when he was produced his evidence was very often unsatisfactory. He had to trust to his recollection in the matter, as he kept no registers, and he had no better testimony than his own statement of the fact of the marriage and the identity of the parties with those before the Court.

Evidence of that kind naturally broke down on cross-examination, and the Magistrate, harassed by contradictory evidence, felt bound to give the prisoner the benefit of the doubt and to dismiss the case, though he might perhaps feel some lurking uncertainty whether he was thus doing substantial justice. But in some cases the fact of the marriage was too notorious to be denied, and then a plea of a divorce having been pronounced was set up, and evidence was brought forward to support it. The complainant was not prepared with rebutting evidence, and the charge was dismissed.

These were real evils for which the Bill would provide a cheap and popular remedy. When a marriage had been registered under the Act (if the Bill should pass into an Act), it would not be open to the parties to deny the fact of the marriage; and with regard to divorces, if a divorce was not registered, the Magistrate would look with suspicion on the evidence adduced to support the plea of divorce; or would at all events be inclined to scrutinize it very carefully.

He was about to add that the Select Committee had, in his opinion, done wisely in maintaining the time-honoured title of "Kazi" as the designation of the registering officer, but he observed that the hon'ble member in charge of of the Bill had an amendment upon the paper providing that the designation of "Mahomedan Registrar" should be substituted for the term "Kazi." It was therefore premature for him to say anything upon that point until the Council had had an opportunity of hearing the arguments which would be brought forward in support of the amendment by the hon'ble member in charge of the Bill. He thought, further, that the Select Committee had done wisely in making the Bill permissive. That so important a contract as marriage should be registered, and that the registration should be compulsory, might theoretically be advisable; but he believed it would be generally agreed that the country was not ripe for such legislation, and that it was prudent to make this, in the first instance at least, a voluntary measure. He was glad to be able to believe that the Mahomedan community generally had received the Bill with favour. He was aware that some objections had been made, but he thought that these had been made by persons who had only imperfectly acquainted themselves with the provisions and objects of the Bill. He was satisfied that in Eastern Bengal at any rate the measure would be generally acceptable, and he believed that its working would be extremely beneficial.

The HON'BLE NAWAB SYED ASHGAR ALI said that he observed with regret that Mahomedans of all classes, both Sunnis and Shiahs, were not very agreeable to the passing of this Bill. Some gentlemen felt objections to some of the clauses regarding which he saw that amendments were to be proposed. He had also heard that there was a memorial from certain inhabitants of Behar, asking for a delay of six months or so before the Bill was passed; and he thought that sufficient time should be allowed to enable Mahomedan gentlemen, both Sunnis and Shiahs, to make any representations that they might consider necessary. At the same time, it appeared to him that the Bill should not be confined to Bengal, as he observed it was proposed to do by an amendment on the paper, but should be made to extend to all the provinces under His Honor's administration. If the operation of the Bill were to be restricted, as was proposed to be done, to what was known as Bengal proper, the Council would not have the advantage of the opinions of the inhabitants of Behar. He thought, therefore, that the Bill should be left, as it was now, a general Bill; and he would also suggest to His Honor that a little time should be allowed for the consideration of the Bill, during which time he himself proposed to make all the inquiries he could, and prepare a report expressive of the views not only of the Mahomedans in Calcutta, but in other parts, to which he intended to proceed on the close of the sittings of the Council, and lay it before His Honor before the next session.

The motion was agreed to.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said the first amendment he had to propose was that throughout the Bill the words "Mahomedan Registrar" be substituted for the word "Kazi." In Select Committee he had been against the use of the term "Kazi" in the Bill, because he thought it was apt to lead to misapprehension. It was a term which, amongst the Mahomedans, was identified with very much larger functions than the limited duties assigned to the officer under this Bill, and therefore he thought that the alteration of the term "Kazi" to "Mahomedan Registrar" was advisable, as tending to prevent misapprehension. He was out-voted in Select Committee, and did not think the point of sufficient importance to moot again in Council. But His Honor the President's opinion being with him, he now ventured to propose the amendment to the Council.

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT said he would explain the reason for the substitution of the term "Mahomedan Registrar" for "Kazi." It was just this, that in the first place the word "Kazi"—interpret it how you might, and restrict the meaning how you might—did bear a certain amount or degree of religious significance. Though his functions under the Act might be confined to those of a civil nature, yet there was something of a religious character in the very term "Kazi;" and HIS HONOR need not tell the Council how very important it was to omit anything from the Bill which had a quasi-religious character. The Council were aware that there used to be the office of Kazi established by the law and practice of the country, and that the functions of the Kazi used to be somewhat of a religious character; and partly on that ground they were abolished by imperial legislation. Well, after such abolition, for a local Council to pass a Bill having that word in it, notwithstanding the restricted civil meaning attached to it, must bring their Bill into a certain collision with an imperial Act, and such a contingency might endanger the Bill being assented to. So, although they would be glad to meet the wishes of their Mahomedan friends by inserting the word "Kazi," he thought hon'ble members would see that when there were doubts, first as to the religious meaning of the word, and secondly of the possibility of our Bill conflicting with an imperial Act, as a matter of judgment and discretion, the members would perhaps consent to the omission of the word for fear that it might endanger ultimately the passing of the Bill.

The motion was agreed to.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said the next amendment which he had to move was the result of the collection of opinions made in Behar. It was clear that the circumstances of Behar as regards the need for the Bill were directly opposed to those of Eastern Bengal. In Eastern Bengal the Bill was most cryingly required: in Behar it did not seem to be required at present, and, not being required, there was no reason for creating the disturbance of public opinion which its introduction would cause. Therefore it was proposed, instead of making the Bill at once applicable to all the provinces under the Government of Bengal, that it should be extended in the first instance to Bengal proper, a discretion being left to the Lieutenant-Governor to extend its provisions afterwards, when circumstances might make it desirable to do so, to the provinces of Behar and Orissa. The amendment MR. DAMPIER had to move, therefore, was that the following words be prefixed to section 1—

"This Act extends in the first instance to the territories for the time being under the government of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, except Behar and Orissa.

But the Lieutenant-Governor may, by notification in the Calcutta Gazette, extend it to Behar and Orissa."

The HON'BLE NAWAB SYED ASHGAR ALI said that his objection to the amendment was that, if the Bill were to be settled as applying only to Bengal, the Council would not, as he had before observed, have the advantage of learning what were the opinions and feelings of the people in Behar and Orissa. But if the Bill were made applicable to Bengal, Behar, and Orissa, and not only to Bengal, we should have the benefit of opinions from Mahomedans of all places, and there would be no necessity to go over the whole work again when it was considered advisable to extend the law to Behar and Orissa.

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT observed that the Council would have the opinion of the people of Behar and Orissa whether we extended the Bill at once to those provinces or not. Even if the amendment before the Council were adopted, the people of Behar and Orissa would have an opportunity of considering its provisions.

The HON'BLE MR. HOGG asked what were the grounds of objection to the Bill being extended to Behar? He thought the Council would be in a better position to vote upon this amendment if they were made acquainted with the grounds of objection contained in the memorial that had been referred to.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said he had not seen the memorial to which the hon'ble member referred. But the ground upon which it was proposed to except Behar and Orissa from the operation of the Bill immediately upon its passing, was that the practical difficulty which the Bill was intended to meet had not been met with in those provinces,—the difficulty of proving cases of breach of the marriage contract. The people of Behar in effect said—"Our circumstances do not require this Bill, and we would rather not have legislation upon this subject introduced at all." As to Orissa, he believed the matter had not been objected to formally; but the fact was that the want of such a measure had not been felt in Behar and Orissa.

The HON'BLE MR. HOGG observed that if there was no objection to the course proposed, he thought it would be satisfactory to the Council that the Behar memorial should be printed and circulated before this amendment was passed. The Council would then be in a better position to judge of the advisability of confining the operation of the Bill in the first instance to Bengal.

After some further discussion the further consideration of the amendment was postponed.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER moved the introduction of the following amongst the interpretation clauses in section 1 :—

"'Purdah nishin' means a woman who, according to the custom of the country, might reasonably object to appear in a public office."

He had been informed by several Mahomedan gentlemen that young married women, though not strictly speaking purdah nishins, would be extremely unwilling to appear at the Registrars office It was with that intention that he proposed to relax the interpretation of the term "purdah nishin." The amendment was obviously open to criticism, on the ground that under the proposed interpretation any woman might be allowed to appear by vakil instead of in person; but Mr. Dampier believed that no practical harm would accrue from the relaxation of the requirement that the woman should appear in person; the vakil would probably ordinarily be a relation, and he believed that an appearance by vakil would be quite as safe and as little open to abuse and false personation as if the woman herself appeared. If mala fides arose afterwards, the woman who attended personally was quite as likely to deny her identity as she was to deny the authority of the vakil who had represented her.

The HON'BLE MR. HOGG said the proposed interpretation would not only include a woman of rank, who, according to the customs of the country, would object to appear in public, but would include any young girl who might chose to object to appear at a public office. He submitted that every young woman, of whatever rank, would, according to the custom of the country, object to appear in a public office. He would suggest that the principle of the Registration Act should be followed, under which those who did not wish to appear at a public office might apply for the appointment of a Commission to effect the registration of the marriage.

The HON'BLE THE ACTING ADVOCATE-GENERAL said women who went to market and appeared in public before their neighbours would object to appear at a public office. If that was the intention, he certainly would object to the amendment, as the object intended to be secured was the identity of the person who happened to go before the Registrar to be married. He thought the subject should be further considered, as it was likely, if this amendment were adopted, that one of the great objects of the Bill might be frustrated.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER explained that the object of the proposed interpretation was to relax the well-understood meaning of "purdah-nishin." If you made the definition of the word tight, according to the ordinarily accepted meaning of the word, purdah women who did not like to appear at a public office would simply not go before the Registrar, and the voluntary provisions of the Act would not be taken advantage of. It had been strongly urged upon him by Mahomedan gentlemen that there were a great number of women who went about their household business to market and elsewhere, but would yet object to appear at a public office. If you did not allow these women to appear by vakil, they would not go through the expense of a Commission, and would not avail themselves of the provisions of the Act, and the object of the Bill would be frustrated; whereas, if these women were able to send their vakils to effect the registration, the thing would be done without objection, and the provisions of the Act would be made use of.

After some further discussion, the Council divided:—

Ayes—9.	No—1.
The Hon'ble Nawab Syed Ashgar Ali.	The Hon'ble the Acting Advocate-General.
The Hon'ble Baboo Kristodas Pal.
The Hon'ble Baboo Jaggadanund Mookerjee.
The Hon'ble Mr. Reynolds.
The Hon'ble Mr. Hogg.
The Hon'ble Mr. Dampier.
The Hon'ble Mr Thompson.
The Hon'ble Mr. Schalch.
His Honor the President.

The motion was therefore carried.

On the motion of the HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER, verbal amendments were made in section 10.

On the motion of the ACTING ADVOCATE-GENERAL, section 24, which provided that a Kazi should be, and be deemed to be, a public officer in the service of Government, was amended so as to stand thus:—

"Every Mahomedan Registrar shall be, and be deemed to be, a public officer, and his duties under this Act shall be deemed to be public duties."

On the motion of the HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER, the following clause was added to section 16:—

"In the town of Calcutta, every Mahomedan Registrar shall perform the duties of his office under the superintendence and control of the Inspector-General of Registration."

For the saving clause, section 25, the following was subtituted, on the motion of the HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER:—

"Nothing in the Act contained shall be construed to—

(a) render invalid, merely by reason of its not having been registered, any Mahomedan marriage or divorce which would otherwise be valid;

(b) render valid, by reason of its having been registered, any Mahomedan marriage or divorce which would otherwise be invalid;

(c) authorize the attendance of any Mahomedan Registrar at the celebration of a marriage, except at the request of all the parties concerned;

(d) affect the religion or religious rites and usages of any of Her Majesty's subjects in India;

(e) prevent any person who is unable to write from putting his mark, instead of the signature required by this Act"

After the insertion of an inadvertent omission in schedule (c), the further consideration of the Bill was postponed.

IRRIGATION AND CANAL NAVIGATION.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER moved that the Bill to provide for Irrigation and Canal Navigation in the Provinces subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal be read in Council. When he asked the permission of the Council to introduce a Bill regarding irrigation in Bengal, he said that the existing Acts applied to Orissa only, and that in Midnapore the works had been carried out without any Act applicable to those works. It was then intended that the Bill should be applicable only to Bengal proper and to Orissa, leaving Behar (in which it was proposed to work the irrigation on a somewhat different system) to be provided for by subsequent legislation. Since then, however, the requirements of Behar had been under consideration, and he hoped the Council would not object to the introduction of this Bill as one applicable to all the provinces under the Lieutenant-Governor's control. At present there was no Act to regulate the powers of officers of the department and the rights of individuals in that connection. The present Bill, which had been for some days in the hands of the members, followed generally the scheme of the irrigation and Canal Act of the North-Western Provinces which was passed by the Council of the Governor-General, and which MR. DAMPIER was informed had worked well. He had rejected some of the provisions of the North-Western Provinces' Act, because they were not applicable to Bengal, and were not required; and he had omitted others because this Council had not power to legislate as the Council of the Governor-General did on those points: for instance, the provisions of the North-Western Provinces' Act trenched upon some of the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act in regard to compensation. Such legislation was beyond the competence of this Council. He had provided in the Bill that compensation should always be given in accordance with the Land Acquisition Act. Then he had omitted the provisions imposing an owner's rate upon the zemindar, which were in force in the North-Western Provinces, as the Government did not wish to extend them to Lower Bengal, and he had also omitted the provisions regarding forced labour, which were necessary where there was a sparse population, but were not required in Bengal.

The second part of the Bill gave power to the Government to take up existing channels and to utilize them for purposes of irrigation, giving compensation under the Land Acquisition Act to those whose rights were affected. The third part conferred upon canal officers certain powers as to surveys for canals and for keeping canals up when made. It also provided for payment of compensation for damage done. If the parties accepted the compensation offered, well and good; if not, the amount of compensation was to be settled under the Land Acquisition Act This part provided also for applications for water and for the construction of water-courses at the cost of private individuals who required them, according to the system in vogue in the North-Western Provinces. That was not the system hitherto in force in Orissa and Midnapore, but in Behar it was proposed to follow that system. This part also provided for subsidiary arrangements as to these water-courses. To get the full benefit of irrigation it was occasionally necessary to use compulsion in taking possession of rights of private individuals in favour of other private individuals. Sometimes it was necessary to interfere in a trifling degree with the rights of one individual for the purpose of securing to others very great benefits from the use of water. When that was done, the private rights which had been interfered with would be fully paid for. It would be observed that this part required that provision should be made for the convenience of the public in crossing canals and channels at the expense of the Government, or of those for whose benefit the channels were kept up.

In the fourth part of the Bill it was provided that the Lieutenant-Governor might make rules regarding the supply of canal water; but the Bill laid down certain conditions restrictive on the department as to the supply of water. The officers of the department could not, for instance, arbitrarily cut off the supply of water at their own discretion: the supply could only be withheld upon certain specified conditions stated in the Bill; and if the department failed to supply water under other circumstances, persons under contract for water were entitled to compensation.

The fifth part provided that the rate at which water should be supplied should be fixed by the rules made by the Lieutenant-Governor, and provisions were made for the joint responsibility of the cultivators and those connected with the land for waste or the unauthorized use of water. These provisions were absolutely necessary, for sometimes it was impossible to find out by whose act the water was surreptitiously let out. It was easy, however, to find out whose land had benefited from the use of such water. The law imposed joint responsibility in that respect. In this part it was also provided that canal officers might agree with a third person to collect the water-rate, and that the Government might require the zemindars to collect the rate from their ryots. This plan was not favoured in Midnapore: it was said that the ryots very much objected to it. In other parts it might be found acceptable and workable.

As to the recovery of sums due, he had left the model of the North-Western Provinces' Act, and had retained the provisions of the existing Orissa Acts, which were more in detail.

The sixth part provided rules for the navigation of canals and the realization of canal dues; and the ninth part provided for the Lieutenant-Governor laying down subsidiary rules for the guidance of canal officers and the public in all matters connected with irrigation.

As soon as the Bill had been read and referred to a Select Committee, he proposed again to ask those officers who had practical experience on the working of the system hitherto in force, to give their opinions for the benefit of the Select Committee. With these remarks he begged to move that the Bill be read in Council.

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL said the prosecution of irrigation works was a question of imperial policy, which did not fall within the scope of the deliberations of this Council. But past experience did not justify them to hope that financially these works were calculated to prove a great success. He perceived from the last Bengal Administration Report that the total outlay upon irrigation works, up to the 31st March 1874, was Rs. 3,15,18,966, and the total deficiency up to that date was Rs. 51,15,758; that was to say, Rs. 44,61,754 on account of interest, and Rs. 6,53,994 on account of current charges. These figures, he submitted, were the best evidence of the prospects of irrigation works in Bengal. He admitted that these works did good service in Midnapore and Behar in the drought of 1873-74, but even that service was very limited. He observed that this question was very ably and sensibly discussed in Sir George Campbell's Administration Report for 1872-73. Adverting to the outlay incurred, Sir George Campbell wrote :—

"It will be seen that the total expenditure will be enormous, while financially we have been most unfortunate. In Orissa the premature attempt to secure a large revenue ended disastrously, as explained in the last report, and caused much irritation and discord."

In Midnapore the works were more successful, but still not to the extent desired. As to that, Sir George Campbell said:—

"But unhappily all these prospects were darkened by a circumstance which the projectors of the canal do not appear to have taken into account, though it seems obvious enough. The supply of water in the river which feeds the canals failed in October and November, just when water was most wanted. Short rivers rising on the surface of dry uplands must fail when the rains fail. Though there was by no means so excessive a drought in Midnapore as in the rest of Bengal and Behar, the supply to the canal fell to 300 feet per second at the time when water was most necessary to the crops. This quantity will not suffice for much more than about 30,000 acres; so much was irrigated, but many applicants were sent away without water, and even to some of those to whom we had engaged to give it, a very short supply was available. It seems, then, that we cannot safely engage to irrigate very much more than 30,000 acres without the fear that we shall fail to do what we have undertaken to do in every dry season when the rains cease early. It is seldom that the water is an absolute necessity at any other time; and the serious question arises whether we can undertake to extend our irrigation subject to this risk, and how we are to distribute the supply when we have not enough for all."

In Behar, as Baboo Kristodas Pal had already observed, the Soane Canal was of great benefit during the late drought, but even there the prospect was not all fair. Sir George Campbell remarked:—

"The Lieutenant-Governor believes that the Soane canals have really very much better prospects than the others, and that within certain limits their greater or less success is assured. Whether in ordinary years, when there is a full rain-supply, the people will consent to pay such rates as to render the canal remunerative, remains to be seen; but that the water will always be taken to a considerable extent, the Lieutenant-Governor has no doubt."

Sir George Campbell thus concluded:—

"Even if the Soane canals, kept within dry season limits, may eventually pay, it is Sir George Campbell's belief that almost all other canals which can be devised in those provinces will practically be of the nature of an insurance against bad years, rather than a profitable speculation in ordinary years. Can we impose an insurance rate on those who are benefited? Or is Government justified in spending great sums from the general revenues, not for profit, but to save life in years of failure? These are very perplexing questions. As regards the saving of life, the fever which has so often accompanied the canals must be taken into account. It may well be doubted whether the Ganges Canal most saves life or destroys it. Sir George Campbell had hoped that deltaic canals were free from this scourge, but he has lately seen that there are complaints of fever caused by the Godaverycanals also."

Now, it would be seen from these extracts that, according to the late Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, the prospects of irrigation in these provinces were very doubtful, and Baboo Kristodas Pal believed that all who knew the condition of the country and the requirements of the people would readily subscribe to that opinion. In Bengal in times past droughts used to occur at long intervals, but within the last ten years or so they had been more frequent. Since 1866, he could not say whether from atmospheric changes or what, drought had been more frequent in Bengal. Still it was a question of grave financial importance as to whether canals for irrigation should be multiplied and the general revenues burdened in the distant hope of meeting a drought which might occur once in eight or ten years.

He thought it proper to make these general remarks, as the Bill had been introduced with a preface that it was intended to extend these works to different parts of the country.

As regards the Bill itself, it was not clear whether the water-rate would be made compulsory or voluntary. He believed the hon'ble member intended that it should be voluntary; but as the Bill was framed, the point had not been made quite clear. For instance, there was no specific provision in the Bill that a contract should be made in all cases. On the contrary, section 27 implied that there might be no contract. It enjoined—

"In the absence of a written contract, or so far as any such contract does not extend, every supply of canal water shall be deemed to be given at the rates and subject to the conditions prescribed by the rules to be made by the Lieutenant-Governor in respect thereof."

This implied that there might or might not be a contract in all cases; and where there was no contract, it seemed to him there might be much misunderstanding and dispute. The Canal Department had not been popular, and he was therefore of opinion that as little discretion should be left to the canal officers as possible. Then it appeared from clause 6 of section 25 that, if it was not intended to make the water-rate directly compulsory, it was intended to make it indirectly compulsory. The section said:—

"If any of the rules and conditions prescribed by this section are not complied with, or if any water-course constructed or transferred under this Act is disused for three years continuously, the right of the applicant, or of his representative in interest, to occupy such land or water-course, shall cease absolutely."

In other words, although the occupant might pay for the construction and maintenance of the water-courses, still if he did not take the water for three years successively he was to be deprived of the use of the water-course: that was to say, it would be confiscated. Now this provision had a direct tendency to make the rate compulsory, or rather to force water upon the occupant.

Then with regard to the liability for the waste of water, the hon'ble member had explained that where the party who wasted the water could not be identified, all the persons interested in the water-course should be held jointly responsible (sections 29 and 30 of the Bill). It was a well-recognized principle of criminal law that if a person committed a breach of the law, he should be personally and individually held responsible; but BABOO KRISTODAS PAL could not understand on what principle of justice a body of persons was to be held responsible for an offence committed by an unknown person.

It would be intelligible if the persons whose lands benefited were held responsible; but it was clearly unintelligible that all persons, whether their lands were benefited or not, should be held responsible because the canal officers were unable to find out the real offender.

The next point was as to drainage. He found that under section 25 private individuals, if they obtained a supply of water through a water-course, were to provide for the drainage of the places where drainage channels existed. But there was nothing in the Bill to show that the drainage of the villages would be kept intact where the canals were constructed at the cost of Government. He thought that this was a most important point, which ought not to have been lost sight of in a Bill of this kind.

The next point was as to compensation. The hon'ble member had explained that he had diverged from the North-Western Provinces' Act, which he had made his model, in granting compensation under the Bill. But on reference to section 8 BABOO KRISTODAS PAL found that it provided as follows:—

"The Collector shall proceed to inquire into any such claim which may be made under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, as far as they may be applicable, and to determine the amount of compensation, if any, which should be given to the claimant."

It was not clear from this provision whether the whole machinery of the Land Acquisition Act would be availed of in cases coming under this section, or whether the determination of the Collector would be final. Then came the collection and realization of the water-rate. Under section 23 it would be at the discretion of the Government to farm out the collection of the water-rate to any person. But section 37 provided:—

"The Collector may require any zemindar or other person under engagement to pay the land revenue of any estate, to collect and pay any sums payable under this Act by a third party in respect of any land or water in such estate"

The hon'ble mover had not given any reason why he wished to throw this new obligation upon the zemindar. There were many reasons why this obligation should not be imposed upon him. In the first place it was liable to be abused in the hands of an unscrupulous zemindar; in the second place, where the zemindar might not be exacting, and might fail to realize the rate from the ryots in due time, his whole estate would be held liable to sale as for an arrear of revenue: so the zemindar who would be charged with the liability for no benefit of his own was threatened, as it were, with the sale of his own estate for the debt of third parties.

This was scarcely fair or just. It was true that the collection of the road cess had been imposed upon the zemindar, but the object was not only to facilitate the collection, but also to prevent the fiscal agency from coming into direct contact with the ryots for the collection of the cess, and thus to obviate the annoyance, irritation, and oppression which generally resulted from this process. But the canal officers formed a distinct department, and they would more or less come into contact with the ryots; and he did not therefore see why the zemindars should be compelled to collect the rate for the Canal Department. The provisions of section 33, which declared that the collection of the rates might be farmed out, appeared to be quite sufficient. If a zemindar wished to take a farm of this kind, he would be quite welcome to do so, and it would be quite unobjectionable to employ his agency in such case. But he was not satisfied that any good reason existed for compelling the zemindar to collect the rate.

In the interests of both the zemindars and the ryots, he thought that this section should be omitted.

Then again, in regard to the mode of realization of the water-rate, it was provided in the first place that where the water-rate and other charges were to be collected by the Government, the same should be recovered as arrears of revenue. In the second place, where the rates were to be realized by a farmer, they were to be realized as a demand under Act VII of 1868; but where they were to be realized by the zemindar, they were to be realized as rents payable to him. As BABOO KRISTODAS PAL remarked at a previous sitting of the Council, he thought the less the legislature made the land liable for any and every demand imposed upon it, the better, so long as there were other valuable goods available for the realization of the dues of Government. If the immovable property of the person liable to the water-rate was not sufficient to satisfy the demand, it would then be just and equitable to seize the land and sell it, but not otherwise. This objection was certainly obviated with respect to farmers under section 33, for in their case the water-rate was to be recovered as a demand within the meaning of Act VII of 1868. The farmer would thus have a facility in realizing the rate, but the zemindar must collect it as rent; and the Council were well aware what this meant. If the ryots did not pay, the zemindar must sue them in the civil court, and undergo the expense, trouble, and harassment of a wearisome litigation, and in the meantime pay in the amount from his own pocket.

Then, with regard to jurisdiction under Part VII, it would appear that the jurisdiction of the Civil Court would be taken away with regard to the supply of water. The section provided that—

> "Except where herein otherwise provided, all claims against Government in respect of anything done under this Act may be tried by the Civil Courts; but no such Court shall in any case pass an order as to the supply of canal water to any crop sown or growing at the time of such order."

This was circumscribing the jurisdiction of the Civil Court to the detriment of those who availed themselves of the Act. Then another question arose. The Council were aware that canals sometimes overflowed in the rains and did great damage to the crops. There was nothing in the Bill to show that in such cases those who might sustain damage from the overflow of water would have a claim against the Canal Department, and that the Civil Court would have jurisdiction in such cases. He did not know whether this section as it was worded would not bar the institution of such suits.

With regard to navigable canals, he had only to remark in conclusion that while the Bill provided penalties for the infringement of the rules, and made provision for the protection of canals, it nowhere provided that due facilities should be afforded for navigation. It imposed no obligation upon the Canal Department to provide facilities for navigation, though it authorized them to collect tolls and rents and to levy penalties.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said he had only to say in reply that not one of the criticisms which the hon'ble member had addressed to the Council applied to any provision which appeared for the first time in this Bill. All the provisions on which the hon'ble member had remarked were borrowed either from the North-Western Provinces' law, which, as MR. DAMPIER had said, had been found to work well, or from the existing Orissa law. The plan upon which he had prepared this Bill had been to take these two sets of laws as his models. Anything which palpably was not applicable or desirable for Bengal, was either struck out or modified. But any provisions which were open to a difference of opinion, he had retained with the object of securing the attention of the Select Committee to them, and of their discussing and seeing how far they were or were not applicable to the circumstances of Bengal. The Select Committee would, no doubt, consider the matter carefully with the assistance of the suggestions which they would receive from officers who were acquainted with the practical working of the department, and very probably the Bill would be presented by the Select Committee in a considerably altered and improved shape.

The motion was agreed to, and the Bill referred to a Select Committee, consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Schalch, the Hon'ble Baboo Kristodas Pal, and the Mover, with instructions to report in six months.

The Council was adjourned to Thursday, the 25th instant.

BUDGET ESTIMATES OF LOCAL FUNDS, 1875-76.

RESOLUTION.

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT.—FINANCE.

Calcutta, the 23rd March 1875.

READ—

The Accountant-General's letter No. 993, dated 4th March, submitting the estimates of Local Funds' receipts and expenditure for the year 1875-76.

The Resolution of this Government in the Financial Department, dated the 12th March 1875, on the estimates of receipts and expenditure on account of Provincial Services for the year 1875-76.

1. The Accountant-General brings to notice that the preparation of the Local Funds' estimates has been greatly delayed by the want of punctuality on the part of heads of departments and local officers in furnishing him with the necessary figures. The Lieutenant-Governor must again request the attention of all officers to the great importance of submitting budget estimates by the dates on which they are due.

2. The general estimate of local funds now under review, includes also the receipts and expenditure of the provincial reserve fund, the municipal funds, and the funds relating to trusts and endowments. The following abstract gives a comparison of the estimates of 1875-76 with those of 1874-75 :—

LOCAL FUNDS.

3. In the estimates of last year, it was anticipated that the year 1874-75 would close with a surplus of nearly £140,000; but the large expenditure on famine relief works has converted this expected surplus into a serious deficit. There will, however, be no excess of expenditure over income in the coming year: and it is hoped that the balance at credit of provincial reserve will enable the Lieutenant-Governor to make such grants as may be necessary to restore the equilibrium of the Local Funds' finances. What part of the expenditure on relief works shall be defrayed by Government, and what part shall be a charge against the District Committees, is a question, the details of which have not yet finally been determined. The figures of the Local Funds' Budget proper for the two years are as follow :—

		Debit closing balance on 31st March 1876	28,39,333

4. The details are given under their respective headings in the estimates furnished by the Accountant-General.

5. The receipts of 1875-76 compared with those of 1874-75 show a falling off to the extent of more than 38 lakhs of rupees; but this is entirely due to the large grants made to Local Funds during the famine. A comparison of the original estimate of 1874-75 with the regular estimate of the same year will show that the receipts originally anticipated were only about one-half of the amount shown in the regular estimate, and the difference is due to the grants made to Local Funds for famine relief works.

PROVINCIAL RESERVE.

6. The figures for provincial reserve for the two years give the following results:—

1874-75.	Rs.	1874-75.	Rs.
Opening balance	5,14,702	Contribution to Public Works Department ...	1,14,000
Receipts as per regular estimate	10,52,000	Expenditure as by regular estimate	8,40,000

Total ...	42,08,202	Total ..	42,05,202

7. This estimated closing balance, which may possibly be supplemented by a further grant from Imperial Funds, forms the amount available for special and unforeseen expenditure on provincial account during the year, and also for meeting such part of the debit against Local Funds as it may be eventually determined that Government shall defray.

MUNICIPAL AND TRUST FUNDS.

NOTE.

Barometric Pressure.—The pressures in column 2 of the above table for all stations below 500 feet, are reduced from those given in column 3 of the table on the previous page, by adding the weight of a column of air of the temperatures given in column 17. For stations above 500 feet elevation the reduction is made by Dippe's tables, as given in Guyot's "Meteorological and Physical Tables." The temperatures at the sea-level are taken from column 3 of the above table.

Temperature.—The temperatures in column 3 are reduced from those in column 17 on the preceding page by adding 1° Fahr. for every 450 feet.

Wind Resultant.—The resultant wind direction and its comparative predominance are calculated from the whole number of wind observations recorded during the month. The relative predominance in the direction of the resultant is given as a percentage of the whole number of observations. The direction is computed in the usual way by Lambert's formula.

Serenity.—This column gives the average proportion of unclouded sky; a cloudless sky being indicated by 10, and one completely overcast by 0.

The above, being all comparable, afford the data for constructing a meteorological chart for the month, which shall show the isobaric and isothermal lines and the resultant wind directions, which last may be represented by arrows of varying length, proportioned to the prevalence of the wind. To these may be added the rainfall from the previous tables.

CALCUTTA,

The mean barometer, as likewise the dry and wet bulb thermometer, means are derived from the twenty-four hourly observations made during the day.

The dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants. The figures in column 10 represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity. The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1½ feet, and that of the anemometer 70 feet 10 inches above the level of the ground. The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

RULES FOR TEA LEASES IN THE WESTERN DOOARS.

The 19*th March* 1875.—The following rules for the grant of leases of land for tea cultivation in the Western Dooars have been approved by the Lieutenant-Governor, and are published for general information. The rules will come into force from the 1st April 1875:—

What lands will ordinarily be available.

1. THE lands that will be generally available under these rules lie within that tract of country in the Western Dooars which extends in an easterly direction from the east bank of the River Teesta to the west bank of the River Sankos.

What lands will not ordinarily be available.

2. The following lands will not ordinarily be available under these rules:—

(a.)—Lands which, by a notification in the Calcutta Gazette, are held to constitute a reserve for the supply of timber, fuel, grazing, or any other article of general and public consumption.

(b.)—Lands not included in the above category, but which now bear India-rubber trees or other valuable timber (such as sâl, khair, chelownee, sissoo, &c.) in compact blocks or patches.

(c.)—Lands in respect of which any person or persons, or any village community, possess rights of occupancy, or such other rights or privileges as would, in the opinion of the local Government, render it impolitic or unadvisable to grant such lands to any other person or persons for the purpose of tea cultivation.

(d.)—Lands lying within a distance of 60 feet on either side from the centre of any public road or thoroughfare. Provided that such road or thoroughfare shall have been constructed, or shall be kept in repair, from public funds, and that it be borne on the list of the district roads of the district within which the land above mentioned lies.

(e.)—Lands which the local Government may at any time, by a notification in the Calcutta Gazette, expressly exempt from the operation of these rules.

How and to whom application is to be made.

3. Every person desirous of obtaining a grant of land under these rules shall, in person or by a duly authorized agent, present an application on stamped paper of the value of 8 annas to the Deputy Commissioner of the district in which the land lies.

What the application is to specify.

4. The application shall specify—

(a.)—The name, father's name, and address of the applicant, and of his authorized agent, if any.

(b.)—The area, situation, and boundaries of the land applied for, as far as they can be ascertained without a detailed survey.

(c.)—A statement of the particulars, if any, which may appear to the applicant to bring the land applied for, or any part of it, within the exceptions mentioned in Rule 2. The application shall also state whether the land, or any part of it, is or has ever been cultivated in any manner.

5. Every lot applied for shall be compact and capable of being enclosed in a ring fence; and if any part of the land touches on a public road or navigable river, the length of such road or river frontage shall not exceed one half the breadth of the lot applied for.

6. No application shall be received in respect of an area greater than 800 acres; and not more than this quantity of land shall be granted under these rules to any one lessee.

Procedure on receipt of an application.

7. On receipt of an application, and after satisfying himself as far as lies in his power that the requirements of the rules have been complied with, the Deputy Commissioner shall record a proceeding to the above effect, calling upon the applicant or his authorized agent to deposit such a sum as the Deputy Commissioner shall deem to be necessary to cover the cost of the survey and demarcation to be made as hereinafter provided. Such sum shall ordinarily be calculated at the rate of 8 annas per acre of the total quantity of land applied for. But if the rate of 8 annas an acre be found insufficient, the applicant shall be required to deposit such further sum as may be needed to cover the actual cost of survey. On the other hand, if the actual cost of survey falls short of the sum deposited, the applicant shall be entitled to a refund of the excess.

8. On receipt of the sum payable under the preceding rule, and of an agreement, signed by the applicant or by his authorized agent, to pay such further sum as may be required for the purposes above mentioned, the Deputy Commissioner shall record an order appointing a tehsildar or other officer to visit the land, and to make full and detailed inquiries into its condition and circumstances.

Preliminary inquiry to be made.

9. The general object of such inquiry shall be to ascertain whether or not the land applied for can be granted under the rules in force; but the Deputy Commissioner may instruct the officer making the inquiry to furnish him with such other specific and detailed information as may seem to him to be necessary.

10. On completion of his inquiry, the officer making it shall record the result thereof and submit a report for the orders of the Deputy Commissioner. If the Deputy Commissioner, after considering the report, and after calling for such further explanations, oral or written, as he may deem necessary, shall be of opinion that the land applied for cannot be granted under the rules, and should not therefore be surveyed, he will record an order to that effect. Such order shall be appealable to the Commissioner of the Division within which the land applied for is situated, and his order shall be final. The appeal must be filed within one month from the date of the receipt, by the applicant or authorized agent, of a copy of the order appealed against.

11. If the Deputy Commissioner decide that the land applied for can be granted under the rules, and should therefore be surveyed, he shall record an order to that effect.

12. If the Deputy Commissioner thinks it necessary to remove from off such land any occupants or others not having rights such as those contemplated in Rule 2 (c), or whom the Deputy Commissioner considers should be removed for the good of the state, he shall submit a full report of the circumstances for the orders of the Commissioner, stating in detail the grounds of his recommendation, and the compensation, if any, he proposes to pay them. The orders of the Commissioner on this point shall be final.

13. If any claim or objection be preferred under Act XXIII of 1863, the Deputy Commissioner shall proceed to dispose of the same in accordance with the provisions of the said Act.

14. The Deputy Commissioner shall then proceed to appoint a Surveyor and such other establishment as he may deem to be requisite for the purpose of making an accurate chain and compass survey and map of the land applied for.

How the survey is to be made.

15. The officer who made the inquiry provided for by Rule 6 shall, on receipt of an order to that effect from the Deputy Commissioner, proceed to point out to the Surveyor the boundaries of the land applied for, and such prominent features in it as may be useful for the purposes of the survey, and which should, in his opinion, be entered in the draft under the rules as hereinafter provided. Such boundaries and other features as above mentioned shall be clearly marked and defined by the tehsildar in presence of the Surveyor, and the latter should be furnished with a list of them signed by the tehsildar.

16. The Surveyor shall then proceed to make the survey and fix the necessary boundary marks, which shall be such as a masonry platform at each point where more than two lots or patches of waste or other properties meet, and large stones or mounds at every angle and at every 100 yards of the boundary line between such platforms or other marks. Before sending in his report, the Surveyor should be careful to see that all marks required by the rules have been duly erected, and are in good order and preservation. The Surveyor shall prepare a map showing—

(a.)—All natural features of the country lying within the boundaries as fixed by the officer who made the inquiry under Rule 6, e.g. bheels, streams, forest clumps, &c.

(b.)—Such features of the country lying outside the boundary of the land to be surveyed as may serve to identify the latter and connect it with the revenue survey or other existing map.

17. The map shall ordinarily be on a scale of 16 inches to the mile. If possible, the Surveyor's field-book shall be copied at the back of it. If not, a copy of the field-book shall be attached to or accompany the map. If the map be made originally in the vernacular, the Deputy Commissioner shall cause it to be translated into English.

18. The whole cost of survey, including the expenses of cutting jungle, erecting boundary and other marks, &c., shall be borne by the applicant, and the Deputy Commissioner shall advance, from the funds deposited by the applicant, for the purpose such sums as shall from time to time be required. A full account of such sums shall be rendered to the Deputy Commissioner by the party receiving them, and such accounts shall be open to the inspection of the applicant at such time and place as the Deputy Commissioner may appoint.

19. On the map being completed, it shall be checked by an officer appointed by the Deputy Commissioner. If found to be incorrect, it shall be amended by the Surveyor in conjunction with the officer above mentioned. If found to be correct, it shall be laid before the Deputy Commissioner with the report of the officer who made the preliminary inquiry under Rule 6, and with all other papers connected with the case.

20. The Deputy Commissioner shall then proceed to consider the application. A date for this purpose shall be previously fixed by him, and due notice of it shall be given to the applicant or to his authorized agent.

21. It shall be competent to the Deputy Commissioner, after considering the papers of the case and making such further inquiries as he may deem necessary, either to reject or to comply with the application as originally presented or as amended by the applicant, with the consent of the Deputy Commissioner.

22. If the Deputy Commissioner rejects the application, he shall record an order in writing to that effect, with the grounds of his decision. A copy of such order, and of the grounds on which it is based, shall, on application made in writing by the applicant or by his authorized agent, be granted. An appeal against such order shall lie to the Commissioner of the Division in which the land applied for is situated, if made within 30 days of the date of the receipt of a copy of such order by the applicant or his authorised agent.

23. If the Deputy Commissioner grant the application, he shall grant the applicant a lease in form A of the appendix, and shall call upon him to execute a counterpart thereof, and to mark out the land leased by a continuous trench, or in such other manner as the Deputy Commissioner may direct.

24. Whenever, after receipt of an application, as provided for in Rule 3, and after making such inquiries as he may deem necessary, the Deputy Commissioner shall be of opinion that there is no primâ facie objection whatever to the grant under the rules of the land applied for, he may put the applicant in preliminary possession of an area not exceeding one-eighth of the estimated area of the land applied for, with the object of enabling the applicant to make preparations for commencing cultivation and getting the land in order. Provided that the applicant, before obtaining such preliminary possession, shall have erected such boundary marks as the Deputy Commissioner may direct, and that the amount of all estimated charges incurred in connection with such preliminary occupation shall have been deposited by the applicant.

25. The order for, and conditions of such preliminary occupation, shall be in the form B in the appendix, and shall be addressed to the tehsildar or other officer appointed by the Deputy Commissioner. A copy of the order shall be delivered to the applicant, who shall, after receipt of occupation, acknowledge such receipt by signing a copy of the order and depositing it with the Deputy Commissioner.

Addition to Act No. VII of 1870.

6. After section nineteen of the Court Fees Act, 1870, the following chapter shall be inserted, (namely):—

"CHAPTER III A.

"PROBATES, LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION AND CERTIFICATES OF ADMINISTRATION.

Relief where too high a Court-fee has been paid.

"19A. Where any person on applying for the probate of a will or letters of administration has estimated the property of the deceased to be of greater value than the same has afterwards proved to be, and has consequently paid too high a Court-fee thereon, if within six months after the true value of the property has been ascertained, such person produces the probate or letters to the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority of the Province in which the probate or letters has or have been granted, and delivers to such Authority a particular inventory and valuation of the property of the deceased, verified by affidavit or affirmation, and if such Authority is satisfied that a greater fee was paid on the probate or letters than the law required,

the said Authority may—

(a) cancel the stamp on the probate or letters, if such stamp has not been already cancelled;

(b) substitute another stamp for denoting the Court-fee which should have been paid thereon; and

(c) make an allowance for the difference between them as in the case of spoiled stamps, or repay the same in money, at his discretion.

"19 B. Whenever it is proved to the satisfaction of such Authority that an executor or administrator has paid debts due from the deceased to such an amount as, being deducted out of the amount or value of the estate, reduces the same to a sum which, if it had been the whole gross amount or value of the estate, would have occasioned a less Court-fee to be paid on the probate or letters of administration granted in respect of such estate than has been actually paid thereon under this Act, such Authority may return the difference, provided the same be claimed within three years after the date of such probate or letters.

Relief where debts due from a deceased person have been paid out of his estate.

But when, by reason of any legal proceeding, the debts due from the deceased have not been ascertained and paid, or his effects have not been recovered and made available, and in consequence thereof the executor or administrator is prevented from claiming the return of such difference within the said term of three years, the said Authority may allow such further time for making the claim as may appear to be reasonable under the circumstances.

"19 C. Whenever such a grant of probate or letters of administration has been or is made in respect of the whole of the property belonging to an estate, and the full fee chargeable under this Act has been or is paid thereon, no fee shall be chargeable under the same Act when a like grant is made in respect of the whole or any part of the same property belonging to the same estate;

Relief in case of several grants.

Whenever such a grant has been or is made in respect of any property forming part of an estate, the amount of fees then actually paid under this Act shall be deducted when a like grant is made in respect of property belonging to the same estate, identical with or including the property to which the former grant relates.

"19 D. The probate of the will, or the letters of administration of the effects, of any person deceased heretofore or hereafter granted shall be deemed valid and available by his executors or administrators for recovering, transferring or assigning any moveable or immoveable property whereof or whereto the deceased was possessed or entitled, either wholly or partially as a trustee, notwithstanding the amount or value of such property is not included in the amount or value of the estate in respect of which a Court-fee was paid on such probate or letters of administration.

Probates declared valid as to trust-property though not covered by Court-fee.

"19 E. Where any person on applying for probate or letters of administration has estimated the estate of the deceased to be of less value than the same has afterwards proved to be, and has in consequence paid too low a Court-fee thereon, the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority of the Province in which the probate or letters has or have been granted, may, on the value of the estate of the deceased being verified by affidavit or affirmation, cause the probate or letters of administration to be duly stamped on payment of the full Court-fee which ought to have been originally paid thereon in respect of such value and of the further penalty, if the probate or letters is or are produced within one year from the date of the grant, of five times, or if it or they is or are produced after one year from such date, of twenty times, such proper Court-fee, without any deduction of the Court-fee originally paid on such probate or letters:

Provision for case where too low a Court-fee has been paid on probates, &c.

Provided that if the application be made within six months after the ascertainment of the true value of the estate and the discovery that too low a Court-fee was at first paid on the probate or letters, and if the said Authority is satisfied that such fee was paid in consequence of a mistake or of its not being known at the time that some particular part of the estate belonged to the deceased, and without any intention of fraud or to delay the payment of the proper Court-fee, the said Authority may remit the said penalty, and cause the probate or letters to be duly stamped on payment only of the sum wanting to make up the fee which should have been at first paid thereon.

"19 F. In case of letters of administration on which too low a Court-fee has been paid at first, the said Authority shall not cause the same to be duly stamped in manner aforesaid until the administrator has given such security to the Court by which the letters of administration have been granted as ought by law to have been given on the granting thereof in case the full value of the estate of the deceased had been then ascertained.

Administrator to give proper security before letters stamped under section 19 E.

"19 G. Where too low a Court-fee has been paid on any probate or letters of administration in consequence of any mistake, or of its not being known at the time that some particular part of the estate belonged to the deceased, if any executor or administrator acting under such probate or letters does not, within six months after the first day of April, 1875, or after the discovery of the mistake, or of any effects not known at the time to have belonged to the deceased, apply to the said Authority and pay what is wanting to make up the Court-fee which ought to have been paid at first on such probate or letters, he shall forfeit the sum of one thousand rupees and also a further sum at the rate of ten rupees per cent. on the amount of the sum wanting to make up the proper Court-fee.

Executors, &c., not paying full Court-fee on probates, &c., within six months after discovery of underpayment.

"19 H. The provisions of sections 19 A to 19 G (both inclusive) shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to certificates granted under Act No. XL of 1858 (for making better provision for the care of the persons and property of Minors in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal) or Act No. XX of 1864 (for making better provision for the care of the persons and property of Minors in the Presidency of Bombay) and to the holders of such certificates."

Sections 19 A to 19 G applied to certificates under Acts XL of 1858 and XX of 1864.

SUIT NO. 411 OF 1874.

Seth Arratoon Apcar and others,

Anundololl Doss and Nundololl Doss and others.

1st.—No person is to advance a less sum than what shall be fixed by the Registrar.

2nd.—The highest bidder is to be the purchaser, provided that the Registrar shall consider that a sufficient sum has been offered; and if any dispute arise as to the last or highest bidding for any lot, the property shall be put up again at the former bidding and resold.

3rd.—Each purchaser is, at the time of sale, to subscribe his name and address to his bidding, and the Abstract of Title and all written notices and communications and summons are to be deemed duly delivered to and served upon the purchaser by being left for him at such address, unless or until he is represented by an attorney.

4th.—Each purchaser is, at the time of sale, to pay a deposit of 25 per cent. on the amount of his purchase-money to the Registrar, otherwise the lot shall be put up again and resold.

5th.—The Registrar will, after the sale, proceed to certify the result, and such certificate will, within 14 days after the sale, be filed by and at the expense of the plaintiffs, and in case of their neglect, the purchaser is to be at liberty to file the same and to retain the costs out of the purchase-money.

6th.—The plaintiff is, within seven days after the sale, to deliver to the purchaser or his solicitor an abstract of the title of the property purchased by him for the purpose of enabling him to prepare the conveyance.

7th.—Each purchaser shall take the property with the title disclosed in the abstract of title, which may be seen at the office of Mr. A. Carapiet, Attorney for the plaintiffs, on any day before the sale, and will be produced at the sale.

8th.—Each purchaser is, under an order to be obtained by him [or in case of his neglect by the plaintiff at the cost of the purchaser] upon application to the court or a judge in chambers, to pay the amount of his purchase-money to the Comptroller-General of Accounts for the time being of the Government of India, and the Secretary and Treasurer for the time being of the Bank of Bengal, with the privity of the Accountant-General of this Court, to the credit of the suit within one month from the day of sale, and if the same is not so paid, then the purchaser is to pay interest on his purchase-money at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum from the end of one month from the day of sale to the day on which the same is actually paid, and upon payment of the purchase-money in manner aforesaid, the purchaser is to be entitled to possession and to the rents and profits from the day of such payment. The outgoings previous to the day of such payment are not to be paid by him.

9th.—Upon payment of the purchase-money as above mentioned, the plaintiffs shall execute a proper conveyance to the purchaser of the property purchased by him. Such conveyance shall be prepared by and registered at the expense of the purchaser, and tendered and left by him at the office of Mr. Carapiet, the plaintiffs' solicitor, for execution by the plaintiffs, the draft having been previously submitted for approval.

10th.—The plaintiffs have no other deeds or muniments of title in their possession or power than those mentioned in the abstract of title, and the purchaser shall not be entitled to call for the production or make any objection on account of the non-production of any other deeds or muniments of title.

11th.—If any error or misstatement shall appear to have been made in the description of the property, or any other errors whatever shall appear in the particulars of sale, such error or misstatement is not to annul the sale, nor entitle the purchaser to be discharged from his purchase or to compensation.

12th.—If the purchaser shall not pay his purchase-money at the time above specified, or at any other time which may be named in any order for that purpose, and in all other respects perform these conditions, an order may be made by the court or a judge in chambers for resale of the property and for payment by the purchaser of the deficiency (if any) in the price which may be obtained upon such resale, and of all costs and expenses occasioned by such default.

13th.—As Seth Arratoon Apcar (one of the plaintiffs) is residing in England, such conveyance, to be executed under these conditions, shall be executed and registered on his behalf by his attorney in Calcutta duly authorized to execute and register the same.

14th.—The plaintiffs being mortgagees, shall enter into no other covenant than that they have not encumbered.

15th.—The premises in Little Russel Street and the premises in Harrington Street are held wholly under the same title. The purchaser of the premises in Little Russel Street, being the largest in value of the said two premises, shall be entitled to the possession of the muniments of title relating to both the said premises, but such purchaser shall enter into the usual covenants with the purchaser of the premises in Harrington Street for the production and furnishing copies of the said muniments of title. The deed containing any such covenants as aforesaid, and the copies of muniments of title to be furnished as aforesaid, shall be prepared and furnished at the cost of the covenantees.

16th.—The premises in No. 2, Little Russel Street, being the largest in value of the three several premises comprised in the Indenture of Mortgage, the purchaser of the said premises, No. 2, Little Russel Street, shall, after the sale of all the said premises, be entitled to the custody of the said Indenture of Mortgage; but such purchaser shall enter into the usual covenants with the purchasers of the said other premises for the production and furnishing copies of the said Indenture of Mortgage. The deeds containing any such covenants as aforesaid, and the copies to be furnished as aforesaid, shall be prepared and furnished at the cost of the covenantees. (135—2)

 The Rig-Veda, the oldest book of Indian literature, has very properly been made one of the principal class-books for those who study Sanskrit in the schools and colleges in India, and though at present a scholar-like knowlege of the Vedic hymns is in the examinations required of the more advanced students only, yet, as soon as editions, translations, grammars, and dictionaries shall have rendered the study of these ancient documents more accessible, I doubt not that the time will come when no one in India will call himself a Sanskrit scholar who cannot construe the hymns of the ancient Rishis of his country.—Extract from Preface.

REGISTRATION OF MAHOMEDAN MARRIAGES AND DIVORCES.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER moved that the Bill to provide for the voluntary Registration of Mahomedan Marriages and Divorces be further considered in order to the settlement of its clauses. As far as he was aware, only one clause remained to be considered, that of which the consideration was deferred at the ast meeting of the Council. It was a proposal that at the commencement of section 1 the following words be inserted:—

"This Act extends, in the first instance, to the territories for the time being under the government of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, except Behar and Orissa:

But the Lieutenant-Governor may, by notification in the Calcutta Gazette, extend it to Behar and Orissa."

The HON'BLE NAWAB SYED ASHGAR ALI said he had received copies of three memorials on the subject of this Bill since the last meeting of the Council: one, a memorial of certain Mahomedans of Bengal and Behar; one from Arrah and one from certain inhabitants of Chinsurah and Hooghly; also a memorandum by Moonshee Ameer Ali, and a petition from a Kazi of Tirhoot. He would refrain from speaking on the motion before the Council until such time as three other memorials from some Mahomedan gentlemen of Sarun, Monghyr, and Tirhoot, which he was informed were about to be sent in, had been received. [HIS HONOR the PRESIDENT intimated that he had just received those petitions.] There were other memorials besides these, which he understood were to be presented to the Council from Mahomedan gentlemen in other places; and until they had been presented, he would refrain from speaking on the subject. He would, however, in accordance with the wishes which had been expressed to him by certain Persian gentlemen resident in Calcutta, move as an amendment that the further consideration of the Bill be postponed for a period of from two to six months, in order to enable them to prepare and present their memorials, which were not yet ready.

HIS HONOR the PRESIDENT said that the memorials to which reference had just been made were an additional one from the Behar Province, which was very much the same as the one which had already been circulated to the Council; one from Monghyr, and another from Tirhoot. Two of these memorials were accompanied by an English translation, and the other was without any translation. There were two petitions signed by residents of Behar, one of which was accompanied by a translation, and the other was not so accompanied; but he believed that they were almost identical, so that the one translation would answer for both of them. Then there was one memorial from Tirhoot in English, and one from Monghyr, which apparently had no translation. The Behar and Tirhoot memorials were accompanied by translations, but the Monghyr one was not. These memorials were all, he believed, exactly to the same effect as those which had been presented to the Council. He believed they were framed under some misapprehension, as they expressly stated that the Bill would interfere with their religious institutions, when it was well known that the Bill distinctly provided that it was not to do so.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said he believed that the Government and the Council had already as fully before them the means of knowing what was the feeling regarding this Bill as they would have six months or twelve months hence, and therefore he did not think that any further delay would put them in a better position than that in which they now were.

The HON'BLE MR. HOGG said he somewhat dissented from the remark which had just been made, that the Council had before them all possible information they were likely to be possessed of after a postponement of six months. The Council were in somewhat of an awkward position. When permission was asked to introduce this Bill, the hon'ble member on his left, who sat in the Council somewhat in the position of a representative of the Mahomedan community, supported the introduction of the Bill, and said that the Bill was one which would receive the approbation of the Mahomedans of Bengal, and so doubtless the Members of the Council (certainly MR. HOGG himself) were not prepared to offer any opposition to the Bill. This was particularly the case as regards himself, he not being acquainted with the feelings of the Mahomedans in Eastern Bengal, never having served in those districts. Now, when the Bill was in an advanced stage, we found the hon'ble member himself opposing the progress of the Bill, and saying that it was opposed to the views of the Mahomedan community generally, and particularly by those in Behar and Orissa. He could understand the Magistrates of the districts in Eastern Bengal coming forward and asking the Government in the Legislative Department to pass a Bill compelling the registration of marriages and divorces. But certainly, in the absence of the arguments upon which the request was based, he was unable to understand upon what grounds they thought a permissive Bill, if not supported by the Mahomedan population of Eastern Bengal, would have the effect they desired it to attain. The letters from the Magistrates of the districts in Eastern Bengal had not been placed before the Council; but perhaps the hon'ble member in charge of the Bill might favour the Council with information as to how a permissive Bill was likely to work the end desired by the Magistrate of Furreedpore and the other Eastern districts.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said he really did not know that he could explain anything more than what had already been laid before the Council in the earlier stages of the Bill. Certainly for the purposes for which the Magistrates wanted the Bill, a compulsory Bill would have been more effective. That might be granted. But then came another consideration; and certainly the conclusion he came to was that the attempt to pass a compulsory Bill through the Council, and to get that Bill assented to in higher quarters, would be futile. The attempt was made some years ago. A Bill for compulsory registration was introduced by Syed Azumooddeen, but it was dropped at once because, as MR. DAMPIER understood, there was such an outcry against it on the part of the Mahomedan community. The objection they felt to a compulsory Bill was that it would be an interference with their religion. He for one should disapprove of such a measure, because it would raise something more like a reasonable opposition from the Mahomedan community than the opposition which was now raised. The opposition which was now made seemed to him founded upon a misunderstanding of the scope of the Bill, and really did not apply to it. Still he would always rather give in to a prejudice, even though he himself considered it an unreasonable one, if he had no object in acting against it than fly in the face of those who entertained it. It was believed that in Eastern Bengal, where the shoe pinched, the people would avail themselves of a permissive Bill, and a permissive Bill would go further towards attaining the object in view than no Bill at all.

The HON'BLE MR. RIVERS THOMPSON said he understood that the question before the Council was (on the motion of the hon'ble member opposite) that the Bill be postponed for six months for further consideration. He was quite prepared to oppose that motion and support the hon'ble member in charge of the Bill in wishing that the Bill should now be proceeded with. The Council were aware how in other places different methods were adopted to oppose a Bill by moving for its postponement on various grounds; but this was the very first time in his experience that opportunity was taken of opposing a Bill in this Council by the presentation of petitions and remonstrances at the eleventh hour, when the Bill was ready to pass; and such a course was especially unreasonable with reference to a Bill which had been before the public and the Council for nearly eighteen months. It was quite clear, if the Bill was to be postponed on such representations, that there was scarcely any Bill that could be passed. In large provinces like these it was very easy to get up petitions; it was very easy to put forward objections on the ground of religious interference, which was a very difficult argument to deal with in a Council constituted like this; but when these were brought forward almost on the day on which the Bill was to be passed, he did not think that there was justification for such a proceeding. And considering that the present Bill was purely permissive, and that it was needed for the benefit of the Mahomedan community in the Eastern Districts, he did not think that because the people of Behar objected to it and did not want to use it, the proposal for the postponement of the Bill was one which should be entertained.

It appeared to him that the opposition generally to the introduction of the Bill had arisen from parts of Behar. It was not certain—at any rate it was not clearly established—that that opposition prevailed throughout the province of Behar; but there might be parts of the Behar districts, and of some districts in Bengal, in which objections existed to the introduction of the measure. It seemed to him, therefore, that the form in which the section before the Council should be enacted would be improved by adopting the form which we had in another Act of the Council—in other Acts he might say—as regards the general manner of the introduction of the Act, as it left the power in the hands of the Executive Government as to when and where a particular Act should be applied;—not that the operation of the Act should be excluded from large provinces or particular divisions of the country till it had been extended thereto, but that it should be in the power of the Government, by a notification in the Gazette, to extend it to any districts, and sometimes more minutely to sub-divisions of districts. That, he thought, would be a better form in which to put the amendment proposed by the hon'ble mover of the Bill, and therefore he would move that the following words be introduced at the commencement of Section 1:—

"This Act shall commence and take effect in those districts in the provinces subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal to which the said Lieutenant-Governor shall extend it by an order published in the Calcutta Gazette; and thereupon this Act shall commence and take effect in the districts named in such order on the day which shall be in such order provided for the commencement thereof."

By this means it would be competent to the Lieutenant-Governor, if he found that the Act should be introduced in a district like Mozufferpore, to extend it to that district without introducing it in other parts of Behar, in the same way as the Act might be extended to a particular district or districts of Bengal without introducing it in the rest of the province; and a further advantage of the amendment he proposed was that it would leave the decision of the question to the Government, who, in a matter like this, were best able to ascertain by reference to their local officers the need for the introduction of the Act and the general feeling of the people in regard to it.

The question that the further consideration of the Bill be postponed for a period of from two to six months was put and negatived.

The Hon'ble Mr. Thompson's amendment was then agreed to.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 3rd April.

REPORT ON THE CHARITABLE DISPENSARIES IN THE LOWER PROVINCES OF BENGAL FOR THE YEAR 1873.

MEDICAL.

Calcutta, the 30th March 1875.

READ—

A letter from the Surgeon-General, Indian Medical Department, No. 892½, dated 25th September 1874, submitting the Report on the Charitable Dispensaries in the Lower Provinces of Bengal for the year 1873.

Read again—

The Report for 1872.

UNDER the system adopted in 1872, the reports by Civil Surgeons on dispensaries are now submitted to the Surgeon-General through the local civil authorities, with a view to their taking prompt measures to remedy defects which may be thus brought to their notice, and to the Medical Department being kept in full possession of the views and wishes of the officers who have the best means of judging of the requirements of their several districts. While this arrangement has the advantage of enabling the Medical Department to dispose effectively of all matters within its competence, to deal with which may seem to require orders before the submission of its general report to Government, it is open to the objection that delay is apt to occur in Commissioners and Magistrates forwarding the district reports with their remarks. The Surgeon-General explains that on the present occasion the late submission of his report is due to this cause, and not to any remissness on the part of medical officers; and he asks that such instructions may be issued to civil officers as will obviate, so far as possible, this inconvenience. Admitting that in the earlier months of the past year the engrossing nature of their work in connection with the famine left civil officers little leisure for other work, the Lieutenant-Governor yet thinks that the instance mentioned by Dr. Campbell Brown, where one Civil Surgeon's report was detained by the local civil authorities for two months, and was then only forwarded, on inquiry being made for it, with the Magistrate's and Commissioner's countersignature, and without any remarks, is one which should not have occurred, and which, it is hoped, will not occur again. He desires that in any such case of delay in future, an explanation of its cause be forwarded with the report to the Surgeon-General for the information of Government. Although the facts are becoming somewhat out of date, still they will be found to contribute materials for forming conclusions which will, the Lieutenant-Governor believes, be found both interesting and instructive.

2. Public Health.—The deficient rainfall, and the consequent absence of inundations, which were the cause of so much anxiety in 1873, are shown by the present report to have been accompanied by a very general distribution of cholera throughout these provinces. It affected the same towns and districts as in 1872, but with much greater severity. Small-pox too was present in most districts, but assumed an epidemic form chiefly among the hills and uplands of Western Bengal and Chota Nagpore. In the Burdwan Division the endemic fever continued to be widely diffused, but was less intense than in former years. Its ravages were, however, extended to tracts to the south and west, which had hitherto been exempt from it. The deep and permanent effect it has produced on the health of the people has been manifested by a great increase in the number of persons coming under treatment for spleen disease. Tirhoot, the district most affected by the scarcity, was healthy on the whole; but there was much sickness in the Gya and Shahabad districts. In the Eastern districts and Assam the ordinary autumnal fevers were prevalent, but there was nothing there in the medical history of the year of an exceptional character.

3. Sick treated.—Large as is the provision made by Government, aided by the benevolence of private individuals and local committees, for the medical treatment of the sick poor in these provinces, there is reason to fear that it yet falls far short of the requirements of the people. It is in fact, the Surgeon-General remarks, only in the fever-stricken districts and a few others, as Julpigoree and Darjeeling, and some large towns, as Dacca and Patna, that the amount of relief afforded can be said to be appreciable in relation to the population. The Lieutenant-Governor dwells upon this fact as proving, despite past and present success, how very much remains to be done before anything like adequate medical relief can be said to be afforded to so large a population; also as proving how large a field still remains to be occupied by the native medical profession. At the special endemic dispensaries maintained chiefly at Government expense in the districts of Burdwan, Hooghly, Beerbhoom, and Midnapore, no less than 944,717 persons are said to have been treated during the year. Adding 241,557 who received medical aid in the Calcutta institutions, and 618,710 at the provincial hospitals and dispensaries, the grand total of persons treated during the year was 1,804,984. These figures are not relied upon as representing accurately so many distinct cases; but they are accepted as showing, by comparison with the returns of previous years, the increasing usefulness of the medical institutions of the country.

4. Endemic Dispensaries.—The reappearance of the Burdwan fever in Midnapore towards the close of the year under review, after a temporary pause, necessitated an increase in the number of endemic dispensaries, of which 17 were open in March 1874. In Hooghly and Beerbhoom the disease abated; in the former district it was found necessary to retain but one dispensary, and in the latter the number was reduced from 15 to 10 by the close of the year. In Burdwan, too, the number was reduced from 56 to 48, but in this district the disease prevailed very extensively throughout the year, though its virulence was somewhat diminished. The number of subordinate medical native doctors and hospital assistants specially employed on fever relief at the close of the year was 17 in Midnapore, 13 in Beerbhoom, and 45 in Burdwan, where 9 Assistant Surgeons and 2 Surgeons were also engaged. This medical staff was actively employed throughout the year in tending the sick, distributing medicines, and in providing food relief for the poor. The Lieutenant-Governor is confident that through their exertions much good has been accomplished. He notices with pleasure the testimony borne by the medical authorities to the general good conduct of the subordinate medical officers, and it is gratifying to him to have to acknowledge the zeal and devotion shown by Dr. French in the discharge of his arduous and important duties.

5. Permanent Dispensaries.—In his present report, it has been the grateful task of the Surgeon-General to bring prominently to notice the large increase in the number of new dispensaries established in the past compared with previous years. At the close of the year there were in all no less than 198 dispensaries in operation, of which 29 were new ones, against 170 at the close of 1872. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to acknowledge the liberality of the local subscribers and of the municipal committees in these particular cases. Excluding new dispensaries which have not yet submitted any returns, it appears that in-door patients were treated in 136 institutions out of 188, the statistics of which are incorporated in the present report. The relative as well as the absolute increase in the number of dispensaries which afford relief in this shape, is shown by the fact that the percentage borne by them to the whole was 72, against 68 in the preceding year.

6. Attendance.—The best testimony to the progress which the local hospitals and dispensaries are making in public favour is afforded by the large increase observable yearly in the number of patients who have recourse to them for treatment. In the year under review these amounted to no less than 618,710, of whom 20,240 were in-patients and 598,470 out-patients. The corresponding figures in the previous year were 18,118 in-patients, 439,177 out-patients, and 457,295 in all. The Lieutenant-Governor cannot omit any opportunity of impressing upon all the authorities concerned the importance of managing these institutions so as to win the confidence and regard of the mass of the people.

7. In-patients.—Of the 20,240 in-patients admitted, 12,511 are said to have been cured, 1,670 relieved, 3,284 died, and 1,834 were otherwise accounted for. The death-rate was thus 16·22 per cent., or somewhat greater than that for two years previous. More than one-half the mortality was due to cholera, diarrhœa and dysentery; fever was somewhat less fatal than in the previous year. In addition to the large number of persons whose admission to hospital was due to these diseases and to spleen, no less than 16·8 per cent. of the whole were sufferers from injuries.

8. Out-patients.—No trustworthy statistics are attainable of the effect of medical treatment upon out-patients. Of the whole number who attended the dispensaries, 20·04, or slightly more than in the previous year, were suffering from fever; 11·46 from spleen; 5·63 from rheumatism, and 4·95 from goitre. The figures submitted by the Surgeon-General to show the great increase of late years in the proportion of spleen cases treated, bear sad testimony to the ravages of malarious fevers, especially in the districts of the Burdwan Division.

9. Surgical Operations.—The total number of major surgical operations performed was 2,045, against 1,559 in 1872; and of minor operations 25,889, against 18,273. In addition, 1,635 cases of fracture were treated, against 1,413 in the previous year. The increase in the amount of useful work which these figures indicate is very satisfactory, and will meet its best recognition in the increase in the popularity of the institutions where the largest amount of suffering and misery has been relieved. There is probably no class of cases in which European science tells so decisively as in this; and the Lieutenant-Governor will look forward to seeing an annual increase.

10. Supply of Medicines.—Next to the benefit which the people may be expected to receive from skilful surgical treatment, is to be ranked that which must flow from a liberal supply to them of the more useful European medicines. That this has been afforded liberally is proved by the figures, which show that the total expenditure on medical stores by Government was Rs. 2,26,634, against Rs. 1,81,357 in 1872. Of this Rs. 50,000 represents the value of forms and medicines supplied to the Calcutta institutions, Rs. 1,31,882 the value of medical stores supplied to endemic dispensaries, and the rest what was supplied to other dispensaries. The results as regards the sale of medicines at cost price are rather discouraging; the total amount realized having been Rs. 8,928 only, representing chiefly the value of quinine. The Lieutenant-Governor has noticed that a very varying amount of success has attended the experiment in different districts, and this he thinks must in a great measure be attributed to the varying amount of interest taken in it by local officers. The matter is one to which he attaches much importance, as it is impossible that Government should continue to comply freely with the yearly increasing demands on it for medicines, for which that portion of the community which can afford the very slight expense should be willing to pay. He trusts that local officers when on tour will be able to induce the principal inhabitants of villages which are much visited by fever, to purchase and keep for distribution to their poorer neighbours, when required, a small supply of quinine. He also thinks it worth the consideration of the Medical Department whether more success might not attend the scheme were the medicines to be supplied to sub-divisional Magistrates generally made up for sale in much smaller quantities than is now the practice.

11. Income of Dispensaries.—The income of dispensaries, excluding the cost of medicines supplied by Government, was Rs. 3,10,886, or Rs. 19,285 more than in the previous year. Active measures have been taken of late to secure the fulfilment by local committees of the conditions on which their dispensaries receive aid from Government. As a result, in forty-one instances only were the subscriptions short of the amount guaranteed, and the loss was fully counterbalanced by the excess of subscriptions over the guaranteed amount in other cases. The re-classification of dispensaries, which has been generally carried out under the new rules, has resulted in a considerable diminution of the share of their cost which falls upon Government. This amounts now to only 34·31 per cent. of the whole. The Lieutenant-Governor acknowledges the interest which district officers have evinced in the welfare of dispensaries of late. There is a satisfactory increase observable in the contributions received from the native community, which amounted to Rs. 98,973; and Rs. 21,772 were contributed by Europeans. The Lieutenant-Governor notices with pleasure the increase reported in the number and the amount of contributions received from municipal bodies. Considering the great demands upon these for sanitary improvements, they cannot be expected to give very much; but what is given he accepts as indicative of a desire on their part to fulfil their duties so far as the means at their disposal admit. At the same time Sir Richard Temple is constrained to say that at some few of the dispensaries which he has visited, he found the amount of public support small in every way,—small whether in regard to the unavoidable expenses of the charity, or to the means of the comparatively affluent people, or to the actual needs of the sick among the poorer classes, for the relief of whose sickness the upper classes ought to contribute.

12. Expenditure in Dispensaries.—Excluding investments and the value of medicines supplied by Government, the total expenditure of the dispensaries amounted to Rs. 2,99,178. The dieting of the sick was economically provided for, and miscellaneous expenditure was closely regulated. While there was some falling off in the interest realized from previous investments, no less than Rs. 18,846 was invested during the year by various dispensaries—a larger sum than in five preceding years. Still the balance in hand at the close of the year amounted to Rs. 88,595, a sum which the Lieutenant-Governor concurs with the Surgeon-General in thinking unnecessarily large. He would be glad to see part of it utilized in providing increased accommodation for in-patients, which, as pointed out by the Surgeon-General, need not be of a costly character. Where there is no present occasion for an increase of expenditure, steps should be taken to invest the surplus balance in Government securities in cases where it is sufficient for the purpose.

13. Inspection.—The extent to which the dispensaries were inspected during the year under review, as shown in the table submitted with the report, is very satisfactory; and the Lieutenant-Governor considers the large number of these institutions which were visited by Dr. Francis particularly creditable to him. His Honor notices with pleasure the testimony which is borne by the Surgeon-General to the excellent service rendered by Surgeon-Majors Cayley and French, and by Surgeons Mathew, Thompson, Greene, and Barker in their respective districts. In Dr. Buckle, whose last reports are submitted by the Surgeon-General, Government has lost a tried and valued servant, to whose experience and judgment it could look for aid in every difficulty, whose past services had gained him an honourable position in his profession and in the public esteem, and whose untimely death Sir Richard Temple deplores in common with a large circle of his friends. To Dr. Campbell Brown himself the Lieutenant-Governor desires again to convey the acknowledgments of Government for valuable services during the year under report.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Surgeon-General, Indian Medical Department, for information; also that a copy be forwarded to all Commissioners for information and communication to district officers.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

RIVERS THOMPSON,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

PART III.

Act of the Bengal Council.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third Publication.]

THE following Act, passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council, received the assent of His Honor on the 10th March 1875; and having been assented to by His Excellency the Governor-General on the 15th idem, is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT No. II OF 1875.

An Act to amend the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act, 1872.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act, 1872; It is enacted as follows :—

Repeal of sections of Bengal Act II of 1872.

1. Sections nine, ten, and fourteen of the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act 1872, are hereby repealed.

Amendment of Section 7 of Bengal Act II of 1872.

2. For section seven of the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act, 1872, the following shall be substituted (namely) :—

"7. Any person proposing to use any land for the purposes of a jute warehouse within the town of Calcutta shall send to the Justices a plan of such land and all the buildings thereon prepared in such manner as the Justices may direct, and it shall be within the discretion of the Justices at a special meeting to grant or refuse a license to establish the same.

Every license for a jute warehouse to be granted under this section shall be subject to the following conditions, namely : —

(1) That no loose jute, jute rejections or cuttings, or cotton shall be stored, or screwed, or pressed, save within a building constructed of such materials, and on such a plan as may be approved of by the Justices.

(2.) That no loose jute, jute rejections or cuttings, or cotton shall be combed or dried except within an enclosure approved of by the Justices.

Provided that the top or roof of any building or of any hut shall not be used for such combing or drying.

(3.) That space shall be reserved on land appertaining to the jute warehouse for the loading or unloading of carts.

(4.) That no portion of the jute warehouse shall be used as a residence, and no artificial light (other than one duly and thoroughly protected) or lucifer matches shall be introduced therein, and no person shall smoke therein.

(5.) That the jute warehouse shall at all times be open to the inspection of officers duly appointed by the Justices.

(6.) That the engines and furnaces used in the jute warehouse shall be placed as may be considered necessary by the Justices.

(7.) That an annual fee, as the Justices at a special meeting may think fit, shall be imposed in respect thereof at one of the following rates (namely) :—

Rupees	..	..	1,000
,,	..	..	750
,,	..	..	500

and shall be paid in such instalments as the Justices may direct.

In fixing the amount of fee to be paid in respect of any jute warehouse, the Justices at such special meeting shall have regard to the annual value thereof as it is for the time assessed, to the payment of municipal taxes, to the size and position of the jute warehouse, to the number and excellence of the pressing machines erected, or proposed to be erected, in such jute warehouse, and to the probable income derived from such jute warehouse by its owner or occupier.

The Justices may from time to time, as they shall think fit, at a special meeting, alter the amount of the fee, in accordance with the rates hereinbefore mentioned, to be paid in respect of any jute warehouse."

Certain provisions of last section may be applicable to old licenses.

3. The Justices shall, at the option of the holder of any license heretofore granted for any jute warehouse, exclude from the conditions of such license so much of clause (1) of section seven of the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act, 1872, as relates to combing and drying, and also clause (3) of the same section, and in lieu thereof insert clauses (2) and (4) of the same section as amended by the last preceding section of this Act.

The Justices may, from time to time, at a special meeting alter the amount of fee, in accordance with the rates heretofore specified, to be paid in respect of any jute warehouse for which a license has been heretofore granted.

On change of occupation in warehouse, occupier to give notice.

4. On a change in the occupation of any jute warehouse, the person entering into occupation of the same shall, within two weeks of his so entering into occupation, give notice in writing to the Justices of such change of occupation, and shall thereupon pay to the Justices a fee of two rupees; and his name shall accordingly be entered in such license as the occupier in the place of the name of the person going out of occupation.

If any jute warehouse is let out in portions, the person so letting it out and entitled to the rent shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be the occupier.

Cancelment or suspension of license.

5. It shall be in the discretion of the Justices at a special meeting to cancel or to suspend for such time as they shall think fit the license of any jute warehouse in respect of which any one or more of the conditions under which such license is held shall appear to them to have been broken, or in respect of which the provisions of the last preceding section have been broken.

Municipal Commissioners to have same power as the Justices.

6. In regard to any jute warehouse situated or used, or any land proposed to be used as a jute warehouse out of the town of Calcutta and within the limits of the operation of the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act, 1872, and of this Act, the powers and duties conferred and imposed by Part II of the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act, 1872 and the powers and duties conferred by this Act on the Justices, or on the Justices at a special meeting, shall be exercised and discharged by the Municipal Commissioners at a meeting within whose jurisdiction such warehouse or land is situated.

The annual fee in respect of any license granted by the said Municipal Commissioners for a jute warehouse may be at the rate of one hundred rupees, or at such other rates not exceeding one thousand rupees, or less than one hundred rupees, as the said Municipal Commissioners may direct.

The said Municipal Commissioners may from time to time, at a meeting, alter the amount of the fee to be paid in respect of any jute warehouse for which a license has been heretofore, or for which a license may hereafter, be granted.

Addition to Section 25 of Bengal Act II of 1872.

7. To section twenty-five of the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act, 1872, the following words shall be added (namely) :—

"and shall be applied by the Justices for the benefit of the town of Calcutta and the suburbs thereof in such manner as the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may direct; and in the case of the Municipality of Howrah, the balance of such monies after payment of the said expenses shall be paid to the credit of the Municipal Commissioners of Howrah, and shall be applied by them for the purposes of a Fire-brigade, or for such other purposes for the benefit of the Municipality of Howrah as the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may direct."

Penalty on occupier in case of breach of conditions of license.

8. Whenever any of the conditions under which a license is held in respect of any jute warehouse have been broken in such jute warehouse, the person whose name appears on the license as the occupier of such jute warehouse shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate to a penalty not exceeding one hundred rupees in respect of any one condition so broken.

Penalty on any person in case of breach of conditions of license.

Bills of the Bengal Council.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third Publication.]

THE following Bill was read in the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 13th March 1875, and was referred to a Select Committee who are to report thereon in six months:—

A Bill to make better provision for the Partition of Estates paying Revenue to Government in the Lower Provinces of the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to the Partition of Estates paying Revenue to Government; It is enacted as follows:—

Laws repealed.

1. From the date of the passing of this Act, the Regulations and Acts shown in Schedule A to this Act annexed to the extent noted against each shall cease to have effect in the territories subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, except as to the partition of any estate which shall be pending at the time of the passing of this Act. Unless as hereinafter provided, the partition of any estate which shall be pending at the time of the passing of this Act shall be proceeded with and completed in the same manner as if this Act had not been passed.

2. In this Act the following words shall have meanings as given below, except where such meaning is repugnant to the context:—

"Lieutenant-Governor" means the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal for the time being or the person acting in that capacity.

"Board" means the Board of Revenue for the provinces subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

"The Collector" means the Collector of the district on the revenue-roll of which the estate under partition, or which it is proposed to bring under partition, is borne; and shall include any officer who is generally or specially vested with the powers of a Collector for the purposes of this Act.

"Deputy Collector" includes any Assistant-Collector or Sub-Deputy Collector whom the Collector may appoint to effect a partition and allotment of assessment under this Act. All powers and functions which are assigned to a Deputy Collector by this Act may also be exercised and discharged by the Collector.

"Estate" means any land which is borne on the Registers of the Collector as liable for the payment of one and the same demand of land revenue.

"Section" means a section of this Act.

Future partitions to be made under provisions of this Act.

3. Except as directed in section all partitions of estates which shall be ordered to be made after the passing of this Act, shall be made under the provisions of this Act, whatever may be the tenure of the estate ordered to be divided.

What parties entitled to partition.

4. Subject to the provisions of the section next following and of section thirty-five every recorded proprietor of a joint undivided estate paying revenue to Government, or of any portion thereof, whether such estate is held in common tenancy or otherwise, is entitled to claim partition under this Act. Provided that such proprietor be under an engagement with Government for payment of revenue. Provided also, that no application for separation shall be entertained the result of which would be to form one or more separate estates each liable for an annual amount of land revenue less than ten rupees, until the proprietor of the share or shares which would bear such revenue agrees to the redemption, under the provisions hereinafter contained, of the amount of revenue for which his estate would be liable.

Interest alienated with special condition as to revenue liability

5. No proprietor or shareholder in an estate, and no representative of any proprietor or shareholder in an estate who, since the settlement of the estate, has alienated any portion of his interest in the estate, or any specific lands of the estate, by private contract, with the condition that the transferee shall be liable in respect of the interest acquired by him, to pay a specified portion of the land revenue for which the estate is liable, neither more nor less, shall be entitled to claim a separation under this Act of the share which he continues to hold in the estate; and no such transferee as aforesaid, and no representative of such transferee as aforesaid, shall be entitled to claim a separation of the interest he has so acquired: Provided always that a separation of such shares may be made, if each of the parties concerned agree to waive the conditions of the contract as regards the proportion of revenue for which each shareholder is liable, and to hold the estate which may be allotted to him by the partition, subject to the payment of such proportion of the total amount of land revenue for which the undivided estate is liable as may be assessed upon it by the revenue authorities under this Act.

Parties desirous of partition, to apply to Collector in writing.

6. When any one or more of the recorded proprietors of an estate, as described in the last preceding section, shall desire to have his or their shares of the estate separated, in order that he or they may hold the same as a separate property, or as separate properties, such proprietor or proprietors shall make a written application for the purpose to the Collector of the District on the Revenue Roll of which the estate is borne. Any two or more proprietors may apply to have their shares separated, and to hold the same as a joint estate.

Application to be signed, and certain particulars specified.

7. The application shall be signed by the party or parties applying for the partition, and shall supply the following information in regard to the estate sought to be divided :—

(a.) Nature of the tenure of the estate.

(b.) The names of all the co-sharers.

(c.) The nature and extent of each share, so far as the same may be known to the applicant or applicants, or can be ascertained by him or them.

(d.) The nature and extent of any undertenures in the estate, whether shikmi, patni, mokarrari, taluks under section seven of Regulation 44 of 1793, lakhiraj holdings, or as the case may be.

(e.) The nature and extent of any lands held in common by all or any of the proprietors of the estate sought to be divided, with all or any of the proprietors of other estates.

Otherwise may be rejected.

If the application does not contain the particulars above mentioned, the Collector may reject it.

Procedure of Collector o receipt of application.

8. The Collector, on the receipt of an application for partition, shall, if the application be in order, and not open to objection on the face of it, publish a notification of the same at his office, and at some conspicuous place on the estate to which the application relates, and shall invite any party in possession, who may not have joined in the application, and who may object to the partition applied for, to appear before him, either in person or by a duly constituted agent, on a day to be specified in the notification, not being less than fifteen, or more than thirty days from the date of the notification, and state his objection. If the application for partition shall not have been made by all the recorded proprietors, of the estate, notice of the application shall be served, in the manner usual in the District for serving notices of the Revenue Officers, on such of the recorded proprietors of the estate as shall not have joined in the application.

Notice to proprietors who have not joined therein.

In case of valid objection being made within time allowed, application may be refused.

9. If any objection be made to the partition by any party in possession, within the time allowed and the Collector, on a consideration of such objection, be of opinion that there is any good and sufficient reason, not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act, why the partition should be absolutely disallowed, he may refuse the application, recording the grounds of his refusal.

Procedure if question of title, or of proprietary right, be raised.

10. If the objection raise any question of title or of proprietary right, other than a question connected with a boundary dispute, which shall not appear to have been already determined by a Court of competent jurisdiction, the Collector may either decline to grant the application until the question in dispute shall have been determined by a competent Court, or he may call on the objector to give security that he will, within a month from the date of such call, bring a suit in the Civil Court to try the question of title or of proprietary right. The amount of security shall be fixed by the Collector. If no security be given within ten days, or if security having been given no order from the Civil Court to stay the division reaches the Collector by a date not later than forty days from the date of his call for security, he will proceed with the division. Provided that the objector, having failed to bring a suit within the time above allowed for the trial of his grounds of objections, shall be precluded from ever raising the same question again before any Court.

Notification on partition being ordered.

11. When the Collector, after disposing of the objections (if any) taken to the partition, shall order a partition to be made, he shall cause a notification to be published in his own office, in the District Court, at the headquarters of every sub-division within which any lands appertaining to the estate to be divided are situate, and at some conspicuous place on the estate, intimating his intention to proceed with the partition after thirty days from the date of the notification, and calling on all the proprietors of the estate to file, by a certain date, copies of their rent-rolls for the three preceding years. Provided that any two or more of such proprietors may file joint rolls. If any proprietor shall omit to file rent-rolls as above described, he shall be liable to such daily fine as the Collector, upon consideration of the case and of the circumstances in life of such proprietor, may impose until production of said rent-rolls; and such fine shall be deemed to have been imposed under the provisions of Act XX of 1848. (An Act for better enforcing the attendance of proprietors and farmers of land before Collectors of Land Revenue in the Lower Provinces of the Bengal Presidency.)

Subsequent application for separation of another share.

12. If at any time after the Collector has made an order under the last preceding section, that a partition be made, any sharer in the estate other than the original applicant for partition, shall apply for the separation of his share to be held as a separate estate, the Collector may either order that the proceedings for effecting such separation shall be carried on simultaneously with those for separating the share of the original applicant; or if he consider that such a course would entail delay in the completion of the original proceedings, he may order that the subsequent application shall not be acted on until after the proceedings for the separation of the original applicant's share shall have been completed. In the latter case all or any of the rent-rolls, measurements, and other proceedings which were taken in respect of the separation of the original applicant's share, may be adopted, as far as they are applicable, in respect of the separation of the shares as to which subsequent application has been made.

Assessment and levy of costs incurred in making partition.

13. The estimated expense of making the partition, and the allowances of the establishment necessary for the measurement and survey of the lands, for the testing of the measurement and rates, for the preparation of papers, and any other charges, shall be fixed by the Collector. The amount shall be leviable from all the proprietors of the estate in proportion to their share or interest in the same, and shall be paid under such rules as may from time to time be laid down by the Board with the sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor, and, in default of payment, may be realized as arrears of revenue. After the final completion of the partition, the Collector shall hold a proceeding declaring what the total expense has been. The account shall then be adjusted either by returning to the proprietors any sums they may have paid in excess, or by levying from them under the provisions above noted, any sums remaining due.

Officer appointed to make partition may order measurement, &c.

14. After the expiration of the period mentioned in the notification referred to in section ten the Collector may appoint a Deputy Collector to make the partition and to allot the assessment. Such officer shall examine the rent-rolls filed in accordance with the call made under the provisons of section ten, and may, if necessary, cause a measurement of all lands comprised in the estate to be made, and a rent-roll of the same to be prepared by an Amin in the manner hereinafter provided in the twenty-second and following sections.

Examination of the parties and their papers.

15. The Deputy Collector may examine any persons on solemn affirmation, in regard to the papers produced before him, whether by the proprietors, the Amin deputed to make the measurement, or otherwise. He shall also allow any shareholder to examine the papers so produced, and to take a copy of the same, and after such examination he shall hear any objections which any of the shareholders may make in respect to such papers, and shall decide whether any and, if any, which of the papers as they stand, or with such modifications as he may think necessary to direct, shall be accepted as correct for the purposes of the partition.

Option of settlement by private agreement. Procedure in case of refusal or default.

16. The Deputy Collector, on the completion of the inquiry allowed by the last preceding section, shall, on the receipt of a petition to that effect signed by all the shareholders, allow them the option of making a private partition of the estate and allotment of the public Revenue amongst themselves within such time as he may fix, or of referring the partition of the estate, and the apportionment of the public Revenue, to an arbitrator or arbitrators to be appointed by them. The Deputy Collector may also offer the parties the option of referring any point arising in the course of a partition to arbitration. If the parties having elected to make a private partition, shall fail to make such partition within the time fixed by the Deputy Collector, and shall not then apply to refer the partition to arbitrators, the Deputy Collector may allow a further period of time for the completion of the private partition, or may by a proceeding declare the attempt at a private partition to have failed, and make the partition himself. The partition and allotment of the public Revenue made by the parties, or by arbitrators appointed by them, shall be subject to the confirmation of the Collector, and the orders of the superior Revenue Authorities.

If parties cannot agree as to arbitrators, latter may be appointed by Collector.

In case of equality of votes, Collector to act as umpire.

17. If the parties apply to refer the partition of the estate, and the allotment of the public Revenue, or any point arising in the course of the partition, to arbitration, but cannot agree amongst themselves as to the arbitrator or arbitrators to be appointed, the Collector may, with the consent of all the shareholders, appoint two or more persons to be arbitrators in the case. If the arbitrators are equally divided in opinion, the Deputy Collector shall act as umpire, and the partition made by the arbitrator or arbitrators with whom the Deputy Collector shall concur shall be the partition in the case. The same rule shall apply in respect of any point arising in the course of a partition, which shall be referred to arbitration.

Appointment in place of arbitrator refusing, or being unable, to act.

18. If any person, on being appointed an arbitrator, shall refuse to act, or, after accepting the appointment, shall die or become incapable of acting, another person shall be appointed arbitrator in his stead, in the same manner in which the first person was appointed.

Powers of Collector with regard to arbitrators.

19. After the arbitrators shall have accepted the appointment, the Deputy Collector shall transmit the whole of the papers to them, and it shall be competent to the Deputy Collector to exercise towards the arbitrators the same powers and authority for securing their attendance, and the due completion of their award, which he is competent to exercise towards witnesses summoned before him when acting judicially, for the purpose of compelling them tor attend and give evidence. The Deputy Collector shall also fix a time within which the arbitrato or arbitrators shall deliver the paper of partition. On sufficient cause shown, the Deputy Collector may extend such period.

Particulars to be specified in partition paper.

20. The arbitrators shall deliver a full and complete paper of partition, in such form as may be prescribed by the Board for partitions made by the Collector or Deputy Collector.

Remuneration of arbitrators.

21. The arbitrators, on delivering the paper of partition as aforesaid, shall be entitled to reasonable fees for their services, the amount to be fixed by the Collector, and to be considered as expenses of making the partition under section thirteen.

In default of award by first arbitrators, partition may be referred to others.

22. If the paper of partition be not delivered within the time fixed by the Collector, or within any further period to which the time may have been extended, the Collector may order that the partition shall be referred to another arbitrator or arbitrators, to be chosen in the same manner and subject to the same rules as the first.

Detailed measurement may be ordered by the Deputy Collector.

Who shall summon proprietors by proclamation to attend proceedings.

23. If the partition of the estate is not made by the parties themselves, or by arbitration, under the foregoing rules, and if a detailed measurement is deemed necessary, the Deputy Collector shall issue a proclamation at the malcutcherry of the estate or at the mal-cutcherry of each shareholder who may have a separate malcutcherry on the estate, and in a conspicuous place in one or more villages appertaining to the estate, requiring the several proprietors of the estate to attend in person, or by agent, upon the Amin deputed to make the measurement during the time that such measurement is being made, and shall transmit to the Amin for his guidance the rent-roll accepted as correct under section fourteen. If no one of the rent-rolls filed by the shareholders appears correct, the Deputy Collector may order the Amin to ascertain for himself the rates at which each parcel of land is held.

Duty of Amin.

24. The Amin's duty will be limited to making a detailed measurement and map corresponding; to preparing a rent-roll and such other necessary papers as may be prescribed by the Board.

Deputy Collector to test Amin's work.

25. The Deputy Collector shall, as soon as possible after completion of the Amin's work, test on the spot that officer's measurements and rent-roll, and shall, after such testing, accept or correct or reject altogether one or both. If he reject, he may allow the same Amin to do the work over again, unless the error be one of measurement, in which case the measurement work must be done by another Amin.

Notification of date for deciding the mode of partition.

26. When the Collector is finally satisfied that any measurement papers and rent-rolls before him are correct, he shall fix a day on which to determine the manner of partition, and shall issue a notification to that effect, calling on all the shareholders to be present. Such notification shall be published at the Collector's office, the Deputy Collector's office, at the Head-quarters of every sub-division within which any lands appertaining to the estate under partition are situated, and at some conspicuous place in one or more (if any) of the largest villages on the estate, and, as far as possible, a notice to the same effect shall be served on each proprietor or his agent. The date fixed in such notification shall be not less than fifteen, nor more than thirty days after the order for issue of the notification. It shall be lawful, however, for the Deputy Collector, any time before issue of the notification, if all or a majority of the shareholders are present, to hold a proceeding stating what shareholders are present, and to proceed to make a partition in the manner enjoined in the next section, without issuing any notification.

Deputy Collector to settle mode of partition.

27. On the day fixed, the Deputy Collector shall consult orally each shareholder present, and shall endeavour as far as possible, with the concurrence of the shareholders, to arrange a mode of partition which shall be in accordance with the requirements of this Act. After hearing what each shareholder present may urge, the Deputy Collector shall hold a proceeding, ordering the partition to be made in the manner he thinks best with regard to the position of the lands to be allotted to each sharer, and shall then make over the papers to the Amin or to some officer of his own or other establishment, to have all the details of the allotment, as ordered, carried out.

Division of lands held in common.

Proviso.

28. When the lands forming the estate are held partly in common, and partly in severalty, the portion of the common land falling by the partition to the shares of the several co-sharers shall be added to the lands held by them in severalty, and the several estates thus formed shall be assessed and declared separate estates. Provided that it shall be in the discretion of the Collector to cause any transfer of lands, agreed to by the parties, to be made, and the

63. Control of Collector's proceedings under Act.

64. In the execution of the duties vested in the Board by this Act, the Board shall be guided by such orders or instructions as they may from time to time receive from the local Government, to whom they shall apply in all cases which shall appear to the Board not to have been provided for by the existing law.

Board of Revenue to be guided by instructions of local Government.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

IT has been a general subject of complaint for many years that the procedure laid down by the existing law for effecting the partition of estates is so dilatory, and gives so much opportunity for delaying the completion of partitions by advancing frivolous objections, as to be a serious cause of harassment to those who desire to have partitions carried out.

These defects in the existing law were recognized by the Governor-General of India in Council twelve years ago, and remedied, as far as the North-Western Provinces are concerned, by the passing of Act XIX of 1863, on which the present Bill is principally founded.

The opportunity has been taken to express the intention of the legislature distinctly on certain points which have been the subject of doubt, discussion, and litigation under the existing laws.

In Tirhoot and some other districts, in which the greatest use is made of the partition law, estates are being sub-divided into minute properties liable for trifling demands of land revenue. If the process continues, the number of estates from which the revenue must be collected will be so great, and the amount to be realized from each so petty, as materially to enhance the cost of collecting the revenue, if not to endanger its safety. The present Bill therefore provides that no shareholder out of a number who hold an estate subject to joint liability for payment of revenue shall have a right to claim the separation of his share from the rest, and to hold it as a separate estate, if the result of such separation would be to form any separate estate which is liable for an annual amount of revenue less than ten rupees; unless the proprietor of the share which would bear such revenue shall agree to redeem the revenue for which his share, when separated, will be liable by a payment of twenty-five times the amount of the annual revenue.

and make and set up suitable land-marks, level-marks, and water-gauges;

and do all other acts necessary for the proper prosecution of any enquiry relating to any existing or projected canal under the charge of the said Canal Officer:

and may also enter upon any land, building, or water-course on account of which any water-rate is chargeable, for the purpose of inspecting or regulating the use of the water supplied, or of measuring the lands irrigated thereby or chargeable with a water-rate, and of doing all things necessary for the proper regulation and management of such canal:

Power to inspect and regulate water-supply.

Provided that, if such Canal Officer or person proposes to enter into any building or enclosed court or garden attached to a dwelling-house not supplied with water flowing from any canal, he shall previously give the occupier of such building, court, or garden at least seven days' notice in writing of his intention to do so.

Notice of intended entry into houses.

In every case of entry under this section, the Canal Officer shall, at the time of such entry, tender compensation for any damage which may be occasioned by any proceeding under this section; and in case of dispute as to the sufficiency of the amount so tendered, he shall forthwith refer the same for decision by the Collector, and such decision shall be final.

10. In case of any accident happening or being apprehended to a canal, any Divisional Canal Officer or any person acting Power to enter for repairs and to prevent accidents.

In every such case, such Canal Officer or person shall tender compensation to the proprietors or occupiers of the said lands for all damage done to the same. If such tender is not accepted, the Canal Officer shall refer the matter to the Collector, who shall proceed to award compensation for the damage as though the Lieutenant-Governor had directed the occupation of the lands under section forty-three of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870.

Application by persons desiring to use canal-water.

11. Any person desiring to use the water of any canal, may apply in writing to the Divisional or Sub-Divisional Canal Officer of the Division or Sub-Division of the canal from which the water-course is to be supplied, requesting such officer to construct or improve a water-course at the cost of the applicants.

Contents of application.

The application shall state the works to be undertaken, their approximate estimated cost, or the amount which the applicants are willing to pay for the same, or whether they engage to pay the actual cost as settled by the Divisional Canal Officer, and how the payment is to be made.

Liability of applicants for cost of works.

When the assent of the Superintending Canal Officer is given to such application, all the applicants shall, after the application has been duly attested before the Collector, be jointly and severally liable for the cost of such works to the extent mentioned therein.

Recovery of amount due.

Any amount becoming due under the terms of such application, and not paid to the Divisional Canal Officer, or the person authorized by him to receive the same, on or before the date on which it becomes due, shall, on the demand of such officer, be recoverable by the Collector as if it were an arrear of land revenue.

Government to provide means of crossing canals.

12. There shall be provided, at the cost of Government, suitable means of crossing canals constructed or maintained at the cost of Government, at such places as the Lieutenant-Governor thinks necessary, for the reasonable convenience of the inhabitants of the adjacent lands.

On receiving a statement in writing, signed by not less than five of the owners of such lands, to the effect that suitable crossings have not been provided on any canal, the Collector shall cause inquiry to be made into the circumstances of the case, and if he thinks that the statement is established, he shall report his opinion thereon for the consideration of the Lieutenant-Governor, and the Lieutenant-Governor shall cause such measures in reference thereto to be taken as it thinks proper.

Persons using water-course to construct works for passing water across roads, &c.

13. The Canal Officer may issue an order to the persons using any water-course to construct suitable bridges, culverts, or other works for the passage of the water of such water-course across any public road, canal or drainage channel in use before the said water-course was made, or to repair any such works.

If they fail, Canal Officer may construct,

Such order shall specify a reasonable period within which such construction or repairs shall be completed; and if, after the receipt of such order, the persons to whom it is addressed do not, within the said period, construct or repair such works to the satisfaction of the said Canal Officer, he may, with the previous approval of the Superintending Canal Officer, himself construct or repair the same;

and recover cost.

and if the said persons do not, when so required, pay the cost of such construction or repairs as declared by the Canal Officer, the amount shall, on the demand of the Canal Officer, be recoverable from them by the Collector as if it were an arrear of land revenue.

Adjustment of claims between persons jointly using water-course.

14. If any person, jointly responsible with others for the construction or maintenance of a water-course, or jointly making use of a water-course with others, neglects or refuses to pay his share of the cost of such construction or maintenance, or to execute his share of any work necessary for such construction or maintenance, the Canal Officer, on receiving an application in writing from any person injured by such neglect or refusal, shall serve notice on all the parties concerned that, on the expiration of a fortnight from the service, he will investigate the case; and shall, on the expiration of that period, investigate the case accordingly, and make such order thereon as to him seems fit.

Such order shall be appealable to the Commissioner, whose order thereon shall be final.

Recovery of amount found due.

Any sum directed by such order to be paid within a specified period, may, if not paid within such period, and if the order remains in force, be recovered by the Collector, from the person directed to pay the same, as if it were an arrear of land revenue.

Supply of water through intervening water-course.

15. Whenever application is made to a Canal Officer for a supply of water from a canal, and it appears to him expedient that such supply should be given and that it should be conveyed through some existing water-course, he shall give notice to the persons responsible for the maintenance of such water-course to show cause, on a day not less than fourteen days from the date of such notice, why the said supply should not be so conveyed; and, after making inquiry on such day, the Canal Officer shall determine whether and on what conditions the said supply shall be conveyed through such water-course.

When such officer determines that a supply of canal-water may be conveyed through any water-course as aforesaid, his decision shall, when confirmed or modified by the Superintending Canal Officer, be binding on the applicant and also on the persons responsible for the maintenance of the said water-course.

Such applicant shall not be entitled to use such water-course until he has paid the expense of any alteration of such water-course necessary in order to his being supplied through it, and also such share of the first cost of such water-course as the Canal Officer or Superintending Canal Officer may determine.

Such applicant shall also be liable for his share of the cost of maintenance of such water-course so long as he uses it.

Application for construction of new water-course.

16. Any person desiring the construction of a new water-course may apply in writing to the Canal Officer, stating—

(1) that he has endeavoured unsuccessfully to acquire, from the owners of the land through which he desires such water-course to pass, a right to occupy so much of the land as will be needed for such water-course;

(2) that he desires the said Canal Officer, in his behalf and at his cost, to do all things necessary for acquiring such right;

(3) that he is able to defray all costs involved in acquiring such right and contructing such water-course.

Procedure of Canal Officer thereupon.

17. If the Canal Officer considers—

(1) that the construction of such water-course is expedient, and

(2) that the statements in the application are true, he shall call upon the applicant to make such deposit as the Canal Officer considers necessary to defray the cost of the preliminary proceedings, and the amount of any compensation which he considers likely to become due under section twenty-three;

and, upon such deposit being made, he shall cause inquiry to be made into the most suitable alignment for the said water-course, and shall mark out the land which, in his opinion, it will be necessary to occupy for the construction thereof, and shall forthwith publish a notice in every village through which the water-course is proposed to be taken, that so much of such land as belongs to such village has been so marked out, and shall send a copy of such notice to the Collector of every district in which any part of such land is situate.

Application for transfer of existing water-course.

18. Any person desiring that an existing water-course should be transferred from its present owner to himself, may apply in writing to the Canal Officer, stating—

(1) that he has endeavoured unsuccessfully to procure such transfer from the owner of such water-course;

(2) that he desires the said Canal Officer, in his behalf and at his cost, to do all things necessary for procuring such transfer;

(3) that he is able to defray the cost of such transfer.

Procedure thereupon.

If the Canal Officer considers—

(a) that the said transfer is necessary for the better management of the irrigation from such water-course, and

(b) that the statements in the application are true, he shall call upon the applicant to make such deposit as the Canal Officer considers necessary to defray the cost of the preliminary proceedings, and the amount of any compensation that may become due under the provisions of section twenty-three in respect of such transfer; and, upon such deposit being made, he shall publish a notice of the application in every village, and shall send a copy of the notice to the Collector of every district, through which such water-course passes.

Objections to construction or transfer applied for.

19. Within thirty days from the publication of a notice under either of the two sections last preceding, as the case may be, any person interested in the land or water-course to which the notice refers may apply to the Collector by petition, stating his objection to the construction or transfer for which application has been made.

The Collector may either reject the petition, or may proceed to inquire into the validity of the objection, giving previous notice to the Divisional Canal Officer of the place and time at which such inquiry will be held.

The Collector shall record in writing all orders passed by him under this section and the grounds thereof.

When applicant may be placed in occupation.

20. If no such objection is made, or (where such objection is made) if the Collector over-rules it, he shall give notice to the Canal Officer to that effect, and shall proceed forthwith to place the said applicant in occupation of the land marked out or of the water-course to be transferred, as the case may be.

Procedure when objection is held valid.

21. If the Collector considers any objection made as aforesaid to be valid, he shall inform the Canal Officer accordingly; and, if such officer sees fit, he may, in the case of an application under section sixteen, alter the boundaries of the land so marked out, and may give fresh notice under section seventeen, and the procedure hereinbefore provided shall be applicable to such notice, and the Collector shall thereupon proceed as before provided.

Procedure when Canal Officer disagrees with Collector.

22. If the Canal Officer disagrees with the Collector, the matter shall be referred for decision to the Commissioner.

Such decision shall be final, and the Collector, if he is so directed by such decision, shall, subject to the provisions of section twenty-three, cause the said applicant to be placed in occupation of the land so marked out or of the water-course to be transferred, as the case may be.

Expenses to be paid by applicant before receiving occupation.

23. No such applicant shall be placed in occupation of such land or water-course, until he has paid to the person named by the Collector such amount as the Collector determines to be due as compensation for the land or water-course so occupied or transferred, and for any damage caused by the marking out or occupation of such land, together with all expenses incidental to such occupation or transfer.

Procedure in fixing compensation.

In determining the compensation to be made under this section, the Collector shall proceed under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870.

Recovery of compensation and expenses.

If the compensation awarded and expenses are not paid when demanded by the person entitled to receive the same, the amount may be recovered by the Collector as if it were an arrear of land-revenue, and shall, when recovered, new estate shall be declared subject to the transfer so made.

29. The Collector may refuse to declare any lands held in severalty a separate mehal, if the lands be so intermixed with other properties as to render the formation of a compact estate impossible, and if the parties affected by the partition refuse to agree to the transfers necessary for curing such defect.

Collector may refuse to separate lands in certain

30. Where there may be no lands held in common, the lands in severalty, held by the applicant for partition, or assigned to him by the Collector under the provisions of this Act, shall be assessed and declared a separate estate. Provided that it shall be in the discretion of the Collector to cause any transfer of lands, agreed to, or directed by his order, as provided in section twenty-seven, to be made previous to such declaration, and the new estate shall be declared subject to the transfer so made.

Where no lands held in common, lands in severalty may be declared a separate estate.

Proviso as to transfers.

31. When a recorded proprietor in an estate holds only an undivided share in certain specific portions of an estate, such as a village or mouzah, and applies for a separation of such share, the Deputy Collector shall first ascertain the proportion of the Government revenue of the whole estate payable by the village or villages in which the applicant owns a share, and shall then separate off to the applicant from the lands of those villages, lands representing the share of the Government revenue payable by him. Provided that no specific portion of an estate, such as a village or mouzah, shall be separated from the estate of which it forms a part, except on the application of all the proprietors of such specific portion.

Proprietor of undivided share in specific lands of estate may obtain partition.

32. Whenever any lands are held in common between the proprietors of two or more estates, one of which is under partition in accordance with the provisions of this Act, the Deputy Collector shall first allot to the estate under partition a portion of such common lands, of which the produce is in proportion to the interest which the proprietors of that estate hold in the said common lands; and all the rules prescribed in this Act in respect of the allotment, between the shareholders in an estate, of lands which are held jointly by such shareholders, shall as far as possible apply to the allotment of the proportionate share of such common lands to the estate under partition; and in respect of the service of notices, hearing of objections, and all other procedure in view to such allotment, the registered proprietors of all estates who have an interest in the said common lands shall be deemed to be registered proprietors of the estate under partition.

Lands held in common between the proprietors of two or more estates how to be dealt with.

33. As soon as the proportionate share of the common lands shall have been allotted to the estate under partition as provided in the last preceding section, the lands so allotted shall be dealt with in every respect as if they were held jointly by the proprietors of the estate under partition in proportion to their respective interests in the estate.

The portion of such common lands assigned to estate under partition how to be dealt with.

34. If at any time before the partition is confirmed, a dispute as to boundary shall be found to exist between the estate under division and a neighbouring estate, the Deputy Collector shall inquire into the fact of possession. If possession is, in his opinion, with the neighbouring estate, he shall report the case to the Collector, and the Collector may, either order that the proceedings for partition be quashed, in which case no second application for a partition of such estate shall be accepted until the applicant can show that the dispute has been decided by the Civil Court, or has been amicably settled; or he may order that the proceedings for partition shall proceed, leaving out of consideration the disputed lands. Provided that if at any time after any partition proceedings have been so completed, the disputed lands or any part of them shall be declared, by order of a competent Court, to have appertained to the estate of which the partition has been so completed, such lands shall be held by the sharers in the said estate or their representatives jointly in proportion to the interest which each sharer held in the original estate before par itstition, the share of every such shareholder in such lands being deemed to appertain to the separate estate which has been allotted to him, or in which he is a shareholder after the partition.

Disputed boundary.

If in the Deputy Collector's opinion, possession of the disputed lands is with the proprietors of the estate under partition, he shall hold a proceeding stating so and giving his reasons, and shall give notice of his decision to all persons who may claim the title in the disputed lands, requiring them to institute a suit in the Civil Court within six months of the date of the notice to establish their right on the said lands, should they desire to institute such suit, and warning them that no suit for that purpose will be received by any Civil Court after the expiration of the said period. After issue of such notice the Deputy Collector shall proceed with the partition including the disputed lands within such partition; but the partition shall not be confirmed by the Commissioner till after the expiration of six months from the date of the said notice, nor if at any time before such confirmation, proof be given that a suit has been instituted in the Civil Court to try the question of title and right until such suit shall have been decided. Should no such suit be instituted, and the partition be confirmed, it will not be competent to any one afterwards to raise the same question before any Court.

35. If any proprietor of a joint estate brought under division under the provisions of this or any other Act, shall have given his share or a portion of it in patni or other enduring tenure, such lease or tenure shall hold good, mutatis mutandis, as regards the lands finally allotted to the share of the lessor, and only as to them. Thus, if the patni have been for the whole of such proprietor's share in the joint estate, it will hold good for the whole of the lands allotted to such proprietor; if for half, it will give the patnidar the right of half collection over the whole of such lands. Provided that no separation of lands shall be made on the application of any proprietor, who has given a patni or other enduring tenure of all or a portion of his share, as long as such lease is in force, if the leaseholder object.

Sharer failing to attend after proclamation, liable to forfeit right of objection.

36. If any sharer, after the issue of the proclamation or notification mentioned in sections twenty-two and twenty-five of this Act, shall fail to attend during the time the Amin's or the Collector's measurement or the partition is being made, no objection taken by such sharer to the partition shall be heard, unless such sharer can show that his absence was not wilful, or unless for any good and sufficient reason, it shall appear just and proper to allow him to be heard against the partition.

Estates formed in course of partition to be as compact as possible.

37. It shall be the duty of the Collector, so far as circumstances will admit, to arrange that the estates into which the estate under partition is divided shall consist of contiguous lands or villages. Provided that, if the estate ordered to be divided shall not consist of a sufficient number of villages to admit of one or more entire village or villages being included in each estate, the partition of the village or villages of which the estate shall consist shall be made so as to render each estate as compact as possible.

Circumstances to be considered in making partitions.

38. In selecting the villages or lands to be included in each separate estate, the advantages or disadvantages arising from situation; the vicinity of roads, railways, navigable rivers or canals; the nature and quality of the soil and produce; the quantity of culturable and unculturable waste land; the number of tanks and wells; the state of the embankments and water-courses; and any other local circumstances affecting the present or likely to influence the future value of the lands shall be duly considered. So far as may be practicable and consistent with compactness of partition, lands field in severalty shall be left in the possession of the parties holding the same.

Rule when dwelling-house belonging to one sharer is situate on ground to be allotted to another sharer.

39. If a dwelling-house belonging to one sharer shall be situate on any land, or in any village, which it may be necessary to include in the share of another sharer, the proprietor of such house shall be at liberty to retain it, with the offices, buildings, and grounds, immediately attached thereto, upon agreeing to pay to the proprietor of the land or village in which the same is situate an equitable rent for the ground. The limits of the ground and the rent to be paid for it in perpetuity shall be fixed by the Deputy Collector, and shall be stated in the paper of partition. Provided that in every such case a defined pathway shall be secured to the owner of the house, leading from his house to some portion of the lands allotted to him.

Rule as to tanks, wells, water-courses, and embankments.

40. Tanks, wells, water-courses, and embankments, shall be considered as attached to the land for the benefit of which they were originally made. In cases in which, from the extent, situation, or construction of such works, it shall be found necessary to continue them the joint property of the proprietors of two or more of the estates into which the estate may be divided, the paper of partition shall specify, as far as circumstances may admit, the extent to which the proprietors of each of such estates may make use of the same, and the proportion of the charges for repairs to be borne by them respectively.

Rule as to places of worship.

41. Places of worship, which shall have been held in common previous to the partition of an estate, shall continue to be so held, unless the parties shall otherwise agree amongst themselves, in which case they shall state in writing the agreement into which they have entered, and the Deputy Collector shall enter a note of the agreement in the paper of partition.

Revenue to be assessed on each divided estate.

42. The public revenue shall be assessed on each estate into which the property shall be ordered to be divided, in conformity to the rules in that behalf contained in Regulation I of 1793 or any other law for the time being in force.

Particulars to be contained in the paper of partition to be submitted by officer making same.

43. Unless the partition of the estate and the allotment of the revenue shall have been effected by the Collector, when the Deputy Collector shall have completed the partition and allotted the public revenue on each of the estates into which it is proposed that the estate shall be divided, he shall prepare and submit to the Collector a paper of partition showing how he proposes to divide the estate and to apportion the public revenue. This paper shall be in such form as may be prescribed by the Board, and shall be accompanied by a detailed statement of the mode observed and the reasons which influenced in selecting the lands included in each estate, and shall specify the nature of the accounts upon which the apportionment of the public revenue assessed thereon shall have been based. The paper shall further contain a detail of the adjustments, if any, which shall have been made in respect to any tanks, places of worship, or other matters as specified in the preceding sections.

Map to be also submitted.

The Deputy Collector shall also submit a map or maps showing the several estates into which the estate is proposed to be divided.

Procedure of Collector thereupon.

44. The Collector shall take into consideration the papers as laid before him, and after calling for any further information which he shall deem necessary, and disposing of any objections which shall be taken to the proposed partition and allotment of public revenue, shall adopt the partition as proposed, or return it for amendment to the Deputy Collector who made it, or to another, or shall draw out a fresh paper of partition. It shall also be lawful for the Collector of the district to return for amendment or inquiry the paper of partition as often as he may think fit.

Notice to be given that partition papers as settled by the Collector are open to inspection;

45. When the Collector shall have finally decided upon the mode in which the partition is to be made, he shall draw out a paper of partition in such form as may be prescribed by the Board, and a map corresponding; and in case his partition differs from that made by the Deputy Collector, the Collector shall hold a proceeding stating in detail the objections which may have been urged against the Deputy Collector's partition, and his reasons for altering that partition. He shall also serve a notice upon each sharer, and a general notice as per section twenty-five, to the effect that such paper of partition and such map shall be available for inspection at his office for forty-five clear days (irrespective of holidays) to any sharer or agent of any sharer.

Lots to be drawn for equal shares.

46. When two or more of the estates into which it is proposed to divide the estate under partition shall consist of the same proportions of the entire estate, .e Collector, and after him the Commissioner, .ay direct the parties entitled thereto to draw lots for the same before himself. Similarly, lots may be drawn when the aggregate of two or more shares equals one other share, the division of the two or more shares being made within the aggregate share thus decided by lot.

No further objections to be heard.

47. It shall not be lawful to the Collector, after drawing out the paper of partition as directed in the section last preceding, to take into consideration any objections against such partition or to receive any petition regarding it.

Papers to be forwarded to Commissioner.

48. As soon as practicable after the expiration of the forty-five days mentioned in the last section but one, the Collector shall forward to the Commissioner all the papers relative to the partition made by the Deputy Collector and by himself.

Commissioner may confirm or modify partition, subject to appeal to Board of Revenue.

49. The Commissioner, on receipt of the papers from the Collector, shall fix a day, not being less than thirty clear days from the date of his order, for hearing and disposing of the case; and shall notify the same by a notice to be stuck up in his own office, and that of the Collector who forwarded the papers. On the day fixed, or on any subsequent day to which the hearing of the case (being continued from day to day) may extend, or on any subsequent day to be notified by a notice stuck up in his own office, the Commissioner shall, after hearing and disposing of all objections, either uphold the partition proposed by the Collector, or modify the same, or return the partition to the Collector for any changes he (the Commissioner) may think advisable. In the event of the partition being returned to the Collector, notices shall issue as above, on the Commissioner receiving the papers back again. The Commissioner, before coming to a decision, may call for any additional papers, or direct any further inquiry that he shall consider necessary. The final decision of the Commissioner shall not be open to revision by the Civil Court, but shall be subject to appeal to the Board, if such appeal be made within one month from the date of the Commissioner's order.

Procedure by Collector on receipt of order of Commissioner, or of Board of Revenue on appeal.

50. Forty days after the receipt of the order of the Commissioner, or if an appeal be preferred to the Board, then, on receipt of the order passed on the appeal, the Collector shall cause the same to be published in his office, and in some conspicuous place in each of the estates separately constituted by such order. The Collector shall, at the same time, specify the date from which each of the estates shall be held to be a separate estate, and shall enter the several estates into which the estate has been divided in the Register of estates paying revenue to Government. The Collector shall give the several proprietors possession of the estates allotted to them, and, if necessary, may avail himself of the assistance of the Magistrate in giving possession. He shall also give to each sharer a copy of that part of the paper of partition which relates to his own share.

Partition may be stayed if parties so desire.

Recovery of costs.

51. If, at any time after an order shall have been passed for making a partition, it shall appear that the parties do not wish that the partition should proceed, it shall be competent to the Collector, with the sanction of the Commissioner, to stop the partition, and to strike the case off the file, recovering from the sharers all costs and expenses incurred up to that time.

Partition may be stayed and proceedings quashed by Commissioner.

Decision not open to revision by Civil Court.

52. At any stage of the proceedings after a partition shall have been ordered, if it shall appear from information which was not before the Collector at the time the partition was ordered, or otherwise, that any reason not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act exists, why the partition should not be proceeded with, it shall be competent to the Commissioner, on the report of the Collector, and subject to any orders that the Board may pass in the case, to stay the partition, and to order the proceedings to be quashed. The decision of the Revenue Authorities under this Section shall not be open to revision by the Civil Court.

Government may order new allotment of public revenue among estates formed by partition, in case of fraud or error in original allotment being proved.

53. In order to prevent collusion or error in the distribution of the public revenue assessed upon an estate which may be ordered to be divided into two or more distinct estates, if it shall be proved to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant-Governor, within twelve years from and after the date of confirmation of the partition, that the public revenue was fraudulently or erroneously apportioned at the time of the partition, the Lieutenant-Governor shall have power to order a new allotment of the public revenue upon the several estates into which such estate may have been divided, conformably to the principles prescribed in this Act, on an estimate of the gross produce of each estate at the time of the partition, to be made agreeably to the best evidence and information which may be procurable respecting the same. Such order shall not be liable to be contested in the Civil Court. The parties whose estates may be declared to have been under-assessed shall be required to pay to the proprietors of the estates which shall have been over-assessed the sum in which they shall be found to have been over-assessed, and in default of payment, the amount shall be leviable as arrears of revenue.

Consequence to party having interest in any estate, if he neglect to affirm or establish such interest while the estate is under attachment with a view to partition.

54. If, during the time an estate is under partition, any party shall neglect or omit to claim by a suit, any right or title he may then have to the ownership or occupancy, at a fixed rent, of any land situated in such estate, or any other interest therein, such neglect or omission shall be a valid plea in bar of any suit relating to such right, title or interest, unless the party can satisfy the Court that there was good and sufficient reason for his neglect or omission to institute the suit at or before such time. Provided that this section shall not bar any action for arrears of rent, or the enhancement or alteration of rent.

Holder of decree of Civil Court, awarding right to portion of an estate, may apply for partition, and Collector may proceed thereon under Act.

55. Whenever any Court of Civil Judicature shall pass a decree, awarding to any person the proprietary right in a portion of an estate paying revenue to Government, whether the portion so awarded shall consist of a fractional share in the whole, or a part of the estate, or of specific lands, and shall direct the Collector to separate the lands belonging to such share, or to allot to such share proportionate lands from the lands of the entire estate, the Collector shall proceed thereupon under the provisions of this Act, which are hereby declared applicable to such orders of the Civil Court. If the division or separation as ordered by the Civil Court cannot be made in accordance with the provisions of this Act, the Collector shall inform the Civil Court

Union in certain cases of severed portions of estates originally undivided.

56. If two or more estates, which originally formed portions of the same estate, shall come into the possession of one person, such person shall be entitled to have such estates united, and to hold them as a single estate; or if two or more persons shall have separate possession of their respective shares of an estate which was originally held as a joint undivided estate, such persons may apply to have their shares united, and to hold them as one estate.

Application for such union how to be made, and how to be dealt with.

57. The applications for the union of the estates, or of the shares of the estate, as the case may be, shall be made in writing to the Collector, and the Collector (provided he see no objection) shall comply with the application, and cause the necessary entries to be made in the records of his office, reporting the case to the superior Revenue Authorities.

Procedure in case of arrears of revenue accruing during course of partition of estate.

58. If an arrear of public revenue shall accrue on an estate ordered to be divided, while the partition of the estate is being made, any one or more of the proprietors may tender to the Collector his or their quota of the balance, and the Collector shall receive the same, and credit the amount to the share or shares of such proprietor or proprietors. If a sale of any part of the estate shall ultimately become necessary for the liquidation of any part of such arrear which may remain due, only the share or shares of the proprietor or proprietors who shall not have contributed their quota of the balance shall be sold in the first instance, and the partition shall go on and be completed in the same manner as if no arrear of public revenue had accrued. The purchaser or purchasers of the share or shares sold shall be entitled to separate possession of the estate or estates which, under the partition, would have been allotted to the defaulting proprietor or proprietors. Provided always that, in all cases of a partition, if the demand of any arrear due shall not have been fully realized by the sale of the shares of such of the shareholders as have not paid their quota, the entire estate shall be considered responsible for the public revenue assessed upon it until the partition shall have been completed and the several proprietors shall have been put into possession of the separate estates into which the estate may be ordered to be divided, according as the same may be allotted to them.

Certain provisions of Act applicable to partition cases pending at the time of its passing.

59. The provisions of this Act, so far as they relate to the completion and confirmation, or to the staying or quashing, of the partition of an estate, may be applied, at the discretion of the Collector, in all cases of the partition of estates pending at the time of the passing of this Act, provided that he give due notice in each case that such procedure will be followed.

RESOLUTION.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT.

SECTION B.

Calcutta, the 15*th March* 1875.

BY the promotion of Mr. R. L. Mangles to be a Judge of the 1st class, the transfer of Mr. H. B. Simson to the Additional Judgeship of the districts of the Patna Division vice Mr. Mangles, with a salary of Rs. 2,000, and the appointment of Mr. T. T. Allen to act in the 2nd class of Judges while he may be employed as Additional Judge of Jessore and Backergunge, in succession to Mr. Simson, the saving of Rs. 333-5-4 referred to in paragraph 3 of the Resolution of the 6th April 1874 has now been effected. It was always contemplated that the saving to be effected, when these two additional judgeships on Rs. 2,166-10-8 were reduced to second grade judgeships on Rs. 2,000, should be utilized in increasing further the allowances of the Magistrate-Collectors of the second class, or otherwise improving the position of Magistrate-Collectors generally.

1st grade ...	... 15 officers.
2nd „ ...	... 15 „
3rd „ ...	... 7 „	including the Senior Superintendent of Survey.

Under the orders of the Government of India, No. 977, dated 18th December last, the number of officers in the 2nd grade has been reduced to 14, and by the constitution of the new district of Durbhunga, the strength of the 3rd grade has been raised to eight officers.

The saving now effected enables the Lieutenant-Governor to raise one officer from the 3rd grade on Rs. 1,500 to the 2nd grade on Rs. 1,800; thus this arrangement places the grades of Magistrate-Collectors in the same position in which they stood on the date of the Resolution announcing the completion of the arrangements for the establishment of parallel lines of promotion for the Judicial and Executive branches of the Covenanted Service.

A saving of Rs. 33 will remain after the strength of the 2nd grade of Magistrate-Collectors has been restored to 15 officers.

Mr. J. F. K. Hewitt, Magistrate and Collector of the 3rd grade, is promoted to be Magistrate and Collector of the 2nd grade.

Mr. R. D. Hime is promoted to the vacancy in the 3rd grade of Magistrate-Collectors.

The vacancy in the second grade of Joint-Magistrates, to be created by the promotion of an officer from that to the 1st grade of Joint-Magistrates, will not be filled up in consequence of the reduction ordered by the Government of India in the Resolution of the Home Department, dated 18th December 1874.

SCHEDULE.

(See section 2)

ACTS OF THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR OF BENGAL IN COUNCIL.

Number and year.	Subject.	Extent of repeal.
VIII of 1867 ...	Recovery of rates for water supplied by the East India Irrigation and Canal Company.	So much as has not been repealed.
VI of 1869 ...	Recovery of rates for water supplied for purposes of irrigation.	The whole Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

In consequence of irrigation works having been opened with great success in the Midnapore district, and the projected extension of such works to other districts, it has been found necessary to introduce a Bill for the purpose of extending the operation of the existing law, as contained in Bengal Acts VIII of 1867 and VI of 1869, which apply only to the irrigation works executed in Orissa.

The opportunity has been taken to repeal these Acts and to re-enact the whole in one Act, with such amendments as experience has shown to be necessary.

Returns may be required for purpose of valuation.

77. It shall not be necessary to prepare a new assessment book at the expiration of each period of assessment, but the Justices may adopt the valuation or measurement and assessment contained in any assessment book for any previous period with such alterations as may, in particular cases, be deemed necessary, as the valuation, or measurement and assessment for the period next following.

New assessment book need not be prepared every three years.

Provided that sections 78, 79, 80, and 81 shall, as far as possible, be applicable to such valuation, or measurement and assessment, and to the assessment book or books in which it is contained.

87. If the bill is not paid by the person liable to pay the same, within seven days from the presentation thereof, the Justices may cause to be served upon such person a notice of demand, in the form contained in the third schedule or to the like effect; and if he shall not, within seven days from the service of such notice of demand, pay the sum due, or show sufficient cause, to the satisfaction of the Justices, for non-payment of the same, such sum, with all costs, may be levied by distress and sale of the moveable property of the defaulter, or if the defaulter be the occupier of any land in respect of which a rate is due, by distress and sale of any moveable property found on the land, under a warrant in the form contained in the fourth schedule or to the like effect, to be issued for that purpose by the Justices.

88. The officer charged with the execution of a warrant of distress under the last preceding section shall make an inventory of the moveable property seized under such warrant, and shall at the time give a notice in writing, in the form contained in the fifth schedule, to the person in possession thereof at the time of the seizure, that the said moveable property will be sold as therein mentioned.

Provided that if the house and the premises belonging thereto shall not abut upon some street in which there is a supply-main, such occupier shall, in the agreement, undertake to pay the cost of connecting the house with the nearest supply-main.

104. If any owner shall not, within the space of three months from the service of such notice as is mentioned in the last proceeding section, cause such necessary works as aforesaid to be completed, the occupier, who shall have given such notice, may cause the same to be completed, and may deduct from the rent payable by him the cost of such works, save so much of such cost as may be incurred in connecting with a supply-main any house and premises belonging thereto which may not abut upon a street in which there may be a supply-main; and such deduction shall be made by six equal monthly instalments.

(a) lay out and make new streets;
(b) build and construct new bridges;
(c) turn, divert, discontinue, or stop up any public street; and
(d) widen, open, enlarge, or otherwise improve any such street.

For the purpose of this section the Justices may purchase any land necessary for houses and buildings to form any street, or for the improvement of any street.

Maintenance and repair of streets.

141 The Justices shall, so far as the Municipal Fund permits, from time to time cause the public streets to be maintained and repaired, and for such purpose may do all things necessary for the public safety and convenience.

Cleansing streets

142. The Justices shall cause the streets to be regularly swept and cleansed; and the dust, dirt, filth, and refuse of every kind whatsoever found thereon to be collected and removed.

Dust-boxes in streets

143. The Justices may cause any number of moveable or fixed dust-boxes or other convenient receptacles, wherein dust, dirt, filth, and refuse of every kind whatsoever may be temporarily deposited until removed and carried away, to be provided and placed in proper and convenient situations, and may require the occupiers of houses in streets to cause all such matter as aforesaid to be deposited daily, or otherwise periodically, in such receptacles.

Watering streets.

144. The Justices, so far as the Municipal Fund permits, and so far as they may deem requisite for the public convenience, shall cause the public streets to be watered; and for that purpose may provide such works and engines as they may think necessary.

Obstructions in streets.

145. The Justices may remove any obstruction or encroachment in or on any public street, or in or over any open drain, sewer, or aqueduct alongside of such street; and the expense of such removal shall be paid by the person causing such encroachment or obstruction.

Nothing in this section contained shall prevent the Justices from permitting any temporary erections in any public street on occasions of festivals and ceremonies.

Private persons laying out new streets.

146. Every person who wishes to make or lay out any new street, shall give notice in writing thereof to the Justices, showing the intended level and width of such street; and the level and width of every such street shall be fixed or approved by the Justices; and the Justices may, if they think fit, cause any such street laid out or made at a level or width otherwise than in accordance with the level or width so fixed or approved as aforesaid, to be altered;

or may cause any house, erected in any such street, otherwise than in accordance with such level and width, to be altered, or if necessary removed,

and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the person offending.

If no such level or width be fixed, and no approval or disapproval of the level or width proposed, be signified by the Justices within one month, the intended street may be laid out and made upon the level and of the width specified in the notice.

Paving, &c., of private streets.

147. If any street (not being a public street) or any part thereof, be not levelled, paved, metalled, flagged, channelled, and sewered to the satisfaction of the Justices, they may, by notice in writing to the respective owners or occupiers, of the land fronting, adjoining, or abutting upon, such parts thereof as may need to be levelled, paved, metalled, flagged, channelled, and sewered, require them to level, metal, pave, flag, channel, and sewer the same within a time to be specified in such notice, and upon non-compliance the Justices may, if they think fit, execute the works mentioned or referred to therein:

and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owners in default according to the frontage of their respective lands, and in such proportion as shall be settled by the Justices, or, in case of disputes, as shall be settled in the manner hereinafter provided for the settlement of disputes respecting damages and expenses;

Provided that, after such street shall have been so levelled, paved, metalled, flagged, channelled, and sewered, on the requisition of the Justices, or by the Justices as aforesaid, at the expense of the owners, such owners shall have a right to require that the street shall be declared a public street, to be from time to time repaired by the Justices out of the Municipal Fund.

Certain streets to be deemed public and repaired by the Justices.

148. If any street (not being a public street, but being a street over or through which the public have or may hereafter have a right of way) be levelled, paved, metalled, flagged, channelled, and sewered to the satisfaction of the Justices, they may, if they think fit, by notice in writing put up in any part of such street, declare the same to be a public street, and thereupon the same shall become a public street, and be from time to time repaired by them out of the Municipal Fund.

Houses may be set forward for improving line of streets.

149. The Justices may, upon such terms as they shall think fit, allow, any house to be set forward for improving the line of any public street in which such house is situated.

Houses projecting beyond line of street, when taken down, to be set back.

150. When any house any part of which projects beyond the regular line of a public street, or beyond the front of the house on either side thereof, has been taken down in order to be re-built or altered, the Justices may require the same to be set back to or towards the line of the street or the line of the adjoining houses.

Provided that the Justices shall make full compensation to the owner of any such house for any damage he may thereby sustain, and if any dispute shall arise touching the amount of such compensation, the same shall be settled in the manner hereinafter provided for the settlement of disputes respecting damages and expenses.

Names of streets.

152. The Justices may, from time to time, fix a number in a conspicuous place on the outer side of any house or at the entrance of the enclosure thereof fronting the street.

Doors not to open outwards.

153. All doors, gates, bars, and ground-floor windows (whether hung or placed before or after the commencement of this Act), which open upon any public street, shall be hung or placed so as not to open outwards and cause obstruction;

and if any such door, gate, bar, or window be hung or placed so as to open outwards on any such street and cause obstruction, the owner of the land to which the same is attached shall, within eight days after notice from the Justices to that effect, cause the same to be altered so as not to open outwards and cause obstruction; and if he neglects so to do, the Justices may make such alteration, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by such owner.

Troughs and pipes to be fixed to houses.

154. The owner of every house in any public street shall, within fifteen days after notice from the Justices to that effect, put up, and keep in good condition, proper troughs and pipes for catching and carrying the water from the roof and other parts of such house and for discharging the same in such manner as the Justices shall direct.

Projections erected in future from houses, to be removed.

155. The Justices may give notice in writing to the owner or occupier of any house to remove or alter any projection, encroachment, or obstruction, which shall be erected or placed against or in front of such house and such owner or occupier shall, within fifteen days after the service of such notice upon him, remove such projection, encroachment, or obstruction, or alter the same in such manner as shall have been directed by the Justices; and in default thereof the Justices may remove such projection, encroachment, or obstruction, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner or occupier making default.

Provided that, when the expense shall have been paid by the occupier, except in the case in which such projections, encroachments, or obstructions were made or put up by him, the occupier shall be entitled to deduct the expense of removing or altering the same from the rent payable by him to the owner of the house.

Removal of existing projections from houses.

156. The Justices may cause any such projection, encroachment, or obstruction, as is mentioned in the last preceding section, to be removed or altered as they think fit; provided that they give notice of such intended removal or alteration to the occupier of the house against or in front of which such projection, encroachment, or obstruction shall be, thirty days before such alteration or removal is begun;

and if such projection, encroachment, or obstruction shall have been lawfully made, they shall make reasonable compensation to every person who suffers damage by such removal or alteration; and if any dispute shall arise touching the amount of such compensation, the same shall be settled in the manner hereinafter provided for the settlement of disputes respecting damages and expenses.

Justices may allow certain projections from houses.

157. The Justices may give permission in writing to the owners or occupiers of houses abutting on public streets to put up verandahs, balconies, sunshades, weather-frames, and the like, to project from any upper story thereof over the street, to an extent not exceeding five feet from the foundation.

Roofs and external walls of huts not to be made of inflammable materials.

158. The external roofs and walls of houses erected or renewed within the Town shall not be made of grass, leaves, mats, or other such inflammable materials; nor shall the owner of any house in or near any street, having an external roof or wall made of any such material, and which is contiguous to or adjoining to any other house suffer such roof or wall to remain unless with the consent in writing of the Justices.

Houses in a ruinous and dangerous state.

159. If, in any street, any house, or wall, or anything affixed thereon, be deemed by the Justices to be in a ruinous state, or likely to fall, or in any way dangerous to the inhabitants of such house or to the neighbouring houses, or to the occupiers thereof, or to passengers, they shall immediately, if it appears to them to be necessary, cause a proper board or fence to be put up for the protection of passengers, and shall cause notice in writing to be given to the owner, if he be known and resident within the limits of their jurisdiction, and shall also cause such notice to be put on the door or other conspicuous part of such house or otherwise to be given to the occupier thereof (if any), requiring such owner or occupier forthwith to take down, repair, or secure, such house, wall, or thing affixed thereon as the case shall require.

If such owner or occupier do not begin to take down, repair, or secure the same within three days after such notice, and complete such work with due diligence, the Justices shall cause all or so much of such house, wall, or thing as they shall think necessary, to be taken down, repaired, or otherwise secured; and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner.

Sale of materials of ruinous houses.

160. If any such house, or wall, as is mentioned in the last preceding section, or any part of the same, be taken down as in such section mentioned, the Justices may sell the materials thereof or so much of the same as shall be taken down, and apply the proceeds of such sale in payment of the expenses incurred, and shall restore any surplus arising from such sale to the owner of such house, or wall, on demand.

in paying the interest of money borrowed for the said water-works, and in the liquidation of debts incurred connected therewith, or for some other purpose connected with the supply of water;

and if any surplus shall remain thereafter, the same shall be applied in reduction of the Water-rate.

Amount of estimates to be paid to Government.

119. The amount of the estimates passed shall, after deducting therefrom such amount as may from time to time be allowed by the Government from the General Revenues towards the maintenance of the Police Force, be paid to the Local Government, or to such Officer as the Local Government may from to time direct, by the Justices out of the annual proceeds of the Police rate.

Commissioner to give accounts of Police expenditure.

120. On or before the first day of April in every year, the Commissioner of Police shall present to the Chairman, to be laid before the Justices at their next monthly meeting, an account of the expense of the Police Force for the year ending the thirty-first day of December then next preceding, and in case the amount, which shall during such year have been paid to the Local Government under the provisions hereinbefore contained, shall not have been expended in the maintenance of the Police Force, the balance remaining unexpended shall be deemed to have been paid by the Justices in or towards discharging the expense of the Police Force during the ensuing year.

The Justices shall have the same remedies for compelling the payment of so much of the said expenses as may remain due after the application of the proceeds of such sale as by this Act are given to them for compelling the payment of the whole of the said expenses.

Justices may direct hedges to be trimmed.

161. The Justices may give notice to the owner or occupier of any land to trim or prune the hedges thereof bordering on any public street to a height not exceeding seven feet;

to cut and trim trees overhanging any public street and obstructing the same or causing damage thereto;

and if such notice is not complied with within eight days from the date thereof, the Justices may cause such hedges and trees to be cut in the manner required, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner of the land.

No one to deposit materials or make hole in the street.

162. No person shall deposit any building materials, or make a hole in any street, without the permission of the Justices: and when such permission is granted to any person, he shall, at his own expense, cause such materials, or such hole, to be sufficiently fenced and enclosed, until the materials are removed or the hole is filled up and otherwise made secure: and shall cause the same to be sufficiently lighted at night.

PART II.—Of the Drains.

Public sewers, drains, &c., vested in the Justices.

163. All public sewers and drains, and all sewers, drains, tunnels, and culverts, in, alongside, or under the streets, whether made at the cost of the Justices or otherwise, and all works, materials, and things appertaining thereto, shall become vested in the Justices.

Powers of Justices in making public sewers.

164. The Justices, in making any main or other sewers for the drainage of the Town, may, if necessary, carry such sewers through, across, or under any street, or any place laid out as, or intended for, a street, or any cellar or vault which may be under any of the streets, and (after reasonable notice in writing in that behalf) into, through, or under any land whatsoever, making full compensation for any damage done thereby: and if any dispute shall arise with respect to the amount or apportionment of such compensation, the same shall be settled in the manner hereinafter provided for the settlement of disputes respecting damages and expenses.

Justices repair and alter and close sewers.

165. The Justices shall maintain, and from time to time repair, and as they see fit, enlarge, alter, arch over, or otherwise improve all or any of the sewers and drains vested in them:

and may discontinue, close up, or destroy such of them as they may deem useless or unnecessary.

If by reason of anything done under this section, any person is deprived of the lawful use of any sewer or drain, the Justices shall, at a place within one hundred feet of the sewer or drain, of the use of which he is deprived, provide the means of drainage into some public sewer, tidal river, or other place into which the Justices are empowered to empty their sewers, and thereupon the owner shall make a drain leading thereunto, of such materials, of such size, at such level, and with such fall, as the Justices shall direct;

and if he neglect to do so within a reasonable time, the Justices may cause the same to be done, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner.

Cleansing and emptying sewers.

166. The Justices shall, so far as the Municipal Fund permits, cause the sewers and drains vested in them to be so constructed, maintained, and kept, as not to be a nuisance or injurious to health, and to be properly cleared, cleansed, and emptied;

and for the purpose of flushing, cleansing, and emptying the same, may construct and place, either above or underground, such reservoirs, sluices, engines, and other necessary works;

and may also, with the sanction of the Local Government, cause all or any of such sewers and drains to communicate with, and be emptied into, any tidal river or other fit place, or cause the refuse from such sewers and drains to be conveyed by a proper channel to the most convenient site for its deposit, and may sell the same for any agricultural or other purpose as may be deemed most expedient, but so that the same shall not become a nuisance.

Bed of stream receiving sewerage to be cleared.

167. When the contents of any sewer or drain or any other flow or filth or refuse, are discharged into any river or stream, in the bed or channel of which the quantity of water at any season of the year is so much diminished, by natural or artificial causes, as to be insufficient to keep such channel clean or clear, the Justices, with the sanction of the Local Government, so far as the Municipal Fund permits, shall make such alteration in the bed of such river or stream as may prevent such sewer and drain-water from spreading over the surface of such bed, or from accumulating and stagnating in parts thereof, to the injury of health or the annoyance of the surrounding population.

Unauthorized drains leading into public sewers may be demolished.

168. If any person, without the written consent of the Justices first obtained, makes or causes to be made, or alters or causes to be altered, any drain leading into any of the sewers or drains vested in the Justices, the Justices may cause such branch-drain to be demolished, altered, re-made, or otherwise dealt with as they shall think fit; and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the person making or altering such branch-drain.

House over sewers, &c., not to be erected without consent of the Justices.

169. No house shall be newly erected over any sewer or drain belonging to the Justices without their written consent;

and if any house be so erected, the Justices may cause such house to be pulled down or otherwise dealt with as they may think fit;

and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the person so erecting the house.

Justices [illegible] to make drains from houses which are not properly drained.

170. If any land within the Town and within a reasonable distance of a sewer fit for use, or of some tidal river or other place at which the Justices are empowered to empty their sewers, be at any time not drained to the satisfaction of the Justices by a sufficient drain or pipe communicating with some sewer, tidal river, or other place as aforesaid, the Justices may, if the owner neglects to do so within fifteen days after notice, construct or lay from such land, a covered drain or pipe, of such materials, of such size, at such level, and with such fall, as they shall think necessary for the draining of such land;

and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner.

Level of houses hereafter built within the Town.

171. No house shall be built within the Town upon a lower level than will allow of the drainage of such house or building being led into some public sewer then existing or projected, or into some tidal river or other place into which the Justices are empowered to empty their sewers.

Houses hereafter built to have drains constructed under the orders of the Justices.

172 If any house newly erected or re-built within the Town have such means of drainage, as in the last preceding section mentioned, existing within one hundred feet thereof, the owner shall make a drain leading thereunto from the site of such house of such materials, of such size, at such level, and with such fall, as the Justices may direct;

and if he neglect to do so within a reasonable time, the Justices may cause the same to be done, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner

Justices may construct certain portions of drains under public drains and streets.

173. The Justices themselves may construct and lay down such portions of the drains mentioned in sections 165, 170, and 172 as may be carried through or under any public drain, aqueduct, or street, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner.

Supervision of certain works

174. The Justices may cause the works mentioned in sections 165, 170, and 172 to be supervised while in progress, and from time to time during their execution to order such reasonable alterations therein, additions thereto, and abandonment of part or parts thereof, as may to the Justices appear, on the fuller knowledge afforded by the opening of the ground, requisite to secure the complete and satisfactory execution of such works as aforesaid.

Group or block of houses, &c., may be drained by a combined operation.

175. If it appear to the Justices that a group or block of houses may be drained or improved more economically or advantageously in combination than separately and a sewer of sufficient size already exists, or is about to be constructed, within one hundred feet of any part of such group or block of houses, the Justices may cause such group or block of houses to be drained and improved by a combined operation; and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owners of such houses in such proportions as shall to the Justices seem fit.

Sewers in streets to be covered with traps, &c.

176. All sewers and drains in streets, whether public or private, shall be provided by the Justices, or by the persons to whom they severally belong, with proper traps or other coverings or means of ventilation, so as to prevent stench.

If the owner of any private sewer or drain shall, for ten days after notice given to him by the Justices, neglect or delay to provide proper traps or coverings or means of ventilation as aforesaid, the Justices may forthwith provide and apply the same;

and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner.

Power of Justices to erect or affix to building pipes for ventilation of sewers

177. The Justices may erect on, or fix to, any house such pipes as they may deem necessary for the proper ventilation of the sewers belonging to them, and such pipes shall be carried to a height of not less than six feet above the highest part of the house, and erected so as not to occasion any nuisance or inconvenience to any house in the neighbourhood.

Branch drains privies, &c., to be under the control of the Justices, and to be kept in good order by owners.

178. All branch-drains, as well within as without the land to which they belong, and all privies and cess-pools within the Town, shall be under the survey and control of the Justices, and shall be altered, repaired, stopped up, demolished, and kept in proper order at the costs and charges of the owner of the land to which the same belong, or for the use of which they are constructed or continued;

and if the owner of any land to which any such drain, privy, or cess-pool belongs, neglect, during eight days after notice in writing for that purpose, to alter, repair, stop up, demolish or put in good order the same, in the manner required by the Justices, the Justices may cause such drain, privy, or cesspool to be altered, repaired, stopped up, demolished or put in good order, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner.

Penalty for persons making or altering drain, &c., contrary to the orders of the Justices.

179 If any branch-drain, privy, or cess-pool be constructed contrary to the directions and regulations of the Justices, or contrary to the provisions of this Act, or if any person, without the consent of the Justices, constructs, re-builds, or unstops, any branch-drain, privy, or cess-pool which has been ordered by them to be demolished or stopped up, or not to be made, the Justices may cause such amendment or alteration to be made in any such drain, privy, or cess-pool, as they think fit;

and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the person by whom such drain, privy, or cess-pool was improperly constructed, rebuilt, or unstopped.

Inspection of drains, privies, and cess-pools.

180. The Justices, or any Officer authorized by them in that behalf, may inspect any branch-drain, privy, or cess-pool, and for that purpose, at any time between sunrise and sunset, after one hour's notice in writing to the occupier of the land to which such drain, privy, or cess-pool is attached, may enter upon such land with such assistants and workmen as are necessary, and cause the ground to be opened where they or he may think fit, doing as little damage as may be;

and if, upon such inspection it appears that such drain, privy, or cess-pool is not in good order and condition, or that it has been constructed contrary to the provisions of this Act, the expenses of such inspection shall be paid by the person to whom such drain, privy, or cess-pool may belong:

but if the drain, privy, or cess-pool be found to be in proper order and condition, and not to have been constructed in violation of the provisions of this Act, the Justices or Officer as aforesaid shall cause the ground to be closed and made good as soon as may be, and the expenses of opening, closing, and making good such drain, privy, or cess-pool, shall, in that case be paid by the Justices.

Provided that nothing hereinbefore contained shall authorize an entry into any room appropriated for the zanana or residence of women, which by the custom of the country is considered private, except by the agency of women.

Power to fill up unwholesome tanks, &c., on private premises.

181. When any private tank or low marshy ground, or any waste or stagnant water, being within any private enclosure, appears to the Justices to be injurious to health, or offensive to the neighbourhood, the Justices may require, by notice in writing, the owner of the same to cleanse or fill up such tank or marshy ground, or to drain off or remove such stagnant water;

and if he shall refuse or fail to comply with such requisition within eight days from the service thereof, the Justices, their Officers, and workmen, may enter into the said premises, and do all necessary acts for all or any of the purposes aforesaid as they shall think fit;

and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner.

Power to drain off, and cleanse, stagnant pools in open places.

182. The Justices may from time to time, as they shall see fit, drain off into any sewers belonging to them, and cleanse and fill up or otherwise abate, any stagnant pool, ditch, tank, pond, or other receptacle of water (the same not being within any private enclosure), which shall appear to them to be useless or unnecessary, or likely to prove injurious to the health of the inhabitants, whether the same be the private property of any person or otherwise; and the Justices, their Officers, and workmen, may do all necessary acts for effecting any of the purposes aforesaid.

PART III.—Of General Conservancy.

Removal of night-soil.

183. The Justices, from time to time, may appoint—

(a) the hours within which night-soil or other offensive matter may be removed;

(b) the kind of cart or other receptacle in which it may be removed;

(c) the route by which such cart or receptacle shall proceed.

Places of deposit for filth

184. The Justices shall, from time to time, appoint or provide places for the deposit of dust, dirt, filth, and any other refuse whatsoever collected and removed in accordance with this Act;

and for keeping all cattle, carts, implements, and other things required for the above or any of the purposes of this Act.

Filth and refuse to be the property of the Justices.

185. All dirt, dust, filth, and any other refuse whatsoever collected from the streets, houses, privies, sewers, and cess-pools shall belong to the Justices, who may sell or dispose of the same as they may think proper and the money arising from the sale thereof shall form part of the Municipal Fund.

Erection of new huts to be under the control of the Justices.

186. No person shall erect, within the Town, any hut or huts on any land on which no huts are standing, without previous notice to the Justices; and the Justices may require such hut or huts to be built so that they may stand in regular lines, with a free passage or way in front of each line, of such width as the Justices may think proper for salutary ventilation, and to facilitate scavengering, and at such a level as will admit of sufficient drainage.

Power to direct removal of huts built without notice.

187. If any such hut or huts as mentioned in the last preceding section be built without giving notice to the Justices, or otherwise than as required by the Justices, the Justices may give notice to the builder or builders thereof to take down and remove the same within one month, and if such hut or huts be not taken down or removed according to such notice, the Justices may cause the same to be taken down and removed, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the builder or builders of the same.

Power of Justices as to existing huts.

188. Whenever the Justices are satisfied, from inspection, or by report of competent persons, that any existing block of huts in the Town, is, by reason of the manner in which the huts are crowded together, or of the want of drainage and the impracticability of scavengering, attended with risk of disease to the inhabitants or the neighbourhood, they may, with the sanction of the Local Government, cause a notice to be fixed to some conspicuous part of such block of huts, requiring the owners or occupiers thereof, or at the option of the Justices, the owner of the land on which such huts are built, within a reasonable time to be fixed by the Justices for that purpose, to execute such operations as the Justices, with such sanction as aforesaid, may deem necessary for the avoidance of such risk.

And in case such owners or occupiers or the owner of the land, shall refuse or neglect to execute such operations within the time appointed, the Justices may cause such huts to be taken down, or such operations to be performed in respect of such huts, as the Justices may deem necessary to prevent such risk.

If such huts be pulled down, the Justices shall cause the materials of each hut to be sold separately, if such sale can be effected; and the proceeds shall be paid to the owner of the hut, or if the owner be unknown, or the title disputed, shall be held in deposit by the Justices, until the person interested therein shall obtain the order of a competent Court for the payment of the same.

The Court of Small Causes shall be deemed a competent Court for that purpose.

Power to shut up, secure, clear, and clean deserted houses.

189. If any land, by reason of abandonment or of disputed ownership or other cause, shall remain untenanted, and thereby become a resort of idle and disorderly persons, or become in a filthy or unwholesome state, or be complained of by any two or more of the neighbours as a nuisance,
the Justices, after due enquiry, may cause notice in writing to be given to the owner, or to the person claiming, or believed to be, the owner, if he be known and resident within the limits of their jurisdiction, and shall also cause such notice to be put on the door of the house or some conspicuous part of the land, requiring the persons concerned therein, whoever they may be, to secure, enclose, clean, or clear the same;
and if such notice shall not be complied with within eight days, the Justices shall cause the necessary work to be executed, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner, or in case of abandonment or disputed ownership, by the sale of any material found upon such land, and section 160 shall be applicable to such sales.

Notice of new buildings to be given to the Justices.

190. Before beginning, within the Town, to build or re-build any house, the person intending to build or re-build such house, shall give to the Justices notice thereof in writing, and shall accompany such notice with a plan, showing the levels at which the foundation and lowest floor of such house are proposed to be laid, by reference to some level ascertained under the direction of the Justices.

Justices to signify disapproval within fourteen days.

191. Within fourteen days after receiving such notice as is mentioned in the last preceding section, the Justices shall signify their approval of the proposed levels, or, if they disapprove thereof, they shall fix other levels in lieu thereof within the same time.

Houses built without notice, or contrary to provisions of this Act, may be altered by the Justices.

192. If such building as is mentioned in the two last preceding sections be begun or made without sending such notice and plan as are mentioned in section 190, or at any levels different from those fixed by the Justices within the said fourteen days, or in any other respect contrary to the provisions of this Act, the Justices may, if necessary, cause such building to be altered or demolished as the case may require;
and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the person failing to comply with the provisions aforesaid.

If Justices fail to signify approval, &c., within fourteen days, parties may proceed without.

193. If the Justices fail to signify in writing their approval or disapproval of the levels shown on such plan as is mentioned in the last preceding section, and to fix other levels within fourteen days after receiving such notice and plan as aforesaid, the person giving such notice may, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, proceed to build or re-build the house therein referred to, according to the levels shown on such plan:

Provided that such building or re-building be otherwise in accordance with this Act.

The word "house" in this and the three last preceding sections does not include a hut.

194. The Justices may provide and maintain in proper and convenient situations, so as not to create a nuisance, common necessaries and urinals, and shall cause the same, when provided, to be kept in proper order and to be daily cleansed.

Licensing of public necessaries, and tola mehters' depôts.

195. The Justices may license, for any period not exceeding one year, such necessaries for public accommodation, and such tola mehters' depôts as they may, from time to time, think proper; and may at any time, on giving one month's notice, cancel any license granted under this section, if it shall seem proper to them to cancel it.

Justices may direct performance of duties usually performed by mehters.

196. The Justices may, by advertisement in at least two of the daily newspapers published in Calcutta, and by placards posted up in conspicuous places throughout the town, or any portion thereof, declare that the duties usually performed by tola mehters shall be performed by an establishment under the control of the Justices, and the Justices shall make suitable provision accordingly.

When the Justices have made such provision, the occupier of any land in respect of which such duties are performed shall be liable to pay in respect of the same such fees as may be imposed by the Justices at a meeting.

Neglecting to enclose private privy.

197. The owner or occupier of any land having a privy on it shall have such privy shut out by a sufficient roof, and wall or fence, from the view of persons passing by or residing in the neighbourhood: and no person shall keep a privy with a door or trap-door opening on to any street. Provided that the Justices may, in their discretion, permit the continuance, for such time as they may fix, of any such privy with a door or trap-door opening on to any street, where such privy already exists and does not create a nuisance.

If the Justices think that any privy or additional privy should be provided for any land, the owner of such land shall, within fourteen days after notice in that behalf by the Justices, cause such privy, together with the necessary pipes, drains, and water-supply, to be constructed in accordance with the requisition of such notice, and if such privy be not so constructed to the satisfaction of the Justices within such period, the Justices may cause such privy, together with the necessary pipes, drains, and water-supply, to be so constructed, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner.

198. No milkman, cartman, shepherd, livery stable-keeper, or keeper of hackney carriages shall keep any animals, sheep, goats, or horned cattle within the Town for the purposes of trade or business except in a place licensed by the Justices.

Such license shall be taken out half-yearly, on the first day of January and the first day of July in every year.

It shall be in the discretion of the Justices to grant any such license subject to such conditions as they may think fit, and impose a fee not exceeding five rupees in respect of the same.

No person shall keep any pig-stye within the Town to the front of any street, not being shut out therefrom by a sufficient wall or fence, and no person shall keep within the Town, without the permission of the Justices, more than ten pigs, or more than twenty sheep or goats, or ten horned cattle.

Rule against keeping pig-styes, sheep, and cattle.

200. When the pavement or surface of any street, or when any sewer or drain, shall be opened, or broken up by the Justices, they shall, with all convenient speed, complete the work on account of which the same shall have been broken up, and fill in the ground, and make good the pavement and surface, and the sewer or drain, so opened or broken up, and carry away the rubbish occasioned thereby; and shall, in the meantime, cause the place where such pavement or surface shall be so opened or broken up, to be fenced and guarded, and sufficiently lighted during the night.

201. If the Justices deem it necessary for the purposes of this Act, to raise, sink, or otherwise alter, the situation of any water-pipe or gas-pipe, or other water-works or gas-works, laid in any street, they may, from time to time, by notice in writing, require the person to whom any such pipes or works belong, or under whose control they may be, to cause forthwith, or as soon as conveniently may be, any such pipes or works to be raised, sunk, or otherwise altered in position, in such manner as the Justices direct.

Situation of gas and water pipes to be altered at the expense of the Justices.

Such alteration shall not be such as permanently to injure such works, or to prevent the water or gas from flowing as freely and conveniently as before; and the expenses attending such raising, sinking, or altering, and full compensation for the damage done thereby, shall be paid by the Justices, as well to the persons to whom such pipes or works belong, as to all other persons.

And if any dispute shall arise touching the amount or apportionment of such compensation, the same shall be settled in the manner hereinafter provided for the settlement of disputes respecting damages and expenses.

202. If the person to whom any such pipes or works as are mentioned in the last preceding section belong, or under whose control they may be, do not proceed forthwith, or as soon as conveniently may be after the receipt of the notice mentioned in the last preceding section, to cause the same to be raised, sunk, or altered, in such manner as the Justices require, the Justices may themselves cause such pipes or works to be raised, sunk, or altered, as they may think fit, provided that such works be not permanently injured thereby, or the water or gas prevented from flowing as freely and conveniently as before.

If owner, &c., neglect to make alterations, the Justices may cause the same to be made.

203. The Justices may, at their discretion, set apart any public ghaut or place, or any part of the strand of any river (not being private property, or part of the river or river bank of the Port of Calcutta), for the purpose of being used as a bathing place; and if any difference arises between the Justices and the persons affected thereby, such difference shall be settled in the manner hereinafter provided for the settlement of disputes respecting damages and expenses.

Justices in executing works to provide proper drains, &c.

Every person intending to build or take down any building, or to alter or repair the outward part of any building, where any street will be obstructed or rendered inconvenient by means of such work, shall, before beginning the same and having first obtained a permission in writing from the Justices so to do, cause sufficient hoards or fences to be put up, in order to separate the building, where such works are being carried on, from the street, and shall keep such hoard or fence standing and in good condition, to the satisfaction of the Justices, during such time as the public safety or convenience requires, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner of the property so repaired, protected, or enclosed.

PART I.—Of Slaughter-houses, Markets, and Offensive Trades.

No place shall be used as a slaughter-house without a license from the Justices

210. No place shall be used as a slaughter-house within the Town unless a license in writing for the use thereof as a slaughter-house has been obtained from the Justices, who may, at their discretion, from time to time, grant such license

Justices to provide places for slaughter-houses

211. The Justices may, from time to time, if they shall think fit, with the sanction of the Local Government, provide places, within or without the Town, for the purpose of being used as slaughter-houses; and all places within or without the Town heretofore provided by the Justices for the purpose of being used as slaughter-houses shall be deemed to have been provided under this section.

212. Every owner, or occupier, or farmer, of any market for the sale of butcher's meat, poultry, fish, or vegetables, or of any slaughter-house, within the Town, shall cause such drains to be made therein as shall be considered sufficient by the Justices, and (if required so to do by the Justices) shall cause all the floors and drains to be paved with stone or burnt brick, and shall also cause a supply of water to be provided, sufficient for keeping such market or slaughter-house in a clean and wholesome state.

Justices may define ways in bazars

The Justices may define, fix, and determine what portions of any market or bazar within the Town shall be thrown into, and made part of, the existing approaches, roads, paths, and ways in such market or bazar for the convenient use of persons resorting thereto; and shall signify the same by affixing or causing to be affixed in some conspicuous place or places in the market or bazar a notice signifying the limits and description of the parts of the said market or bazar so to be kept and used as part of the approaches, roads, paths and ways.

The Justices may, by notice in writing to the owner, proprietor, or lessee of any such market or bazar, require him within a time to be specified therein, to execute the necessary works and take all necessary measures for the setting out, clearing, widening, and maintaining of the said approaches, roads, paths and ways; and may, in case of such default, by their servants and workmen, enter into and upon the said market or bazar, and clear, set out, and widen the said approaches, roads, paths, and ways, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the person on whom the notice has been served.

Power to Justices to enter and inspect markets, shops &c and to seize unwholesome articles exposed for sale

215 The Justices, or any person authorized by them in that behalf, may at all reasonable times, with or without assistants, enter into and inspect any market, building, shop, stall, or place used for the sale of butcher's meat, poultry, fish, vegetables, corn, bread, flour, or other food, or as a slaughter-house, and may examine any animal, carcase, meat, poultry, game, flesh, fish, vegetables, corn, bread, flour, or other food which may be therein; and in case any animal, carcase, meat, poultry, game, flesh, fish, vegetables, corn, bread, flour, or other food appear to be intended for the food of man and to be unfit for such food, may seize the same;

and if it appear to a Justice of the Peace, that such animal, carcase, meat, poultry, game, flesh, fish, vegetables, corn, bread, flour, or other food is unfit for the food of man, he shall order the same to be destroyed, or to be so disposed of as to prevent its being exposed for sale or used for such food.

Suspension or revocation of license, &c

216. Any Justice of the Peace, before whom any person is convicted of an offence contrary to the provisions of this Act relating to slaughter-houses, or of the non-observance of any of the bye-laws relating thereto made under this Act, in addition to the fine which may be imposed on such person under this Act, may suspend for any period not exceeding two months, the license granted to him under section 210;

and the Justices upon the conviction of any person for a second or other subsequent like offence, may declare his license revoked.

Justices may, in certain cases, order the use of slaughter-houses, and the carrying on of dangerous and offensive trades, to be discontinued.

PART II.—Of Burial and Burning Grounds.

220. The Justices may, if they think fit, cause a survey and measurement to be made of every burial ground and every place used as such; and every such place, and every burning ground, shall be registered by the owner or the person having the control thereof, or, if there be no owner or person authorized to control the same, by order of the Justices, in a book to be kept by them for that purpose.

or that any church or other place of public worship is dangerous to the health of persons frequenting the same, by reason of the state of the vaults or graves within the walls of, or underneath, the same, or in any church-yard or burial ground adjacent thereto, and shall also certify that a fitting place for interment or burning (as the case may be) exists within a convenient distance and is available, no person shall, after a time (not less than two months) to be named in such certificate, bury or burn, or permit or suffer to be buried or burned, any corpse in, upon, within, or under the ground, church, or place of worship to which the certificate relates, except in so far as may be allowed by such certificate.

Every such certificate shall be published in the Calcutta Gazette, and a translation thereof in Bengalee shall, in the case of a burial or burning ground, be affixed conspicuously on some part of the said ground.

223. Notwithstanding any certificate under the last preceding section, where by usage or otherwise there is any right of interment in or under any church or chapel, or in any vault of such church or chapel, or of any church-yard, burial ground, or place of burial affected by such certificate, or where any exclusive right of interment, or any exclusive right to ground for the purpose of interment, has been purchased or acquired, the Justices may, if, on application made to them, they are satisfied that the exercise of such right or the use of such ground will not be injurious to health, grant a license for such exercise or use, during such time and subject to such conditions and restrictions as they may think fit.

Justices may, in certain cases, permit interment in churches, &c.

225. The Justices shall, for the purposes of this Act, have power, by themselves or their Officers, between sunrise and sunset, to enter upon any land, as well for the purpose of making any inspection, survey, or measurement, as for the purpose of executing any work authorized by this Act to be executed by them, without being liable to any legal proceedings or molestation whatsoever on account of such entry, or of anything done on such land in pursuance of this Act.

And if the fine cannot be so levied, the offender may be punished by such Justice of Peace with imprisonment of either description for a term not exceeding two months.

I of 1872 ..	Extending borrowing powers of the Justices and providing for the repayment of the municipal debt	The whole Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is chiefly to consolidate the law relating to the municipal affairs of Calcutta, which is now scattered over ten Acts of the Council, and which in some instances has been found to be difficult of interpretation, consequent on the provisions of all the Acts not being quite consistent with each other.

The opportunity has been taken to make some amendments which the practical working of the law has proved to be necessary. The most important of these amendments is in relation to the water-supply, which, owing to the increased requirements of the town and the wastage consequent on defective fittings and carelessness in using the water, is not sufficient to enable the Justices to fulfil the obligations which the existing law imposes upon them in respect of keeping up the supply at high pressure throughout the day. It is believed that the amendments proposed by the Bill in this respect are such as will not cause much inconvenience to the public.

In order to enable the Justices to increase the water-supply works, the maximum of the annual water-rate has been raised from five to six per cent.

Another amendment of some importance is a proposal to raise the maximum of the lighting-rate from 2 to 2½ per cent., as the proceeds from the present maximum rate are not sufficient to meet the current expenses connected with the lighting of the town.

The Bill does not propose to deal with the question of allowing an appeal from assessments made by the Justices. Such a proposal must necessarily raise questions as to the tribunal to which the appeals should be made, and the form of procedure that should be provided for regulating the conduct of such appeals. It is thought better, therefore, to leave the determination of this question for the consideration of a Select Committee.

It has also been left for determination by the Select Committee whether the Acts for the regulation of markets in Calcutta should be included in this consolidation measure, or whether they should be allowed to stand as regulating a special subject, which is not so intimately connected with the municipal government of the town as to render it necessary that the law for the government of markets should be a part and parcel of a general municipal enactment.

"CHAPTER III A.

"PROBATES, LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION AND CERTIFICATES OF ADMINISTRATION.

Relief where too high a Court-fee has been paid.

"19A. Where any person on applying for the probate of a will or letters of administration has estimated the property of the deceased to be of greater value than the same has afterwards proved to be, and has consequently paid too high a Court-fee thereon, if within six months after the true value of the property has been ascertained, such person produces the probate or letters to the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority of the Province in which the probate or letters has or have been granted, and delivers to such Authority a particular inventory and valuation of the property of the deceased, verified by affidavit or affirmation, and if such Authority is satisfied that a greater fee was paid on the probate or letters than the law required,

the said Authority may—

(a) cancel the stamp on the probate or letters, if such stamp has not been already cancelled;

(b) substitute another stamp for denoting the Court-fee which should have been paid thereon; and

(c) make an allowance for the difference between them as in the case of spoiled stamps, or repay the same in money, at his discretion.

"19 B. Whenever it is proved to the satisfaction of such Authority that an executor or administrator has paid debts due from the deceased to such an amount as, being deducted out of the amount or value of the estate, reduces the same to a sum which, if it had been the whole gross amount or value of the estate, would have occasioned a less Court-fee to be paid on the probate or letters of administration granted in respect of such estate than has been actually paid thereon under this Act, such Authority may return the difference, provided the same be claimed within three years after the date of such probate or letters.

Relief where debts due from a deceased person have been paid out of his estate.

But when, by reason of any legal proceeding, the debts due from the deceased have not been ascertained and paid, or his effects have not been recovered and made available, and in consequence thereof the executor or administrator is prevented from claiming the return of such difference within the said term of three years, the said Authority may allow such further time for making the claim as may appear to be reasonable under the circumstances.

"19 C. Whenever such a grant of probate or letters of administration has been or is made in respect of the whole of the property belonging to an estate, and the full fee chargeable under this Act has been or is paid thereon, no fee shall be chargeable under the same Act when a like grant is made in respect of the whole or any part of the same property belonging to the same estate;

Relief in case of several grants.

Whenever such a grant has been or is made in respect of any property forming part of an estate, the amount of fees then actually paid under this Act shall be deducted when a like grant is made in respect of property belonging to the same estate, identical with or including the property to which the former grant relates.

"19 D. The probate of the will, or the letters of administration of the effects, of any person deceased heretofore or hereafter granted shall be deemed valid and available by his executors or administrators for recovering, transferring or assigning any moveable or immoveable property whereof or whereto the deceased was possessed or entitled, either wholly or partially as a trustee, notwithstanding the amount or value of such property is not included in the amount or value of the estate in respect of which a Court-fee was paid on such probate or letters of administration.

Probates declared valid as to trust-property though not covered by Court-fee.

"19 E. Where any person on applying for probate or letters of administration has estimated the estate of the deceased to be of less value than the same has afterwards proved to be, and has in consequence paid too low a Court-fee thereon, the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority of the Province in which the probate or letters has or have been granted may, on the value of the estate of the deceased being verified by affidavit or affirmation, cause the probate or letters of administration to be duly stamped on payment of the full Court-fee which ought to have been originally paid thereon in respect of such value and of the further penalty, if the probate or letters is or are produced within one year from the date of the grant, of five times, or if it or they is or are produced after one year from such date, of twenty times, such proper Court-fee, without any deduction of the Court-fee originally paid on such probate or letters;

Provision for case where too low a Court-fee has been paid on probates, &c.

Provided that if the application be made within six months after the ascertainment of the true value of the estate and the discovery that too low a Court-fee was at first paid on the probate or letters, and if the said Authority is satisfied that such fee was paid in consequence of a mistake or of its not being known at the time that some particular part of the estate belonged to the deceased, and without any intention of fraud or to delay the payment of the proper Court-fee, the said Authority may remit the said penalty, and cause the probate or letters to be duly stamped on payment only of the sum wanting to make up the fee which should have been at first paid thereon.

"19 F. In case of letters of administration on which too low a Court-fee has been paid at first, the said Authority shall not cause the same to be duly stamped in manner aforesaid until the administrator has given such security to the Court by which the letters of administration have been granted as ought by law to have been given on the granting thereof in case the full value of the estate of the deceased had been then ascertained.

Administrator to give proper security before letters stamped under section 19 E.

"19 G. Where too low a Court-fee has been paid on any probate or letters of administration in consequence of any mistake, or of its not being known at the time that some particular part of the estate belonged to the deceased, if any executor or administrator acting under such probate or letters does not, within six months after the first day of April, 1875, or after the discovery of the mistake, or of any effects not known at the time to have belonged to the deceased, apply to the said Authority and pay what is wanting to make up the Court-fee which ought to have been paid at first on such probate or letters, he shall forfeit the sum of one thousand rupees and also a further sum at the rate of ten rupees per cent. on the amount of the sum wanting to make up the proper Court-fee.

Executors, &c., not paying full Court-fee on probates, &c., within six months after discovery of underpayment.

"19 H. The provisions of sections 19 A to 19 G (both inclusive) shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to certificates granted under Act No. XL of 1858 (for making better provision for the care of the persons and property of Minors in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal) or Act No. XX of 1864 (for making better provision for the care of the persons and property of Minors in the Presidency of Bombay) and to the holders of such certificates."

Sections 19 A to 19 G applied to certificates under Acts XL of 1858 and XX of 1864.

CALCUTTA MUNICIPALITY.

THE HON'BLE MR. HOGG said, when he asked leave to introduce the Bill which had now been circulated to hon'ble members, he pointed out that the law which governed the Municipality of Calcutta was contained in a number of Acts, passed from the date of the passing of Act VI of 1863 down to the present time. Owing to the multiplicity of the Acts, and also from some of the provisions of the Act not being altogether at one with each other, there was considerable difficulty, he stated, in ascertaining what the law was in many points. He therefore, on these grounds, suggested the expediency of consolidating the Municipal law of Calcutta; and at the same time he stated that although he had no intention of proposing any radical change in the law or constitution of the Municipality, yet he thought it would be advisable to avail themselves of this opportunity to amend the law in some respects in which it had been found not to work efficiently. The Bill now in the hands of the Council purported to consolidate ten Acts, commencing with Act VI of 1863 and ending with Act I of 1872, thus containing the whole Municipal law, with the exception of the Acts relating to markets. As the question of the management of markets was not immediately connected with the municipal administration of the affairs of the city, he thought perhaps it would be wise to leave the law upon that subject untouched. He had therefore not introduced in the Bill any provisions for the control of markets, until the Select Committee, to whom this Bill would be referred, considered whether it would not be advisable to leave the law in regard to the matter in its present state.

He now proposed to draw the attention of the Council to all the essential alterations which were proposed in the Bill which was now before the Council. By section 16 he proposed that the Justices should be empowered to make rules for pensions or gratuities to be granted and paid out of the municipal funds to their servants, and to repeal and alter such rules, subject to the control and approval of the local Government.

By section 25 he proposed that the number which constituted the quorum for a special general meeting of the Justices should be reduced from twenty-five to fifteen. The reason for this alteration was that the Justices often found it, especially in the hot weather, difficult to muster so large a number of Justices as twenty-five for the transaction of business, and consequently meetings had often to be adjourned.

Section 56 stated the rates which the Justices were empowered to impose upon the inhabitants of the town. The land-rate, that was the house-rate, had been left untouched; and as to the water-rate, he proposed that the maximum should be fixed at six, instead of five per cent. The reason for this alteration was that at present the Justices had it under consideration to extend the water-supply of the city. At present the maximum rate of five per cent. was levied from the owners of property in the town, the owner realizing three-fourths of the rate from the tenant of his property. The whole of this rate was now expended in meeting the current expenditure, including the interest and sinking fund for the repayment of the capital raised for these works. If, therefore, these works had to be extended—and he believed it was generally anticipated by all persons that a further supply of water would be required—it was absolutely necessary, now that these Municipal Acts were to be amended, that the Council should enable the Justices to impose additional taxation for the purpose of paying interest upon such additional capital as might be found necessary to increase the water-works.

The lighting-rate also was proposed to be raised from two to two and a half per cent. The grounds for this proposal were as follows. Act VI of 1863 proceeded upon the principle that all current expenses connected with the lighting of the town should be paid, not by the owners, but by the occupiers of property. Carrying out that principle, it was enacted that the cost of the lighting of the town should not exceed the gross proceeds of the lighting rate. But the Justices were permitted by the existing law to make a grant from the general fund for the purpose of maintaining lamps in an efficient state of repair. The rate of two per cent. was found not to be sufficient to cover the cost of lighting, and year by year there was an annual deficit of some Rs. 20,000. The Justices, to meet this, with the view of carrying out the letter, although somewhat in opposition to the spirit of the law, made a grant, year by year, from the general fund for the maintenance of the lamps, and that was carried to the credit of the lighting-rate, and thereby the deficit of Rs. 20,000 was made up. It followed, therefore, that that was paid, not as intended by the Act, by the occupiers of property, but by the owners. He had therefore thought it better to provide that the maximum lighting-rate should be two and a half per cent: if that were not done, the Council would possibly think fit to modify the existing law, to enable the Justices to make grants from time to time from the general municipal fund to supplement the deficit from the lighting-rate. He would here note that the concluding clause of section 56 said that it should be in the option of the Justices, in lieu of any of the rates, to impose upon any land a fixed annual rate not exceeding four rupees for every cottah. That was a clerical error. The clause was intended to provide that it should be in the option of the Justices, in lieu of the annual land-rate, &c. It was not intended that the Justices should have a discretion to impose a rate of four rupees per cottah in lieu of any other rate but the land or house-rate.

By section 73 he had enabled the Justices to impose an assessment upon the town for a maximum period of three years, or for any less period that they might think fit. He thought it wise to do that, as at present considerable inconvenience was felt by the Justices being compelled to rate all property for three years, no discretion being left to them as to declaring an assessment for any less period.

In section 100 considerable modifications were proposed in connection with the supply of water to the town. At present the law required the Justices for fifteen hours out of the twenty-four to provide a supply of water at a pressure sufficient to enable premises at a height of fifty feet to be freely supplied with water. For the remaining hours of the twenty-four, they were compelled to keep up a pressure of not less than ten feet. The Justices had always endeavoured to carry out the provisions of the Act, but under existing arrangements it was found to be practically impossible. The modification which he had proposed in the Bill was to compel the Justices from time to time, with the sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor, to declare at what hours water should be delivered at high pressure; and during the remaining hours of the day that the water should be supplied at a pressure of ten feet,—sufficient to supply the stand-posts. Of course it must be conceded that it would be a great convenience to the public generally that water should be supplied at high pressure throughout the day. However, he did not think that any practical inconvenience would be felt by the inhabitants of Calcutta if, during certain hours of the day only, water was delivered to the top of their houses at high pressure. They would know at what hours pressure would be put on, and they would then be able either to store the water in tanks or adopt any measures they thought fit to supply themselves with such a quantity of water as they would require for the remaining hours of the day. He had not proposed that the Justices should be compelled to supply any water to the stand-posts during the night. Practically, it was not requisite to do so, except for extinguishing fires. If the Justices were compelled to supply water to the stand-posts during the night, it would be found impossible to fill the reservoir from which the town was supplied during the day; and last year it became a question whether we should fill the reservoir or keep the stand-posts charged with water, as required by the Act. The Justices had adopted the former arrangement, and now did not, as a rule, keep the stand-posts charged with water at night. This was an infringement of the Act, but it was found practically impossible, without imposing great inconvenience upon the people, to give effect to the provisions of the existing law. As water was only required during the night for the purpose of extinguishing fires, the proposal he had made would not in any way cut off the supply for that purpose. The furnaces at the pumping-stations were always kept at work, and when a fire occurred, as there was telegraphic communication between the police-office and the pumping-stations, pressure could be put on before the fire-engines could arrive at the place where the fire had occurred.

There was another important modification of the law which he proposed in section 114, in connection with the police budget. At present the Justices, by Act XI of 1867, were compelled to pay the cost of the police, minus such contribution as the Government might from time to time think fit to grant. Under the existing law the budget must be submitted by the Commissioner of Police to the Justices, and the Justices had the power to modify and amend it in any way they thought proper. That, however, was entirely opposed to the provisions of the Police Act; and the late Advocate-General, Mr. Cowie, was distinctly of opinion that the provisions of Act XI of 1867, in so far as they

There was another subject to which he wished to draw attention, and that was the question of assessments. In the statement of objects and reasons it was declared—

"The Bill does not propose to deal with the question of allowing an appeal from assessments made by the Justices. Such a proposal must necessarily raise questions as to the tribunal to which the appeals should be made, and the form of procedure that should be provided for regulating the conduct of such appeals. It is thought better, therefore, to leave the determination of this question for the consideration of a Select Committee."

Presuming that the subject would receive the consideration of the Select Committee, he would beg to offer a few remarks for their consideration. The Port Commissioners, a body with which he had the honor to be connected, lately had their premises brought under assessment. The assessment was fixed by the Town Assessor at Rs. 2,25,000. This the Port Commissioners thought excessive, and an appeal was preferred to the Justices, who reduced the assessment to Rs. 2,03,880. The practical difficulty attending the assessment arose from the circumstance that the premises were not rented, but occupied by the Commissioners themselves, and therefore the Justices had to determine the proper rent. The practical result was that the rent on which the assessment was calculated actually resulted in twelve per cent of the cost of the construction of the buildings. Some of the hon'ble gentlemen in that Council were owners of house property, and he thought they would be very glad to get a clear eight per cent upon the cost of a building, and that twelve per cent was a very large and unnecessarily severe assessment. He would not attempt to go into the merits of the Port Commissioners' case: he merely stated the fact that the assessment resulted in giving a rental of twelve per cent upon the cost of construction. Not being satisfied with that result, the Port Commissioners were desirous of taking the matter afresh before some independent tribunal, but on consulting the Advocate-General they found that there was no tribunal before which they could bring the matter in appeal, and that the decision of the Justices was final. Since that appeal was preferred, there had been considerable vexation and dissatisfaction created in the town by the way in which the assessment had been carried out. The matter was lately brought before the Justices in meeting, and the Justices resolved that, with a view to prevent assessments being carried to an excessive amount, the Bench or Court of Appeal which was to hear such assessments should be composed of Justices other than the executive officers of the Municipality. With every intention of keeping the assessments within a fair rental by an appeal to a Board so constituted, he did not think it would be satisfactory to the rate-payers to find their appeals decided by the Justices themselves, who would be considered to be judges in their own cases. It would be much more satisfactory if the reference was made to an independent tribunal, as under the Bombay Act. He found that under the Bombay Act assessments were conducted by the Municipal Commissioner, an official who was, in some respects, in the same position as the Chairman of the Justices here, exercising full authority in all executive matters, but an appeal could be preferred to the Court of Petty Sessions. Now in Calcutta they were not blessed with a Court of Petty Sessions, but they had a Small Cause Court and a High Court, and he saw no reason why appeals should not lie from assessments of the Justices to the Small Cause Court or the High Court, according to the value of the property involved. As to the question of procedure, he did not think any difficulty would be found in applying the procedure now in force in either of those Courts in suits which were brought before them, or in altering it so as to meet the case of an appeal from the assessments of the Justices; and he was quite sure that such an appeal would be satisfactory not only to the rate-payer, but would also relieve the Justices from a very disagreeable task.

Before quitting this subject, he would remark upon the principle which had been laid down in the existing law for assessments. As a principle, the assessment was to be made upon the annual value of houses and premises. The annual value was, under Act VI of 1863, taken to be the estimated gross annual rent at which the houses, buildings, and lands, liable to the rate, might be let, or might reasonably be expected to let, from year to year. In the case of land or property held on a lease, the lease, as a general rule, was accepted as setting forth the fair annual rent of the premises; and unless it could be shown that there were special circumstances which would render that testimony invalid, the assessment was made upon the rent specified in the lease. In the case of newly constructed houses not upon lease, and in the very numerous cases of houses occupied by their owners and not leased, it was a very difficult matter indeed to ascertain what the annual value was. In many parts of the town there were streets occupied entirely by owners, and it was very difficult to get a house let on lease with which to compare, which would show the fair annual value. He would therefore throw out, for the consideration of the Select Committee, whether it would not be desirable to give an option to the Justices, in such cases where the houses were not let, and it could not be easily ascertained what the annual letting value might be, to permit them to assess the value at a rate which should bear a certain proportion, say from five to eight per cent, of the cost of the construction of the house and the value of the land upon which the house was constructed. Such a provision would, he thought, be equally equitable to the rate-payers and to the Justices. It would be acceptable to the rate-payers because it would fix a limit beyond which their property could not be assessed, and it would be acceptable to the Justices because it would enable them to have the means of ascertaining the maximum rate at which they could assess, in many cases in which the assessment was very difficult.

The hon'ble mover of the Bill had observed that it would be open to the Select Committee to import any improvements or amendments which they thought advisable into the Bill, although they had not now been imported into it, and amongst these he mentioned one which was rather important, namely the constitution of the Municipal body. MR. SCHALCH would be the very last person to say that the town had not been immensely benefited by the administration of the Justices within the last twelve years—since they were appointed. No one could look round and see the vast improvements in the repair of streets, in conservancy, and, above all in the water-works, without acknowledging that these works have resulted in great advantage to the town. At the same time, there was little doubt that there were certain defects connected with the constitution of the Municipality which were felt, and which it would be advisable to take the present opportunity to remedy. Without going into much detail, he might say he thought these defects seemed chiefly to lie in the number and clumsiness of the present machinery, and somewhat in the want of definition and distinctness between the powers of the Municipality and the powers of the executive. No doubt the present Corporation was a large body: he believed that there were carried on the list of the Corporation, even since the exclusion of the Justices of Bengal, Behar, and Orissa, some hundred and twenty members. It was not very easy to get together such a large number of Justices, and there were many small details which came before them which, he thought, would be better disposed of by a more compact body; and the result of their frequent meetings was that a great deal of time was spent which could not be spared by many members of the Corporation who would otherwise be happy to attend and be of great help to the Municipality. The merchants were a class of people who could afford great help, but could not spare much of their time. Defects somewhat like these had been felt in Bombay, and led to the enactment of the municipal law which prevailed there now. He would briefly state the main provisions of the Bombay Act. The Corporation consisted of sixty-four members; sixteen, or one-fourth of them, were appointed by the Government; another fourth were appointed by the body of the Justices,—a body which might be of an unlimited number, and were altogether distinct from the Municipality, and had no connection with it further than to appoint their quota of the members. The other thirty-two members were elected by the rate-payers on certain conditions as to qualification. A payment of fifty rupees annually in taxes formed the qualification for voting, and payment of one hundred rupees qualified for election as a member. From these sixty-four members there were then appointed what was called the Town Council, which consisted of twelve members, eight of whom were appointed by the Municipality and four by the Government; the Government having the right to nominate the Chairman of the Town Council. Besides the Chairman of the Town Council, there was a Chairman of the Corporation, whose sole duty was to preside at meetings of the Corporation. The object of the creation of the Town Council was for the due administration of the municipal fund. In addition to this Corporation and the Town Council, there was an officer, unknown to us in Calcutta, called the Municipal Commissioner. In his hands lay the whole executive duties of the Municipality, or, as was described in the Act, in him vested the "entire executive power and responsibility" for the purposes of the Act. The Municipal Commissioner was prohibited from sitting as a member of the Town Council. Of the Corporation itself there were only four quarterly meetings, but there was power reserved to the Chairman to call a special meeting. Practically the functions of the Corporation were confined to laying down rates to be imposed, and to voting the annual budget; while the Town Council saw that the money was properly expended, and that the executive work was done by the Municipal Commissioner. The constitution of a Municipality somewhat upon that principle seemed to MR. SCHALCH a good idea: the only thing was that it should be a matter for grave consideration whether the principle of election should be admitted in Calcutta. If it were not admitted here, then no portion of the Corporation would be elected, and in that case the present Corporation might be continued. They were selected with a good deal of care and discrimination, and they would form the Town Corporation; but subordinate to them he would suggest the appointment of a Town Council of twelve members. The Town Council might be composed of five members appointed by the Corporation to represent the five divisions of the town; four members might be nominated by what might be called the representative bodies in Calcutta,—the Chamber of Commerce, the British Indian Association, the Trades' Association, and any other body which might be supposed to represent any particular class, such as the Literary Society of the Mahomedans; and the remaining three members might be appointed by the Government to represent their interests, and one of these should be the Chairman of the Corporation, who would also be the Chairman of the Town Council. He would not have a Municipal Commissioner, as at Bombay, to transact the executive duties irrespective of the Town Council, but would combine those executive duties with the proper supervision of the Municipal Fund, and place both duties in the hands of the Town Council. The Chairman, who at present found that the whole duty of initiation devolved upon him, and that he did not very often meet with the support he would desire to meet with from so large a body as the present Corporation, would have very little difficulty in obtaining, in all expedient matters, the support of the Town Council, who would, in fact, take a co-ordinate part in all these executive duties. He thought a scheme of that kind would meet many of the objections now made against the present Corporation. He had himself had the advantage of being for some years the head of the Municipality, and since that period he had been connected with another body, the Port Commissioners, whose duties were carried on very much on the principle of a Town Council. There we had a small body who, in conjunction with the Chairman, conducted the duties of the Corporation. But if it should be thought that a Town Council alone would be too limited a body, and not sufficiently representative of the town, to be entrusted with the entire administration of the Municipality, then if a Town Council were combined with the Corporation, somewhat in the manner he had sketched out, and the duties of the Corporation confined to the settling of the rates on the budget, leaving the minor details to the Town Council, the system would, he thought, be carried on in a much more satisfactory manner. Any expenditure not provided for by the budget would have, of course, to be brought before the Corporation, and a special grant, as in Bombay, would be required to be given for the purpose.

He had thrown out these remarks not for present discussion, but with a view to their consideration in Select Committee.

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL said a quondam Governor-General of India, alike distinguished for ability and eloquence, once remarked that the Legislative Council of India was a standing committee of changes. If proof was wanted to illustrate the truth of that saying, the history of municipal legislation of Calcutta afforded a notable proof. The first law which gave the present constitution to the Calcutta Municipality was passed in 1863, and within the last twelve years about twelve Acts, including those for markets, had been enacted, giving on an average one Municipal Act for the town per annum. Thus there were changes almost annually going on in the municipal law of Calcutta. The time had arrived for the consolidation of those laws, and the task could not have been undertaken by a worthier individual than his hon'ble friend in charge of the Bill. He had had experience of the working of the Municipality for the last nine years, and his energy and ability had always extorted the admiration of the community and the Government, though there had been occasional differences of opinion between the Justices and himself regarding his method of action. The present Bill aimed at the consolidation of ten Acts, excluding the Market Acts. The hon'ble mover had said that the question of the incorporation of the Market Acts might be considered in the Select Committee, who might, if they should think proper, include them in the Bill. For his own part, BABOO KRISTODAS PAL thought that the law relating to the Municipality of Calcutta should be one, and that the Market Acts should not be left separate: but the Select Committee would doubtless consider that important point.

The hon'ble mover of the Bill had explained that he had not touched the constitution of the Corporation; but the hon'ble member to his right (Mr. Schalch) had suggested that the present opportunity should be taken to improve the constitution, if practicable. The hon'ble gentleman was the first to inaugurate the present municipal system of Calcutta, and he had considerable experience in the working of it. He was now the head of another Corporation, which, though limited in its scope, had still very important and somewhat analogous functions to perform; and occupying the vantage ground he did as the head of that Corporation, he saw the defects that disfigured the neighbouring institution. He had therefore propounded a scheme for the reform of the municipal constitution of Calcutta. Whatever fell from the hon'ble gentleman on a subject like this was entitled to the attentive consideration of this Council, and BABOO KRISTODAS PAL readily admitted that the suggestions his hon'ble friend had made were very important and worthy of serious consideration. This was not the place to review the history of the Municipal Corporation created by Sir Cecil Beadon's Act of 1863, but one thing he might remark, that whatever the errors and shortcomings of that body, it had done its duty courageously, honestly, and on the whole satisfactorily. With two such hon'ble gentlemen, who were now members of this Council, as Chairmen of the Corporation, and with a body of citizens as members of that fraternity, who were noted for intelligence, practical knowledge, and public spirit, it could not but be otherwise. The object of both was the good of the town, and barring occasional differences of opinion, the Justices and their Chairman had co-operated heartily in furthering the common object. He would not enumerate the many improvements which the Justices had introduced: any one who had seen Calcutta twelve years ago, and who saw it to-day, could at once point to the improvements in question. But at the same time he must admit that those improvements had been effected at an enormous cost. The taxation of Calcutta had increased from nine and a half to twenty per cent, and in addition to the revenue derived from such taxation the Justices had incurred a very large debt for the construction of works of permanent utility. The establishment had also enormously increased, and indeed there was a general impression that a considerable part of the municipal income was unnecessarily eaten up by the establishment. He believed the hon'ble member in charge of the Bill himself admitted that, if he had the power under the Act, he could considerably reduce the establishment, and combine economy with efficiency. BABOO KRISTODAS PAL hoped that the present Bill would give the Chairman the power to carry out his views in that respect.

Now with regard to the constitution of the Municipality, the hon'ble member who last spoke said that the present machinery was unwieldy. There could, BABOO KRISTODAS PAL thought, be no difference of opinion that it was an unwieldy body; that every member of the Corporation did not devote that attention to municipal affairs which it was his duty to do; and that on many occasions things were carried by the votes of the majority, perhaps not intelligently given. This was more or less the case with large representative bodies everywhere: it was the few who worked, and the many who enjoyed the dignity of office. It was the few working members of Parliament who had made it what it was, and not the six hundred and odd who composed the House of Commons. And the working Justices, the hon'ble mover could testify, spared no labour and trouble to discharge their duties conscientiously and efficiently. If the present constitution was to be changed, he hoped it would not be a half measure. The scheme which the hon'ble member who last spoke had propounded, he was sorry to say, had the character of a half measure. It was borrowed from the Bombay Municipal Act, and hon'ble members were doubtless aware of the violent opposition that Act met with from the citizens of Bombay whilst it was passing through the local Council. Europeans and natives banded themselves together to oppose the passing of the Bill, and they came up to the Viceroy praying that he would put his veto upon it. His Excellency allowed the Bill to pass, upon the ground that it was a merely tentative measure, and BABOO KRISTODAS PAL hoped that a Bill passed under such doubtful auspices would not be made a model for the municipal constitution of Calcutta. If a move was to be made for the amendment of the municipal constitution of Calcutta, he hoped that the right of election on a broad basis would be conceded. He was not prepared to say that the Council was in a position, or that the time had arrived, to concede a thorough elective system to the town of Calcutta; but he must observe that no mere tinkering of the municipal constitution would satisfy the public. If it was thought advisable to give the citizens of Calcutta the right of self-government, they ought to have it fully and unreservedly. But then the question would arise—suppose the elective system be conceded, should the Chairman be elected by the representatives of the town, or should his appointment rest with the Government? Now there could be no thorough elective system unless the Chairman's appointment were also made elective; and with the question of the appointment of the Chairman arose many important questions which it was not desirable to discuss there. He was of opinion that for a long time to come it would not be desirable to separate the appointment of the Chairman of the Justices from the Civil Service. He had seen the working of the Calcutta Municipality for the last twelve years, and he must confess that, though the proceedings of the Chairman might have been sometimes characterized by an arbitrary spirit, he had proved an honest administrator of public funds and public affairs. There could not be a more trustworthy agent than a member of the Civil Service. If, then, the Council were not prepared to leave the election of the Chairman in the hands of the Town Council, would it be worth its while to constitute a Corporation composed partly of members nominated by the existing Corporation, partly of delegates from the public Associations of Calcutta, and partly of members appointed by the Government? Now with regard to the Associations of Calcutta, although he had the honour to belong to one of them, he must admit that they were not permanent bodies, and that it was therefore open to question as to whether the permanent interests of the town should be committed to bodies who lived on the breath of their subscribers. In the next place the hon'ble member proposed that the Town Council should be formed on the model of the Port Commission, and that its proceedings should be conducted in the manner of those of the Port Commissioners. Now, with every deference to the Port Commissioners, BABOO KRISTODAS PAL hoped the Council would not pass any measure which would reduce the Town Corporation to the level of the Port Commission. The Port Commissioners, as the representatives of the mercantile interest, were doubtless doing their work well and satisfactorily; but their close borough system, it appeared to him, was not suited to the public interests of Calcutta. The proceedings of the Port Commission were not open to the public; the representatives of the press were not admitted to its sittings. An attempt, he believed, was once made for the admission of reporters to the sittings of the Commission, but the application was refused. No one outside the pale of the Port Commission knew what they did, beyond what they might vouchsafe to state in their annual report. There was, therefore, no check whatever over the proceedings of the Port Commission. On the other hand, the Justices acted in the full blaze of publicity. They did not conceal any thing from the public view; on the contrary they courted criticism, and the public were therefore always in a position to know the history of every question discussed by the Justices, and the measures adopted with regard to it. The policy of publicity, introduced by the Municipal Act, had infused a new public spirit into the citizens of Calcutta, and he could assure the Council that the rate-payers of the town now took a far greater interest in its affairs than they had ever before done. They now read every paper published by the Municipality, they discussed every question, and were ready to give their opinion upon important matters which affected their interests; and he hoped the Council would not take a retrograde step and put an end to that which was one of the redeeming features in the present system of municipal administration of Calcutta.

As for having a small compact body to manage the executive business of the town, he might say that that was now practically done. There were already standing committees to aid and advise the Chairman in the terms of the law, and although there were two general committees, they practically met together and thus constituted one committee. These committees met on an average once a week, and thus performed the functions of the Town Council which the hon'ble member who last spoke proposed to establish. Of course these committees had not the prestige or the authority of the proposed Town Council, but they did all the executive work placed before them by the Chairman; and as the Chairman had made it a rule not to come before the Corporation with any proposal without, in the first instance, laying it before the committee, there was little friction between him and the Justices. He came before the Justices armed with the recommendations of the committees, and he generally received their support.

In making these remarks, BABOO KRISTODAS PAL wished it to be understood that he did not mean to say that the constitution of the Municipality was not susceptible of improvement. But he hoped that whatever changes it might be thought proper to make, they would be made in the right direction,—that was to say, in the direction of greater freedom and greater power to the rate-payers and their representatives than was given under the Bombay Municipal Act. That Act was now under trial, and he did not think it would be wise to follow it here.

With regard to the Bill itself, he begged to offer a few remarks. First with regard to the constitution of the Corporation as defined in Chapter II. Section 4 of that Chapter said—

"All Justices of the Peace for the Town of Calcutta, and such other Justices for Bengal, Behar and Orissa, resident in Calcutta, as the local Government may from time to time, by order published in the Calcutta Gazette, appoint in that behalf, shall, by the name of the Justices of the Peace for the Town of Calcutta, be a body corporate."

It was evidently implied by this section that Justices for Bengal, Behar, and Orissa might be appointed members of the Corporation. He would not trouble the Council with the history of Act VI of 1871, withdrawing the Bengal, Behar, and Orissa Justices from the Town Corporation, which was passed during the incumbency of Sir William Grey. He was ready to admit that the Bengal, Behar, and Orissa Justices would prove a very useful element in the Corporation, if they could be made to take due interest in the business of the town. They were a highly educated body of gentlemen, and from their position they were greatly experienced in public affairs; but unfortunately, as the history of the Corporation showed, they took very little interest in the legitimate business of the Corporation, except where personal questions arose. Their conduct in this way became a public scandal; representations were made to the Government of the day for the amendment of the constitution of the Municipality in that respect; and Sir William Grey, concurring in the views of the memorialists, sanctioned the passing of that law. BABOO KRISTODAS PAL did not think that it was intended that the old law should be revived; but the words would seem to imply that the Bengal, Behar, and Orissa Justices might be appointed to the Corporation as of old. He admitted that there would be no reasonable objection if the Lieutenant-Governor were to appoint such gentlemen Justices of the Peace for Calcutta independently of their position as Bengal, Behar, and Orissa Justices. There were already several Civilian gentlemen members of the Corporation, but they had been nominated independently of their position as Bengal Justices. But he thought the law should not re-enact that the Bengal Justices should, by virtue of their position, be appointed Justices of the Peace for the town. It might be left to the discretion of the Government to appoint them.

Then, with regard to the Municipal fund. Section 6 declared that the municipal fund might be applied for the purposes of this Act and "for such other purposes as the Justices, with the sanction of the local Government, may direct." This, he submitted, was a direct and, he was obliged to say, a dangerous innovation. If the committee of the Town Band or the promoters of the Zoological gardens, or any other body or individuals who had some fancy project to serve, went to this milch cow for funds, the Justices in their wisdom might give the grant. But the interests of the rate-payers would be sacrificed, and there would be nothing in the law to prevent such a gross misapplication of the municipal fund. This power, he thought, should not be given, and the objects for which the fund should be expended should be distinctly defined in the law.

He had remarked at the outset that the existing law did not give sufficient power to the Justices to enforce economy in their establishments. Under the present law it was obligatory on the Justices to appoint the following officers, viz. Vice-Chairman, secretary, engineer, surveyor, health-officer, collector of taxes, and assessor. Now the appointment of health officer had often been a subject of discussion in the Municipal Corporation, and on every occasion when the question was raised it produced some irritation. It was felt that the law had unreasonably tied the hands of the Justices, and that they could not appoint an officer on condition that he should give a part only of his time to the work of the office, which would be quite sufficient for the purpose, and devote the rest of his time to whatever occupation he might think best. Baboo Kristodas Pal thought that power should be given to the Justices to make some such arrangement, if they deemed it necessary, with the health-officer with regard to the employment of his time. None knew better than the hon'ble mover of the Bill that the work of the health-officer was not such as to occupy the whole of his time, and the Justices could save a large sum of money annually if they could effect such an arrangement as the one they did while Dr. Macrae held the office of health-officer. With the same object Baboo Kristodas Pal would wish that power should be given to the Justices to double up some of the appointments at any time they might think fit. The Justices might some time obtain the services of an officer who, as health officer, or engineer, might also conduct the duties of Vice-Chairman, in the same way as the Vice-Chairman of the Port Commissioners performed the duties of engineer-in-chief to that body. Although such an arrangement was not practicable now, it might be practicable at some future time, and he thought the law should give power to the Justices to double up any appointments in their discretion.

He now came to the question of taxation. He observed that the Bill proposed an increase of the lighting rate from two to two and a half per cent, and of the water-rate from five to six per cent. The hon'ble mover of the Bill had explained his reasons why he asked for an increase of the lighting-rate. Baboo Kristodas Pal admitted that the Corporation had to make annual grants of from Rs. 16,000 to Rs. 20,000 to make up the deficit in the lighting-rate fund. He did not believe that the law did not empower the Justices to make such grants, though he was aware that doubts were entertained on that point. At the same time he was not quite sure whether a redistribution of the lamps would not effect a saving which might secure efficiency in illumination, and dispense with the necessity of increasing the lighting-rate. That question had sometimes been urged upon the Justices, but had not been practically carried out. He did not see why this should not be done, particularly when it involved the question of an additional half per cent rate. It was also observable that the Justices seemed to be powerless in enforcing their contract with the Gas Company with regard to the illuminating power of gas, and that also occasioned a deficiency in the lighting fund. If they could enforce the illuminating power contracted for, the lamps could be posted at greater intervals than at present, and thus a saving could be effected. At any rate, he thought that the present grant of from Rs. 16,000 to Rs. 20,000 from the general funds was not grudged by the Justices, and he hoped that the hon'ble mover of the Bill would drop this additional half per cent.

With regard to water-rate, he readily admitted that the present supply was insufficient, and that if it was to be extended more money must be had. The water-supply had undoubtedly proved a great blessing to the town, for which the rate-payers were greatly indebted to their first Chairman (Mr. Schalch); and he believed that if there was any act of the Municipality which had the unalloyed gratitude of the rate-payers more than another, it was the adoption of the water-supply system. But the benefit of the water-supply had not been extended to the poorer parts of the town. No less than fourteen miles of bye-lanes still remained to be piped, and the reason given was that there were no funds. He believed that the object of the proposed extension of the water-supply was to lay down pipes in those bye-lanes where the poorer classes chiefly dwelt. In considering the question of imposing an additional water-rate, he submitted that it was worth the consideration of the Council and the Select Committee whether such a scheme could not be devised as would, as far as practicable, relieve the poor of the burden which now existed, and make the rich contribute in proportion to their own demand for, and consumption of water. At present the water-rate was founded upon a most inequitable system. It would be remembered that the high pressure system had been introduced chiefly for the benefit of the rich who dwelt in two and three-storied houses. But, as had been pointed out by his hon'ble friend, the rich and the poor were made to pay alike. The rich man who lived in a palace and wanted water in the third floor of his house, and the poor man who lived in a hut, but who had not been able to lay on water because the water pipes did not run through the bye-lane in which he dwelt, were made to pay equally the five per cent rate. That, Baboo Kristodas Pal submitted, was neither fair nor just. When the Act of 1863 was passed, the water-rate was based on a just and equitable principle. It was this, that a general rate of two per cent should be levied for water supplied at a height of three feet, and that a graduated scale should be followed for taxing persons taking water at a greater height than three feet. Now, he did not know whether the scheme which had been sketched out by the hon'ble member who spoke last would be practicable, because it would lead to complicated calculations; whereas the principle laid down by the Municipal Act of 1863 was easy and quite practicable. If, for instance, a general rate of four per cent, to cover the present working charges of the water supply, were levied from all persons who received a supply, say at a height of five feet, whether they laid on water or not in their houses, and an additional percentage, graduated according to distance, say of one per cent for water supplied at a greater height than 5, 10, or 15 feet, respectively, then the collections from this graduated impost or rate would, Baboo Kristodas Pal believed, cover more than was expected to be derived from the additional one per cent. rate The effect of such an equitable adjustment of the water-rate would be the relief of the poor and the proper taxation of the rich.

He threw out these suggestions for the consideration of the Select Committee. The plan of the hon'ble gentleman who spoke last was to measure the water by metre, but Baboo Kristodas Pal was not quite sure whether that system would work satisfactorily. Then, with regard to this question of water-supply, he observed that the word 'pumps' had been introduced in section 94, he did not know with what object, because stand-posts and not pumps were now used. If the object was to prevent wastage, he thought a self-closing stand-post would practically answer that purpose, whereas pumps would cause great trouble and inconvenience to the public.

He would now draw attention to section 188, which involved the question of bustee improvement. The Council were aware that that question now occupied a considerable share of the attention of the Justices, and he believed that some sections of this Bill were intended to cover the recommendations of the Special Committee of the Justices on the subject. Section 188 declared that huts might be removed from any bustee without the payment of compensation, but the present law provided that compensation should be given to the owners of huts for compulsory removal of the same. The provision in the Bill, he thought, would be unfair to the poor tenants.

The procedure for carrying out this provision would be somewhat in this wise. The Justices would require the landlord to remove the hut, he (the landlord) would be compelled to call upon the tenant to remove it, and the tenant would have to bear the loss. BABOO KRISTODAS PAL did not think that it would be fair to burden the tenant with this loss. If the removal of a hut was intended as a sanitary measure for the benefit of the public, justice required that the public funds should bear the cost. Then the same section provided that it would be lawful for the Justices to call upon the landlord to 'execute such operations' as they might think fit for the improvement of a bustee, in default of which the Justices would carry out the said operations at the expense of the landlord. Now the power thus given to the Justices was very wide and indefinite. The law ought to specify the operations which it would be lawful for the Justices to compel the landlord to execute. On reference to some of the reports of the officers of the Municipality on bustee improvements, he observed that one officer had actually recommended that a rivetting wall should be attached to a tank, and another that a ghât should be constructed for washing and bathing in the tank, as sanitary measures intended for the conservation of the health of the locality. It was impossible to say what works might not be demanded from the landlord in the name of sanitary improvement by over-zealous officers, if the law were left so uncertain and indefinite.

Section 196 sanctioned the imposition of what was called in Bombay the Halalcore cess. Of course this was a very important work to be done by the Justices, but he thought the cess should be so regulated as not to take the form of a new tax. The residents of the town already bore the expenses of cleansing their necessaries, and if the cost the Justices might levy should not exceed the charges already incurred by them, there would be no objection to the proposed cess. He thought the maximum rate of the cess should be defined in this Bill.

Section 197 required owners to provide privies for their tenants. None knew better than the hon'ble mover of the Bill that the practice in this town was for occupiers to provide latrines for themselves, and that as the women did not generally go to a public latrine, every occupier who had a family had, as a rule, his own private latrine, and he had it built at his own expense. But as this section was worded, it would be incumbent upon the owners of land to provide latrines for each occupier, and the Council could well conceive the cost which would be thus thrown upon the owner for this object. The Engineer to the Justices himself said that public latrines would not be resorted to by the poor inhabitants of bustees. He wrote:—

"There can be no doubt that the wisest plan would be to abolish privies in bustees entirely, and in their place to erect latrines which should be resorted to by all of both sexes. But is this practicable? and would the European poor, who are not imbued with the caste and other prejudices of the native, take readily to such a scheme?"

Such being the feeling of the people, the landlord under the propose section must provide a latrine for the use and accommodation of every occupier, and the cost which would be imposed upon him would necessarily be enormous. BABOO KISTODAS PAL did not say that latrines should not be constructed; but where the occupier was unable to construct a latrine, the Justices should construct it and charge a fee. And as hon'ble members were aware, these latrines were a source of profit; the Justices would not suffer any loss by such measure. But as a rule the occupier should be made to construct his own privy.

He had only a few more suggestions to offer for the consideration of the Select Committee. In the first place it was very desirable that the law should distinctly define the powers of the Justices and those of the Chairman respectively. Considerable misunderstanding prevailed with regard to the relative powers of the Chairman and the Justices. In regard to the bustee question itself, the Chairman contended that he had power under the existing law to initiate measures of improvement without consulting the Justices. The Justices, on the other hand, contended that the Chairman had no power to initiate such measures without obtaining their sanction. Now it was very desirable that, as the law was about to be consolidated, the powers of the Chairman and the Justices should be distinctly defined, so as to prevent future differences and misunderstandings. It might be well worth consideration whether the Chairman, who was the executive head, should not be more in the position of a moderator at the meetings of the Justices and have no power to vote. As the hon'ble member who spoke last had remarked, the Municipal Commissioner of Bombay had no seat in the Town Council. He would not go to that length, but would suggest, for the consideration of the Select Committee whether the Chairman would not occupy a more dignified position by acting as a moderator than playing the part of a partisan when the measures proposed by himself were under discussion.

With regard to assessment cases and appeals, BABOO KRISTODAS PAL would allow appeals not only in assessment cases, but also in license cases. Though the Chairman under the law was authorised to regulate the license fees, but as a matter of fact he had not time to do so, and the work was necessarily left to a subordinate officer in charge of the License Department. It was therefore very desirable that there should be an appeal to a Board of Justices in license cases. This was allowed, BABOO KRISTODAS PAL believed, under the Bombay Municipal Act.

Regarding assessment appeals, the hon'ble member who spoke last had correctly described the course followed in Bombay. The Board of Justices here, BABOO KRISTODAS PAL submitted, very much resembled the quarter sessions in Bombay; and if the law allowed the Chairman or Vice-Chairman to revise assessments made by the assessor, and if appeal was made from their decisions to a Board of independent Justices, the object aimed at by the hon'ble member would be attained.

The hon'ble member had referred to the case of the Port Commissioners. BABOO KRISTODAS PAL might mention that the assessment in that case was made on the principle that the additional buildings should bear the same proportion of assessment at which the existing buildings had been assessed; so there was no absence of principle in the assessment of the additional buildings of the Port Commissioners, as alleged.

Adverting to the water-rate, BABOO KRISTODAS PAL remarked that he could not conceive upon what principle one-fourth of the rate was made payable by the owner and three-fourths by the occupier. The water was laid on solely and exclusively for the benefit of the occupier. If the occupier was made liable for the police and lighting-rates, he thought that the occupier, on the same principle, ought to pay the whole of the water-rate. With regard to the mode of payment of the water-rate, he observed that it was now payable by the owner with power to recoup himself from the occupier. Now the lighting and police-rates were realized from the occupier direct, and on the same principle he thought the water-rate should be recovered from the occupier. He might observe that the law gave power to the owner to recover the water-rate from the occupier as an addition to his rent. Now, in the case of huts, this condition was attended with great hardship, inasmuch as under a recent ruling of the High Court the hut was an immoveable property, but removeable by the tenant. Thus the landlords now laboured under great difficulty in realizing their own rents, and it was by no means fair to burden them again with the task of collecting the water-rate from the occupiers in addition to their own rents.

Lastly, he would invite the attention of the Council and the Select Committee to this question—Whether there ought not to be some provision in the Bill which would enable the Justices to co-operate with the rate-payers to make improvements, when the latter came forward to bear a share of the cost of such improvements. There had been lately several cases in which rate-payers offered to pay one half of the cost for the piping of streets and lanes for drainage and water-supply; but the Justices could not be moved, as the law did not give the rate-payers power to demand such improvement on payment of costs. He thought that in such cases facility should be afforded to rate-payers to come forward and contribute. If, for instance, the residents of a bye-lane not supplied with water should combine and pay half the cost of the piping, the Justices ought to be made to pay the other half and carry out the improvement. There were many complaints heard in connection with this subject, and he believed that some such provision as he had suggested would stimulate the rate-payers to co-operate with the Justices to carry out improvements.

The HON'BLE BABOO DOORGA CHURN LAW said, owing to an unfortunate occurrence in his family, he had not been able to go through the Bill. He saw that it was proposed to raise the maximum of the water-rate from five to six per cent; and considering the benefit derived from the water-supply and the increased demand for water, he had no objection to offer to the increase of the rate. But he thought it should be so adjusted as to be the least oppressive to the poorer classes of the town; and this was a point to which he had no doubt the Select Committee would give their attention.

As regards the lighting-rate, he did not think that power should be given to the Municipality to raise the rate from two to two and a half per cent. It was true that the proceeds of the present rate showed a deficit of some Rs. 16,000 to Rs. 20,000, but the deficiency had been supplied from the general fund, and this had been done without much inconvenience, and he thought that practice should be continued.

Then, with regard to the question of allowing appeals from the assessments made by the Justices, he quite agreed with the hon'ble member on his right (Mr. Schalch) that provision should be made to allow appeals to be tried by some independent body, and the result, he thought, would be quite satisfactory to all parties concerned.

The HON'BLE MR. HOGG said he did not propose to detain the Council by following the hon'ble members who had spoken upon the Bill. The suggestions they had thrown forth would be matter for the consideration of the Select Committee, to whom, he presumed, the Bill would be referred for consideration. He was glad to find that there was a general concurrence of opinion on the part of the Council that the water-supply must be increased, and that there would be no great opposition to increasing the rate provided the increased supply could be obtained. He quite agreed with his hon'ble friend to the right (Mr. Schalch,) that there would be great advantage to the town if the constant supply could be continued. He would, however, ask the Council to remember—and he spoke from the practical experience of several years—that to give a constant supply from the existing arrangements would be absolutely impossible. He believed he was correct in saying that this was the only city in the world in which it was attempted to give a constant supply by engine power. Throughout the world, wherever they had a constant supply, it had always been done by gravitation. If a constant supply was to be continued to Calcutta, they must have recourse to gravitation: that was to say, we should have to pump up to a large elevated tank and deliver water from that tank. By that system only would a constant supply be possible. But the cost of constructing a tank that would enable the Justices to supply ten or twelve million gallons of water a day to the town by gravitation on the constant supply system, would be so enormous that it must be put aside as impossible.

As regards assessments, the proposal for an appeal might be advisable in many cases. He could quite understand that the rate-payers could not always be satisfied that an appeal should be made from the Assessor to a Board of Justices. However, it must be borne in mind that to constitute such a Court would be a matter of great difficulty. It was true that it could be declared that an appeal should lie to the Small Cause Court; but he thought so many appeals would be instituted that it would be found practically extremely difficult to dispose of the cases without appointing some special officer for the hearing of such appeals. From his own experience, he must say that he believed that a Board of sitting Justices was a very fair tribunal for the disposal of assessment appeals. He might go farther, and say that he thought that the inclination of a Board of Justices was to fix the assessment at too low rather than at too high a rate. He did not, therefore, himself think that the establishment of an independent court of appeal was a matter of very great importance. The illustration brought forward by his hon'ble friend as regards the assessment of the port property, could hardly be allowed to pass without comment. He had declared that the assessment made upon the port property, if calculated upon the cost of the buildings, would come to the very large amount of twelve per cent. His hon'ble friend had, however, omitted altogether to take into consideration the value of the land belonging to the Commissioners. That land only was worth at least a million of money; and if the value of the land was taken into account, the assessment would not be found to be excessive.

The question of the advisability of altering the constitution of the Municipality had been mooted by his hon'ble friend to the right (Mr. Schalch), but it was one which Mr Hogg approached with considerable hesitation. For a long time he had thought that it would be better that the constitution of the Municipality should be altered; but he begged to say now that he had, after much consideration, arrived at the conclusion that it would be difficult to provide a municipal government for Calcutta which would fulfil all its requirements better than the present one now did. He believed it was admitted that what we required was an intelligent body of gentlemen, and that they should fairly represent public opinion; that all matters should be discussed by the Municipality in the most public manner possible; and that they should court publicity, the object being to ventilate all measures before they were carried out. And lastly, but not least, he thought that the Government should have a very considerable indirect control over the Municipality. He thought all these requirements were fully met by the existing constitution of the Municipality.

His Hon'ble friend Mr. Schalch advocated the creation of a Municipal Board appointed chiefly by the public bodies in Calcutta. Mr. Hogg could not support that proposal, on the ground that the public bodies referred to were only in a very limited degree representatives of the inhabitants of Calcutta.

Europeans in this country were, as a rule, merely birds of passage, and would often take but a very partial view of all measures brought before them. By partial he meant that they would look upon the measures proposed more in the way they affected themselves. He did not mean these remarks to apply to public bodies of native gentlemen: they had a permanent interest in the town, and they would look not only to the direct and immediate advantages to the town, but they would look ahead to the time when their children would occupy their places. The members of the present Corporation, he thought, were carefully appointed, and might be regarded quite as much representatives of the different classes from which they were selected as would the members of a Board constituted on the plan proposed by his hon'ble friend. It was true they had many non-effective members: it was true also that they had much speaking,—speaking which probably in many cases might well be omitted. However, the way in which the business was transacted did ventilate every subject most thoroughly, and it had induced the native public to come forward and take a direct and immediate interest in the affairs of the town, which he did not think the system of government conducted by a Board would ever do. The natives of particular parts of the town looked to certain Justices as their representatives, and made use of them as such. However, there were one or two points which might well occupy the attention of the Select Committee; for instance, whether it would not be wise to so far modify the constitution that the Justices who formed the Municipality should not be appointed by the Government for life. He thought that the Justices should be appointed by the Government for a limited period, say for two or three years. If they showed an interest in the affairs of the town, and if they commanded the confidence of the public, then they should be reappointed. If, on the other hand, they were not prepared to devote their time to municipal affairs, they would cease to be members of the Corporation at the expiration of the time for which their appointment was made.

This would lead to a gradual reduction of the number of the members of the Corporation, which was much needed; as at present, owing to the great number of Justices, about a hundred and twenty, the Corporation was found to be somewhat unwieldy for the quick dispatch of business.

His Honor the President, before putting the motion, desired to say that he had listened with great interest to the remarks which had fallen from the hon'ble members on the left, regarding the possible modifications in the constitution of the Municipality of Calcutta. Well, that no doubt was a difficult subject. We should remember that very great good had been effected under the existing system. At the same time he admitted that if there ever were any constitutional modifications to be made in the Municipality of Calcutta, the present opportunity would be the most fitting they were likely to have for the consideration of such a change. He, therefore, for one should see no objection to the Select Committee, if such Committee should be appointed, taking up the question of any possible modification of the constitution of the Municipality. Indeed, he had already prepared a paper on that subject; and as he perceived that the matter was attracting the attention of various hon'ble members of the Council, he believed he should perhaps be meeting the wishes of hon'ble members who had addressed the Council, if he referred that paper to the Select Committee, if such Committee should be appointed.

The motion was agreed to, and the Bill referred to a Select Committee consisting of the hon'ble Mr. Schalch, the hon'ble Mr. Reynolds, the hon'ble Mr. Brookes, the hon'ble Baboo Kristodas Pal, and the mover.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 10th instant.

THE SILTING UP OF THE CIRCULAR CANAL AND TOLLY'S NULLAH.

No. 1802.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Hon'ble the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in the Public Works Department, Local,—Communications, dated the 5th April 1875.

Read letter No. 1070, dated the 3rd March 1875, from the Superintending Engineer of the Presidency Circle, with enclosures and a drawing, together with the reply thereto of the Chief Engineer, Bengal, No. 1473, dated the 31st idem, relating to the silting up of the new cut and of the Circular Canal, and to a proposal for the re-excavation of this canal and the improvement of Tolly's Nullah after the rainy season of this year.

REMARKS.—The Superintending Engineer's letter read above reports on the present state of a portion of the Calcutta Canals and Tolly's Nullah and brings forward certain proposals for their improvement.

2. It appears that the two dredgers have been at work at the new cut or outer channel since May 1874, the large amount of work done being evidenced by the size of the spoil banks; that silting occurs with great rapidity; and that the dredging work has to be done over and over again. The Superintending Engineer's proposal for continuing the dredging operations in this channel is approved, and in due course he should report the results of the measures he has ordered. The Lieutenant-Governor desires that every exertion be made to keep this route clear.

3. The Circular Canal or inner channel has silted up to an extent which renders it necessary that the re-excavation which this channel has to undergo every seven or eight years should be carried out as soon as possible, or after the rainy season. Owing to the uncertainty of the weather and the insalubrity of the season, the Lieutenant-Governor observes that it is not possible to carry out the excavation of the Circular Canal at the present time. Accordingly, the first opportunity will be taken of executing the repairs after the cessation of the coming rains, when the weather will be settled, the season more suitable, and the work of excavation can be advantageously carried out. The delay is to be regretted, as it will necessitate the closure of the canal during the busiest period of the year. During the execution of the work, the public can avail itself of two routes between Calcutta and the Eastern Districts:—first, larger boats proceeding by the outer route will pass by Mutlah up the Biddiadarry River and through Tolly's Nullah; second, smaller boats coming by the inner route can proceed viâ the Salt Lake channel and new cut to the Hooghly. Provision of funds for the re-excavation has been made in the Local Budget of the current year, and the Superintending Engineer of the Presidency Circle is requested to have the requisite estimates submitted for orders at as early a date as possible, and in due course to take special measures for ensuring efficient arrangements being made for commencing the work as soon as the season will permit, and for prosecuting it with vigour. The Lieutenant-Governor regards this work as of great importance.

4. The remaining proposals for improving the Calcutta Canals and Tolly's Nullah should be brought forward in a more definite shape, showing precisely the anticipated advantages and the probable cost.

Order.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Superintending Engineer, Presidency Circle, for information and guidance.

Ordered also that a copy of this Resolution and of the foregoing order be forwarded to the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces, to the Commissioner of the Presidency Division, and to the Revenue Department of this Government for information.

The mean barometer as likewise the dry and wet bulb thermometer means are derived from the twenty-four hourly observations made during the day.

The dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants The figures in column 10 represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1½ feet, and that of the anemometer, 70 feet 10 inches above the level of the ground. The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

RULES FOR TEA LEASES IN THE WESTERN DOOARS.

The 19*th March* 1875.—The following rules for the grant of leases of land for tea cultivation in the Western Dooars have been approved by the Lieutenant-Governor, and are published for general information. The rules will come into force from the 1st April 1875:—

What lands will ordinarily be available.

1. THE lands that will be generally available under these rules lie within that tract of country in the Western Dooars which extends in an easterly direction from the east bank of the River Teesta to the west bank of the River Sankos.

What lands will not ordinarily be available.

2. The following lands will not ordinarily be available under these rules:—

(a.)—Lands which, by a notification in the Calcutta Gazette, are held to constitute a reserve for the supply of timber, fuel, grazing, or any other article of general and public consumption.

(b.)—Lands not included in the above category, but which now bear India-rubber trees or other valuable timber (such as sâl, khair, chelownee, sissoo, &c.) in compact blocks or patches.

(c.)—Lands in respect of which any person or persons, or any village community, possess rights of occupancy, or such other rights or privileges as would, in the opinion of the local Government, render it impolitic or unadvisable to grant such lands to any other person or persons for the purpose of tea cultivation.

(d.)—Lands lying within a distance of 60 feet on either side from the centre of any public road or thoroughfare. Provided that such road or thoroughfare shall have been constructed, or shall be kept in repair, from public funds, and that it be borne on the list of the district roads of the district within which the land above mentioned lies.

(e.)—Lands which the local Government may at any time, by a notification in the Calcutta Gazette, expressly exempt from the operation of these rules.

How and to whom application is to be made.

3. Every person desirous of obtaining a grant of land under these rules shall, in person or by a duly authorized agent, present an application on stamped paper of the value of 8 annas to the Deputy Commissioner of the district in which the land lies.

What the application is to specify.

4. The application shall specify—

(a.)—The name, father's name, and address of the applicant, and of his authorized agent, if any.

(b.)—The area, situation, and boundaries of the land applied for, as far as they can be ascertained without a detailed survey.

(c.)—A statement of the particulars, if any, which may appear to the applicant to bring the land applied for, or any part of it, within the exceptions mentioned in Rule 2. The application shall also state whether the land, or any part of it, is or has ever been cultivated in any manner.

5. Every lot applied for shall be compact and capable of being enclosed in a ring fence; and if any part of the land touches on a public road or navigable river, the length of such road or river frontage shall not exceed one half the breadth of the lot applied for.

Procedure on receipt of an application.

7. On receipt of an application, and after satisfying himself as far as lies in his power that the requirements of the rules have been complied with, the Deputy Commissioner shall record a proceeding to the above effect, calling upon the applicant or his authorized agent to deposit such a sum as the Deputy Commissioner shall deem to be necessary to cover the cost of the survey and demarcation to be made as hereinafter provided. Such sum shall ordinarily be calculated at the rate of 8 annas per acre of the total quantity of land applied for. But if the rate of 8 annas an acre be found insufficient, the applicant shall be required to deposit such further sum as may be needed to cover the actual cost of survey. On the other hand, if the actual cost of survey falls short of the sum deposited, the applicant shall be entitled to a refund of the excess.

8. On receipt of the sum payable under the preceding rule, and of an agreement, signed by the applicant or by his authorized agent, to pay such further sum as may be required for the purposes above mentioned, the Deputy Commissioner shall record an order appointing a tehsildar or other officer to visit the land, and to make full and detailed inquiries into its condition and circumstances.

Preliminary inquiry to be made.

9. The general object of such inquiry shall be to ascertain whether or not the land applied for can be granted under the rules in force; but the Deputy Commissioner may instruct the officer making the inquiry to furnish him with such other specific and detailed information as may seem to him to be necessary.

10. On completion of his inquiry, the officer making it shall record the result thereof and submit a report for the orders of the Deputy Commissioner. If the Deputy Commissioner, after considering the report, and after calling for such further explanations, oral or written, as he may deem necessary, shall be of opinion that the land applied for cannot be granted under the rules, and should not therefore be surveyed, he will record an order to that effect. Such order shall be appealable to the Commissioner of the Division within which the land applied for is situated, and his order shall be final. The appeal must be filed within one month from the date of the receipt, by the applicant or authorized agent, of a copy of the order appealed against.

11. If the Deputy Commissioner decide that the land applied for can be granted under the rules, and should therefore be surveyed, he shall record an order to that effect.

12. If the Deputy Commissioner thinks it necessary to remove from off such land any occupants or others not having rights such as those contemplated in Rule 2 (c), or whom the Deputy Commissioner considers should be removed for the good of the state, he shall submit a full report of the circumstances for the orders of the Commissioner, stating in detail the grounds of his recommendation, and the compensation, if any, he proposes to pay them. The orders of the Commissioner on this point shall be final.

13. If any claim or objection be preferred under Act XXIII of 1863, the Deputy Commissioner shall proceed to dispose of the same in accordance with the provisions of the said Act.

14. The Deputy Commissioner shall then proceed to appoint a Surveyor and such other establishment as he may deem to be requisite for the purpose of making an accurate chain and compass survey and map of the land applied for.

How the survey is to be made.

15. The officer who made the inquiry provided for by Rule 6 shall, on receipt of an order to that effect from the Deputy Commissioner, proceed to point out to the Surveyor the boundaries of the land applied for and such prominent features in it as may be useful for the purposes of the survey, and which should, in his opinion, be entered in the draft under the rules as hereinafter provided. Such boundaries and other features as above mentioned shall be clearly marked and defined by the tehsildar in presence of the Surveyor, and the latter should be furnished with a list of them signed by the tehsildar.

16. The Surveyor shall then proceed to make the survey and fix the necessary boundary marks, which shall be such as a masonry platform at each point where more than two lots or patches of waste or other properties meet, and large stones or mounds at every angle and at every 100 yards of the boundary line between such platforms or other marks. Before sending in his report, the Surveyor should be careful to see that all marks required by the rules have been duly erected, and are in good order and preservation. The Surveyor shall prepare a map showing—

(a.)—All natural features of the country lying within the boundaries as fixed by the officer who made the inquiry under Rule 6, e.g. bheels, streams, forest clumps, &c.

(b.)—Such features of the country lying outside the boundary of the land to be surveyed as may serve to identify the latter and connect it with the revenue survey or other existing map.

17. The map shall ordinarily be on a scale of 16 inches to the mile. If possible, the Surveyor's field-book shall be copied at the back of it. If not, a copy of the field-book shall be attached to or accompany the map. If the map be made originally in the vernacular, the Deputy Commissioner shall cause it to be translated into English.

18. The whole cost of survey, including the expenses of cutting jungle, erecting boundary and other marks, &c., shall be borne by the applicant, and the Deputy Commissioner shall advance, from the funds deposited by the applicant, for the purpose such sums as shall from time to time be required. A full account of such sums shall be rendered to the Deputy Commissioner by the party receiving them, and such accounts shall be open to the inspection of the applicant at such time and place as the Deputy Commissioner may appoint.

19. On the map being completed, it shall be checked by an officer appointed by the Deputy Commissioner. If found to be incorrect, it shall be amended by the Surveyor in conjunction with the officer above mentioned. If found to be correct, it shall be laid before the Deputy Commissioner with the report of the officer who made the preliminary inquiry under Rule 6, and with all other papers connected with the case.

20. The Deputy Commissioner shall then proceed to consider the application. A date for this purpose shall be previously fixed by him, and due notice of it shall be given to the applicant or to his authorized agent.

21. It shall be competent to the Deputy Commissioner, after considering the papers of the case and making such further inquiries as he may deem necessary, either to reject or to comply with the application as originally presented or as amended by the applicant, with the consent of the Deputy Commissioner.

22. If the Deputy Commissioner rejects the application, he shall record an order in writing to that effect, with the grounds of his decision. A copy of such order, and of the grounds on which it is based, shall, on application made in writing by the applicant or by his authorized agent, be granted. An appeal against such order shall lie to the Commissioner of the Division in which the land applied for is situated, if made within 30 days of the date of the receipt of a copy of such order by the applicant or his authorized agent.

23. If the Deputy Commissioner grant the application, he shall grant the applicant a lease in form A of the appendix, and shall call upon him to execute a counterpart thereof, and to mark out the land leased by a continuous trench, or in such other manner as the Deputy Commissioner may direct.

24. Whenever, after receipt of an application, as provided for in Rule 3, and after making such inquiries as he may deem necessary, the Deputy Commissioner shall be of opinion that there is no primâ facie objection whatever to the grant under the rules of the land applied for, he may put the applicant in preliminary possession of an area not exceeding one-eighth of the estimated area of the land applied for, with the object of enabling the applicant to make preparations for commencing cultivation and getting the land in order. Calcutta Canals

NOTICE.

DURING the period the lock-gates of the Calcutta Canals at Chitpore are kept open, which is generally from November 1st to June 30th, there is at times a strong current; and boats proceeding in or out may be of any length, but their extreme breadth, including chuppers, should not exceed 21 feet, or 14 haths.

During the rainy season, or from July to October, the lock-gates are closed; and as there is no current in the Canal, boats may be of 22 feet, or 14½ haths extreme breadth, including chuppers, and 58 feet from stem to stern.

Boats entering at Bamunghatta with tickets "Bamunghatta and Return," may be of any dimensions; but as the water in the Canal decreases daily until the rains set in, heavy-laden boats should discharge, if possible, west of the Dhappa Pass Station. Boats with the above tickets, after discharging in the old Canal, may proceed to the Hooghly by confining to the above orders; but if they cause an obstruction to navigation, they will be detained at Chitpore, and the manjees will be liable to punishment under the Canal Rules.

 The Rig-Veda, the oldest book of Indian literature, has very properly been made one of the principal class-books for those who study Sanskrit in the schools and colleges in India, and though at present a scholar-like knowlege of the Vedic hymns is in the examinations required of the more advanced students only, yet, as soon as editions, translations, grammars, and dictionaries shall have rendered the study of these ancient documents more accessible, I doubt not that the time will come when no one in India will call himself a Sanskrit scholar who cannot construe the hymns of the ancient Rishis of his country.—Extract from Preface.

MARINE NOTICE.

A second class spire wooden buoy with pole and basket, painted in red and white rings, has been laid E. by S. about 7 miles from the Kannaka buoy in 14 fathoms low water, and marked P. P. as the Point Palmiras Reef buoy. The buoy is in latitude north 20° 48′ 30″, longitude east 87° 14′ 10″.

The Kanna buoy is now a first class wooden spire buoy with bell and basket, instead of a second class buoy with basket only.

The H. buoy of the Dhamrah river has been moved 700 yards to the N.E. on account of an extension of the sand in its vicinity.

The best track across the Chandipal bar, Dhamra river, has been marked by two bar buoys, one red and one black, in lieu of the former single fairway buoy. The track is very narrow, with from 7 to 8 feet low water in it.

The C and D buoys lost in the cyclone have been relaid.

All buoys at the entrance to the Dhamrah have been overhauled and put in good order.

By order,

On the east—1st, a line running directly south from the pucca pillar at the end of the Tallimari embankment to the river-bank; and, 2ndly, a line running north-east from the same pillar along the old Surdah road to where it bifurcates with the Nattore road; thence a line along the Nattore road up to a banian-tree east of the pucca building formerly used as Mr. Gallois' cutcherry in Ramchunderpore; thence a line along a footpath which strikes off to the north, skirting Lal Behary's house, and joins the Seroil kutcha road and continues to Seebmahal.

On the north: from this point the northern boundary follows another footpath to the Nowhatta road near the Government distillery; thence it follows the Nowhatta road as far as the south-east corner of Golab Saha's tank, then passes along the southern border of this tank, and continues along a footpath, which strikes the Kadirgunge road immediately south of Doolar Saha's tank. It then follows the Hetumkhan and Fakeerpara roads to the Lukhipore metalled road, which road is then the boundary up to its junction with the main road near the Mission Church. The main road then forms the boundary as far as a large mango-tree about 12 chains west of the circuit-house.

On the west, a line running directly south from this mango-tree to the Government embankment south of the cutcherries; thence along the retired embankment to the place where it joins the Godagaree road near Kodalkatee Ferry Ghât, and thence to a wooden post fixed about 2 chains west of the ghât.

If during the course of any quarter, the Justices have reason to believe that any person, who, if the current quarter had come to an end, would be liable to pay the Police and Lighting rates for that quarter, is about to remove from the Town forthwith, they may declare such person liable to the immediate payment of such rates, or any of them, from the commencement of that quarter up to the date of such declaration, and the amount of such rates for such time due from such person, shall be leviable forthwith, in like manner and in all respects as such rates are ordinarily leviable.

When rate-payer about to remove, Justices may order immediate payment.

69. If any house is occupied by more than one person holding in severalty, or is of less assessed annual value than one hundred rupees, the Justices may impose the Police and Lighting rates upon the owner of such house, or upon the owner of the land on which such house is situated.

Power to assess owners in certain cases.

70. If the Police and Lighting rates are paid by the owner of any house or land under the last preceding section, such owner may, if there be but one occupier of the house, recover from such occupier the entire amount of the rate so paid by such owner; and if there be more than one occupier, he may recover from each occupier such sum as shall bear to the entire amount of rate so paid by him the same proportion as the value of the portion of the house in the occupation of such person bears to the entire value of such house.

Owner to recover from occupier rates paid by owner.

71. Every owner who, under the provisions of the last preceding section, may be entitled to recover any sum from the occupier of any house or of any portion thereof, shall have for the recovery of such sum all such and the same remedies, powers, rights, and authorities as if such sum were rent payable to him by the occupier in respect of such portion of the house as may be in his occupation.

Owner for recovering rates to have same power as for recovering rent.

CHAPTER V.

OF THE ASSESSMENT OF LAND.

72. The estimated gross annual rent at which any land, liable to rate under this Act, might reasonably be expected to let from year to year, shall, for the purposes of any rate to be imposed under this Act, be held and be deemed to be the annual value of such land.

Annual value of land how to be ascertained.

The value of land so estimated shall not include the value of any machinery thereupon.

73. The annual value at which any land is to be assessed, or the area on which it is to be rated under this Act, shall be fixed by the Justices, and such land shall be assessed or rated, upon the value or the area so fixed, for three years from the date on which it is so fixed, or for such other period not exceeding three years as the Justices may from time to time direct, and on no other value or area.

Annual value to be assessed by the Justices; assessment to remain in force for three years.

74. If, during the currency of any period as is mentioned in the last preceding section any substantial alteration and improvement is made on any such land, the Justices may cause such land to be again assessed, even though such period has expired, and such last mentioned assessment shall be in force, and the rate shall be imposed according to it, until the expiration of the said three years.

75. The annual value assessed, or the area fixed, by the Justices as hereinbefore provided, shall be entered in a book to be kept at the office of the Justices, wherein shall also be written in distinct columns—

Value assessed, or measurement, to be entered in a book, &c.

(b) the name of the occupier, if the occupier is the person liable to pay the rate;

(c) a designation of the property, sufficient to identify the same, together with the name and number of the street (if any) in which it is situated, and (d) the amount of the rate assessed or fixed thereon.

The book required to be kept under this section is hereinafter called the "assessment book."

When the name of the owner or occupier is not known, it shall be sufficient to designate him in the assessment book as the "owner" or "occupier."

76. The Justices shall from time to time make a valuation or measurement of all land within the Town, and for such purpose may divide the Town into such and so many districts as they may think fit, and proceed to make a separate valuation or measurement district by district, and shall enter the same in the assessment book.

New valuation or measurement to be made.

Returns may be required for purpose of valuation.

77. The Justices may require the owner or occupier of any land to furnish them with returns of the measurements, and of the rent, or annual value thereof; and the Justices, or any person authorized by them in that behalf, may at any time between sunrise and sunset, enter on to, and inspect, survey, and measure such land.

Public notice of valuation and measurement to be given.

78. When the valuation and measurement of any of the districts of the Town, into which it may have been divided by the Justices shall have been completed, the Justices shall give public notice thereof, and of the place where the assessment book or a copy thereof, may be inspected, by advertisement in at least two of the daily newspapers published in Calcutta, and also by placards posted up in conspicuous places throughout such district of the Town; and the person in whose custody the assessment book may be, shall permit every person being the owner or occupier of land included in the assessment or measurement, or the agent of such owner or occupier, to inspect the book and to make extracts therefrom without payment of any fee, and every person not being such owner or occupier, to inspect and make extracts, in like manner, on payment of a fee of one rupee.

Notice of time of revising assessment.

79. The Justices shall, at the time and in the manner in the last preceding section mentioned, give public notice of a day, not being less than fifteen days from the publication of such notice, when they will proceed to revise the said valuation, or measurement and assessment; and in all cases in which any land is for the first time assessed, or in which the valuation or measurement of any land previously assessed is increased, shall give special notice thereof to the owners or occupiers of the same.

Appeal against valuation, &c.

80. All appeals against such valuation, or measurement and assessment as is mentioned in the last preceding section, shall be made to the Justices, by application in writing left at their office three days before the day fixed in the said public notice for the revising of the said valuation or measurement and assessment; and upon hearing such appeals, the Justices shall make such amendments (if any), in the said assessment and in the assessment book, as they shall think proper.

After revision, assessment book to be authenticated by the seal of the Justices

81. After the appeals specified in the last preceding section have been disposed of, and after the revision of the valuation or measurement and assessment has been completed, the amendments, if any, made in the assessment book shall be authenticated by the seal of the Justices; and thereupon, and subject to such alterations and amendments as may thereafter be duly made, the rate so assessed shall be deemed to be the rate for the whole period for which the assessment is made, and this period shall be calculated from the commencement of the quarter succeeding that in which any such amendment shall be so authenticated.

Alteration or amendment of assessment.

82. The Chairman or Vice-Chairman may at any time amend the assessment book by inserting therein the name of any person whose name ought to be so inserted, or by inserting any land liable to the rate, after giving notice, to any person interested in the making of the amendment, of a day, not being less than fifteen days from the date of the service of such notice, when such amendment is to be made; or by striking out the name of any person or any land not liable to the rate, or reducing the amount of the rate, without notice :

and if any amendment shall be made, in cases where notice is required, the same shall be deemed to have been made on the expiration of fifteen days after service of the said notice; and any person interested in such amendment may appeal by application in writing to the Justices, to be left at their office three days before the day fixed in the said notice for such amendment.

New assessment book need not be prepared every three years.

83. It shall not be necessary to prepare a new assessment book at the expiration of each period of assessment, but the Justices may adopt the valuation or measurement and assessment contained in any assessment book for any previous period with such alterations as may, in particular cases, be deemed necessary, as the valuation, or measurement and assessment for the period next following.

Provided that sections 78, 79, 80, and 81 shall, as far as possible, be applicable to such valuation, or measurement and assessment, and to the assessment book or books in which it is contained.

Hearing appeals.

84. Appeals against any rate assessed or demanded by the Justices under this Act shall be heard and determined by not less than three Justices of the Peace.

No appeal shall be heard unless the amount of the rate has been deposited with the Justices; and unless the appeal is preferred by the person who at the time the appeal is made shall be recorded in the said book as the owner of the land to which the appeal refers, or by the occupier thereof, or by the agent of either of them.

Assessment by Justices when to be final.

85. The assessment by the Justices of any rate, when no appeal therefrom is made as hereinbefore provided, and the adjudication of any appeal under the last preceding section, shall be final and conclusive.

CHAPTER VI.

OF LEVYING THE RATES.

Bills to be presented.

86. When any rate is due, the Justices shall cause to be presented, to the person liable to the payment thereof, a bill for the sum due, which shall also contain a statement of the period, and a description of the property or thing, for which the rate is charged.

Notice of demand.

87. If the bill is not paid by the person liable to pay the same, within seven days from the presentation thereof, the Justices may cause to be served upon such person a notice of demand, in the form contained in the third schedule or to the like effect; and if he shall not, within seven days from the service of such notice of demand, pay the sum due, or show sufficient cause, to the satisfaction of the Justices, for non-payment of the same, such sum, with all costs, may be levied by distress and sale of the moveable property of the defaulter, or if the defaulter be the occupier of any land in respect of which a rate is due, by distress and sale of any moveable property found on the land, under a warrant in the form contained in the fourth schedule or to the like effect, to be issued for that purpose by the Justices.

Distress.

For every notice of demand under this section which the Justices shall cause to be served upon any person, a fee not exceeding one rupee, the amount of which shall be in each case fixed by the Justices, shall be paid by such person.

Such fee shall be added to the amount of the rate in respect of which the notice is given, and, if not duly paid, shall be levied in the same manner as such rate may be levied.

Inventory—notice of distress.

88. The officer charged with the execution of a warrant of distress under the last preceding section shall make an inventory of the moveable property seized under such warrant, and shall at the time give a notice in writing, in the form contained in the fifth schedule, to the person in possession thereof at the time of the seizure, that the said moveable property will be sold as therein mentioned.

Sale.

89. If the warrant is not in the meantime discharged or suspended by the Justices, the moveable property seized shall be sold under the orders of the Justices, who shall apply the proceeds, or such part thereof as may be necessary, in discharge of the said arrears and costs; and the surplus, if any, shall be returned, on demand, to the person in possession of the moveable property at the time of the seizure.

Fees shall be payable upon distraints under this Act according to the rates set forth in the Table of Fees in the fifth schedule.

Goods of defaulter, wherever found, may be distrained.

90. The moveable property of any person from whom any rate is due may be distrained, wherever the same may be found, for default in payment of the money due from him.

Rate due from owner may be recovered from occupier, and deducted by him from his rent.

91. If the sum due on account of any rate from the owner of any land remains unpaid after notice of demand has been duly served, the Justices may demand the amount from the occupier for the time being of the land, and, on non-payment thereof, may recover the same by distress and sale of any moveable property found on the land and, in such case, the occupier may deduct, from the next and following payments of his rent, the amount which may be so paid by, or recovered from, him.

Provided that no arrear of rate, which has remained due from the owner of any land for more than one year, shall be so recovered from the occupier thereof.

Distress not unlawful for want of form.

92. No distress levied under this Act shall be deemed unlawful, nor shall any party making the same be deemed a trespasser on account of any defect or want of form in the notice, schedule, summons, notice of demand, warrant of distress, inventory, or other proceeding relating thereto, nor shall such party be deemed a trespasser on account of any irregularity committed by him; but all persons aggrieved by such irregularity may recover full satisfaction for any special damage sustained by them in any Court of competent jurisdiction.

Justices may sue, instead of proceeding by distress.

93. Instead of proceeding by distress and sale, or in case of failure to realize by distress and sale the whole or any part of the sum due in respect of any rate, the Justices may sue the person liable to pay the same in any Court of competent jurisdiction.

CHAPTER VII.

OF THE WATER-SUPPLY.

The Justices to provide water-supply.

94. The Justices shall provide a supply of water within the Town, and shall for that purpose cause such mains and pipes to be laid, and such tanks, reservoirs, or other works to be made and constructed, as shall be necessary for the supply of water in all the chief public streets of the Town, and shall also erect, in all such streets, sufficient and convenient stand-pipes or pumps for the gratuitous use of the inhabitants of the Town.

The said stand-pipes or pumps shall be so placed that there shall not be any portion of any such street, at a greater distance than one hundred and fifty yards from some such stand-pipe or pumps, and such stand-pipes or pumps shall, between sunrise and sunset, so far as may be reasonably practicable, be kept supplied with water.

Supply for business.

95. The Justices may supply water, for purposes other than domestic purposes, provided that the person requiring such supply make application to the Justices in writing, specifying the purpose for which such supply is required and the quantity likely to be consumed.

The Justices may thereupon, subject to such charges or rates as may be agreed upon between themselves and the person so requiring such supply, lay down, or allow to be laid down, the necessary communication-pipes and works, of such dimensions and character as may be agreed upon between the Justices and the person requiring such supply, or, in the absence of such agreement, as may be fixed by the Justices.

Householder entitled to supply of water for domestic use.

96. Every person paying the Water-rate hereinafter mentioned, shall be entitled to have, free of further charge or assessment in respect of the same, a supply of water from the mains and pipes of the Justices for the domestic use of himself and his household.

What are domestic purposes.

97. A supply of water for domestic use shall not include a supply of water for animals, or for washing carriages, where such animals or carriages are kept for sale or hire, or a supply for any trade, manufacture, or business, or for fountains, or for watering gardens or roads, or for any ornamental or mechanical purpose.

Communication-pipes, &c., to be made of required dimensions and at expense of householder.

98. Every person paying the Water-rate hereinafter mentioned, shall be entitled to lay down communication-pipes from the mains and pipes of the Justices, for bringing into his house a proper and sufficient supply of water for domestic use.

The communication-pipes leading the water from the mains and pipes of the Justices into the house of any rate-payer, and the pipes and works within the house connected therewith, shall be of such character, dimensions, and material, as the Justices or their Officer authorized by them in that behalf shall fix and approve: and shall be made and constructed at the expense of the person requiring the same.

Communication-pipes, &c., must be made to satisfaction of Officer of the Justices.

99. The communication-pipes and works leading water from the mains and pipes of the Justices into any land, must in all cases be executed subject to the inspection, and to the satisfaction of, the Officer authorized in that behalf by the Justices.

Such communication-pipes and works may be made by the servants and workmen of the Justices, upon such terms as may be agreed upon between the Justices and the person requiring the supply, or subject to such charges as may be fixed by the Justices; and the Justices may require the amount necessary for the execution of such works to be paid or deposited before such works are executed; and such charges and expenses shall be recoverable in the same manner as the Water-rate.

Pressure at which water must be kept.

100. The Justices shall, between sunrise and sunset, so far as may be reasonably practicable, keep and maintain in their pipes and mains a sufficient supply of pure water for the use of the rate-payers, and for the other purposes for which such supply is required; and shall, at such times and in such portions of the Town as the Justices, with the sanction of the Local Government, may direct, maintain a pressure of water in the pipes and mains sufficient to raise the water in all houses and places in which the same may be introduced, to a height of not less than fifty feet.

Power to enter premises.

101. The Officer authorized in that behalf by the Justices, may, between the hours of nine in the forenoon and five in the afternoon, enter on to any land supplied with water as aforesaid, in order to examine if there be any waste or misuse of such water; and if such Officer at any such time be refused admittance on to such land for the purpose aforesaid, or be prevented from making such examination as aforesaid, the Justices may turn off the water from such land.

Water may be cut off on neglect to pay the rate.

102. If any person supplied with water shall neglect to pay the Water-rate hereinafter mentioned at any of the times of payment thereof, the Justices may turn off the water from the land in respect of which such rate is payable, by cutting off the pipe to such land, or by such means as the Justices may think fit, and may recover the expenses of turning off the water, from such person.

Power to require owner to provide works for water-supply.

103. Any occupier holding direct from the owner of any house may, by notice in writing signed by him, require the owner of such house to perform all such necessary works as may be required for bringing into such house a proper and sufficient supply of water for domestic use.

Every such notice shall contain an agreement on the part of such occupier to pay interest at the rate of one per cent. per mensem, calculated from the date of the completion of the works, on the cost of such works during the residue of his term of occupation.

Provided that if the house and the premises belonging thereto shall not abut upon some street in which there is a supply-main, such occupier shall, in the agreement, undertake to pay the cost of connecting the house with the nearest supply-main.

Power to occupier to make works in default of owner.

104. If any owner shall not, within the space of three months from the service of such notice as is mentioned in the last preceding section, cause such necessary works as aforesaid to be completed, the occupier, who shall have given such notice, may cause the same to be completed, and may deduct from the rent payable by him the cost of such works, save so much of such cost as may be incurred in connecting with a supply-main any house and premises belonging thereto which may not abut upon a street in which there may be a supply-main; and such deduction shall be made by six equal monthly instalments.

Interest on each such instalment shall be payable to the owner by the occupier at the rate of one per cent. per mensem, from the time when it shall have been so deducted.

What works to be made for a house.

105. The supply of water to a house shall not be deemed sufficient for domestic use unless it provides two taps in each floor of such house, one other such tap in the cookroom of or attached to such house, and one other such tap in the premises, or in or near the stables belonging to such house and the necessary works for such taps:

But if the annual rent of such house, with the land attached thereto, shall be less than three hundred rupees, it shall be sufficient to provide one tap only within the said premises and the necessary works for the same.

Estimate and specification of works to be sent.

106. No works for introducing a supply of water to any house shall be commenced by the owner without sending a specification and estimate of the cost thereof to the occupier, nor by the occupier without sending such specification and estimate to the owner.

Power of arbitration.

107. In case there shall be any difference between the owner and the occupier respecting the cost or the sufficiency of the proposed works, either the owner or the occupier may refer such difference to the Justices, and the written award of the Engineer of the Justices, or of any Officer authorized by them in that behalf, shall be binding on he owner and the occupier.

Tax on reference.

108. There shall be payable to the Justices in respect of every such reference a fee at the rate of two rupees for every hundred rupees of the monthly rent of the land in respect of the water-supply to which the difference may have arisen;

Provided that such fee shall in no case exceed ten rupees, and shall be paid by the person making the reference.

Occupier making requisition to keep works in repair.

109. Any occupier, on whose requisition as aforesaid any works for the supply of water shall have been introduced to any house, shall, during his term of occupancy, bear the expense of keeping such works in substantial repair.

Power of recovery by owner of sums payable.

110. Any owner to whom any sum is payable under sections 103 and 104 may recover such sum from the person liable to pay the same as if the same were rent payable by such person for the house in respect of which the expenses have been incurred.

Tanks, &c., vested in the Justices.

111. All public tanks, reservoirs, cisterns, wells, aqueducts, conduits, tunnels, pipes, pumps, and other water-works, whether made, laid, or erected at the cost of the Justices or otherwise, and all bridges, buildings, engines, works, materials, and things, connected therewith or appertaining thereto, and also any adjacent land (not being private property) appertaining to any public tank, shall become vested in the Justices.

Water fouled by offensive trades.

112. If any person, being the proprietor of any gas-works, or being engaged or employed in the manufacture or supply of gas, or being the occupier or owner of any place where an offensive trade or manufacture is carried on, wilfully does any act connected with the said business whereby the water in any stream, tank, reservoir, well, cistern, conduit, aqueduct, or other water-works belonging to the Justices, is fouled or corrupted, the Justices may, after twenty-four hours' notice in writing, lay open and examine any pipes, conduits, and works belonging to such person; and if, upon such examination, it appears that the water has been fouled or corrupted by anything proceeding from, or contained in, the pipes, conduits, or works examined, the expenses of such examination shall be paid by the person to whom such pipes, conduits, or works belong, or under whose management or control they may be;

but if it appear that the water has not been so fouled or corrupted, then such expenses, and all damages occasioned by the examination, shall be paid by the Justices.

Application of rates and monies received from the supply of water.

113. The Water-rate and all monies collected, received, or recovered for or in respect of the supply of water or the execution of works, and all fines connected therewith, or in any respect relating to the water-supply, shall be applied by the said Justices in defraying the expense of making and maintaining the said water-works, in paying the interest of money borrowed for the said water-works, and in the liquidation of debts incurred connected therewith, or for some other purpose connected with the supply of water;

and if any surplus shall remain thereafter, the same shall be applied in reduction of the Water-rate.

CHAPTER VIII.

OF THE POLICE BUDGET.

Commissioner of Police to prepare Budget.

114. The Commissioner of Police shall, on or before the first day of September in each year, transmit to the Justices a Budget or Estimate of the expense of the Police Force for the year commencing on the first day of January then next ensuing.

115. The Police Budget shall show the various heads of the estimated expenditure of the Police Force and the intended distribution of the Police Force during the period to which it relates.

Chairman to lay the Budget before the Justices.

116. The Chairman shall forthwith, upon the receipt of any such Budget, or of any such supplemental Budget as hereinafter is mentioned, cause the same to be printed, and a copy thereof, as far as may be practicable, sent by post or otherwise to each of the Justices of the Peace resident within twenty miles of Government House; and not less than ten nor more than twenty days after the receipt of any such supplemental Budget as hereinafter is mentioned, shall lay the same before a special general meeting of the Justices.

117. The Chairman shall lay every yearly Police Budget before the Justices at the quarterly meeting of the Justices to be held in the month of October next after the receipt of the same.

The Justices shall thereupon forward the Police Budget to the Local Government, and it shall be in the discretion of the Local Government to pass or to reject, or to modify, the estimates of all or any sums entered in the same.

Power to bring in a supplemental Budget.

118. If during any period for which a Police Budget shall have been passed and submitted as aforesaid, it shall appear that the amount provided by such Budget is insufficient to defray the necessary expense of the Police Force for such period, the Commissioner of Police may prepare a supplemental Budget for such period, and the provisions of the last three preceding sections shall apply to such supplemental Budget.

Amount of estimates to be paid to Government.

119. The amount of the estimates passed shall, after deducting therefrom such amount as may from time to time be allowed by the Government from the General Revenues towards the maintenance of the Police Force, be paid to the Local Government, or to such Officer as the Local Government may from to time direct, by the Justices out of the annual proceeds of the Police rate.

Commissioner to give accounts of Police expenditure.

120. On or before the first day of April in every year, the Commissioner of Police shall present to the Chairman, to be laid before the Justices at their next monthly meeting, an account of the expense of the Police Force for the year ending the thirty-first day of December then next preceding, and in case the amount, which shall during such year have been paid to the Local Government under the provisions hereinbefore contained, shall not have been expended in the maintenance of the Police Force, the balance remaining unexpended shall be deemed to have been paid by the Justices in or towards discharging the expense of the Police Force during the ensuing year.

CHAPTER IX.

Local Government may declare environs within the drainage system.

122. The Local Government may determine what portions, if any, of the environs of the Town shall be included in the said system of sewerage and drainage, and may declare the boundaries thereof in the Calcutta Gazette, and for the purposes of the Drainage rate the land within such boundaries as aforesaid shall be deemed to be part of the Town.

[T]he Chairman shall obtain, by such ways and means as shall appear to him best adapted for the purpose, and as shall be sanctioned by the Local Government, returns of the particulars required by this Act with respect to all houseless persons, and all persons who, during the said night preceding the day to be appointed, were on out-door night duty, or for any other reason were not abiding in any house of which account is to be taken by the enumerators.

Registrars and enumerators to fill in for those unable to write.

138. The enumerators shall fill in all forms for those persons who are unable to write.

CHAPTER XI.

OF CONSERVANCY AND IMPROVEMENT.

PART I.—Of the Streets.

Public streets vested in the Justices.

139. All public streets in the Town (not being the property and kept under the control of the Government) and the pavements, stones, and other materials thereof, and also all erections, materials, implements, and other things provided for such streets shall become vested in the Justices.

Power to make and improve streets.

140. The Justices, making due compensation to the owners and occupiers of any land which may be required for any such purposes, may

(a) lay out and make new streets;

(b) build and construct new bridges;

(c) turn, divert, discontinue, or stop up any public street; and

(d) widen, open, enlarge, or otherwise improve any such street.

For the purpose of this section the Justices may purchase any land necessary for houses and buildings to form any street, or for the improvement of any street.

Maintenance and repair of streets.

141 The Justices shall, so far as the Municipal Fund permits, from time to time cause the public streets to be maintained and repaired, and for such purpose may do all things necessary for the public safety and convenience.

Cleansing streets.

142. The Justices shall cause the streets to be regularly swept and cleansed; and the dust, dirt, filth, and refuse of every kind whatsoever found thereon to be collected and removed.

Dust-boxes in streets.

143. The Justices may cause any number of moveable or fixed dust-boxes or other convenient receptacles, wherein dust, dirt, filth, and refuse of every kind whatsoever may be temporarily deposited until removed and carried away, to be provided and placed in proper and convenient situations, and may require the occupiers of houses in streets to cause all such matter as aforesaid to be deposited daily, or otherwise periodically, in such receptacles.

Watering streets.

144. The Justices, so far as the Municipal Fund permits, and so far as they may deem requisite for the public convenience, shall cause the public streets to be watered; and for that purpose may provide such works and engines as they may think necessary.

Obstructions in streets.

145 The Justices may remove any obstruction or encroachment in or on any public street, or in or over any open drain, sewer, or aqueduct alongside of such street; and the expenses of such removal shall be paid by the person causing such encroachment or obstruction.

Nothing in this section contained shall prevent the Justices from permitting any temporary erections in any public street on occasions of festivals and ceremonies.

Private persons laying out new streets.

146. Every person who wishes to make or lay out any new street, shall give notice in writing thereof to the Justices, showing the intended level and width of such street; and the level and width of every such street shall be fixed or approved by the Justices;

and the Justices may, if they think fit, cause any such street laid out or made at a level or width otherwise than in accordance with the level or width so fixed or approved as aforesaid, to be altered;

or may cause any house, erected in any such street, otherwise than in accordance with such level and width, to be altered, or if necessary removed,

and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the person offending.

If no such level or width be fixed, and no approval or disapproval of the level or width proposed, be signified by the Justices within one month, the intended street may be laid out and made upon the level and of the width specified in the notice.

Paving, &c., of private streets.

147. If any street (not being a public street) or any part thereof, be not levelled, paved, metalled, flagged, channelled, and sewered to the satisfaction of the Justices, they may, by notice in writing to the respective owners or occupiers of the land fronting, adjoining, or abutting upon, such parts thereof as may need to be levelled, paved, metalled, flagged, channelled, and sewered, require them to level, metal, pave, flag, channel, and sewer the same within a time to be specified in such notice, and upon non-compliance the Justices may, if they think fit, execute the works mentioned or referred to therein:

and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owners in default according to the frontage of their respective lands, and in such proportion as shall be settled by the Justices, or, in case of disputes, as shall be settled in the manner hereinafter provided for the settlement of disputes respecting damages and expenses;

Provided that, after such street shall have been so levelled, paved, metalled, flagged, channelled, and sewered, on the requisition of the Justices, or by the Justices as aforesaid, at the expense of the owners, such owners shall have a right to require that the street shall be declared a public street, to be from time to time repaired by the Justices out of the Municipal Fund.

Certain streets to be deemed public and repaired by the Justices.

148. If any street (not being a public street, but being a street over or through which the public have or may hereafter have a [illegible] of way) be levelled, paved, metalled, flagged, channelled, and sewered to the satisfaction of the Justices, they may, if they think fit, by notice in writing put up in any part of such street, declare the same to be a public street, and thereupon the same shall become a public street, and be from time to time repaired by them out of the Municipal Fund.

House may be set forward for improving line of s[illegible]

149. The Justices may, upon such terms as they shall think fit, allow, any house to be set forward for improving the line of any public street in which such house is situated.

Houses projecting beyond line of street, when taken down, to be set back.

150. When any house any part of which projects beyond the regular line of a public street, or beyond the front of the house on either side thereof, has been taken down in order to be re-built or altered, the Justices may require the same to be set back to or towards the line of the street or the line of the adjoining houses.

Provided that the Justices shall make full compensation to the owner of any such house for any damage he may thereby sustain, and if any dispute shall arise touching the amount of such compensation, the same shall be settled in the manner hereinafter provided for the settlement of disputes respecting damages and expenses.

Names of streets.

151. The Justices shall, from time to time, cause to be put up or painted, on a conspicuous part of some house, wall, or place, at or near each end, corner, or entrance of every street, the name by which such street is to be known.

Numbers on houses.

152. The Justices may, from time to time, fix a number in a conspicuous place on the outer side of any house or at the entrance of the enclosure thereof fronting the street.

Doors not to open outwards.

153. All doors, gates, bars, and ground-floor windows (whether hung or placed before or after the commencement of this Act), which open upon any public street, shall be hung or placed so as not to open outwards and cause obstruction;

and if any such door, gate, bar, or window be hung or placed so as to open outwards on any such street and cause obstruction, the owner of the land to which the same is attached shall, within eight days after notice from the Justices to that effect, cause the same to be altered so as not to open outwards and cause obstruction: and if he neglects so to do, the Justices may make such alteration, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by such owner.

Troughs and pipes to be fixed to houses.

154. The owner of every house in any public street shall, within fifteen days after notice from the Justices to that effect, put up, and keep in good condition, proper troughs and pipes for catching and carrying the water from the roof and other parts of such house and for discharging the same in such manner as the Justices shall direct.

Projections erected in future from houses, to be removed.

155. The Justices may give notice in writing to the owner or occupier of any house to remove or alter any projection, encroachment, or obstruction, which shall be erected or placed against or in front of such house and such owner or occupier shall, within fifteen days after the service of such notice upon him, remove such projection, encroachment, or obstruction, or alter the same in such manner as shall have been directed by the Justices; and in default thereof the Justices may remove such projection, encroachment, or obstruction, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner or occupier making default.

Provided that, when the expense shall have been paid by the occupier, except in the case in which such projections, encroachments, or obstructions were made or put up by him, the occupier shall be entitled to deduct the expense of removing or altering the same from the rent payable by him to the owner of the house.

Removal of existing projections from houses.

156. The Justices may cause any such projection, encroachment, or obstruction, as is mentioned in the last preceding section, to be removed or altered as they think fit;

provided that they give notice of such intended removal or alteration to the occupier of the house against or in front of which such projection, encroachment, or obstruction shall be, thirty days before such alteration or removal is begun;

and if such projection, encroachment, or obstruction shall have been lawfully made, they shall make reasonable compensation to every person who suffers damage by such removal or alteration; and if any dispute shall arise touching the amount of such compensation, the same shall be settled in the manner hereinafter provided for the settlement of disputes respecting damages and expenses.

Justices may allow certain projections from houses.

157. The Justices may give permission in writing to the owners or occupiers of houses abutting on public streets to put up verandahs, balconies, sunshades, weather-frames, and the like, to project from any upper story thereof over the street, to an extent not exceeding five feet from the foundation.

Roofs and external walls of huts not to be made of inflammable materials.

158. The external roofs and walls of houses erected or renewed within the Town shall not be made of grass, leaves, mats, or other such inflammable materials; nor shall the owner of any house in or near any street, having an external roof or wall made of any such material, and which is contiguous to or adjoining to any other house suffer such roof or wall to remain unless with the consent in writing of the Justices.

Houses in a ruinous and dangerous state.

159. If, in any street, any house, or wall, or anything affixed thereon, be deemed by the Justices to be in a ruinous state, or likely to fall, or in any way dangerous to the inhabitants of such house or to the neighbouring houses, or to the occupiers thereof, or to passengers, they shall immediately, if it appears to them to be necessary, cause a proper board or fence to be put up for the protection of passengers, and shall cause notice in writing to be given to the owner, if he be known and resident within the limits of their jurisdiction, and shall also cause such notice to be put on the door or other conspicuous part of such house or otherwise to be given to the occupier thereof (if any), requiring such owner or occupier forthwith to take down, repair, or secure, such house, wall, or thing affixed thereon as the case shall require.

If such owner or occupier do not begin to take down, repair, or secure the same within three days after such notice, and complete such work with due diligence, the Justices shall cause all or so much of such house, wall, or thing as they shall think necessary, to be taken down, repaired, or otherwise secured; and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner.

Sale of materials of ruinous houses.

160. If any such house, or wall, as is mentioned in the last preceding section, or any part of the same, be taken down as in such section mentioned, the Justices may sell the materials thereof or so much of the same as shall be taken down, and apply the proceeds of such sale, in payment of the expenses incurred, and shall restore any surplus arising from such sale to the owner of such house, or wall, on demand.

The Justices shall have the same remedies for compelling the payment of so much of the said expenses as may remain due after the application of the proceeds of such sale as by this Act are given to them for compelling the payment of the whole of the said expenses.

Justices may direct hedges to be trimmed.

161. The Justices may give notice to the owner or occupier of any land to trim or prune the hedges thereof bordering on any public street to a height not exceeding seven feet;

to cut and trim trees overhanging any public street and obstructing the same or causing damage thereto;

and if such notice is not complied with within eight days from the date thereof, the Justices may cause such hedges and trees to be cut in the manner required, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner of the land.

No one to deposit materials or make hole in the street.

162. No person shall deposit any building materials, or make a hole in any street, without the permission of the Justices; and when such permission is granted to any person, he shall, at his own expense, cause such materials, or such hole, to be sufficiently fenced and enclosed, until the materials are removed or the hole is filled up and otherwise made secure; and shall cause the same to be sufficiently lighted at night.

PART II.—Of the Drains.

Public sewers, drains, &c., vested in the Justices.

163. All public sewers and drains, and all sewers, drains, tunnels, and culverts, in, alongside, or under the streets, whether made at the cost of the Justices or otherwise, and all works, materials, and things appertaining thereto, shall become vested in the Justices.

Powers of Justices in making public sewers.

164. The Justices, in making any main or other sewers for the drainage of the Town, may, if necessary, carry such sewers through, across, or under any street, or any place laid out as, or intended for, a street, or any cellar or vault which may be under any of the streets, and (after reasonable notice in writing in that behalf) into, through, or under any land whatsoever, making full compensation for any damage done thereby; and if any dispute shall arise with respect to the amount or apportionment of such compensation, the same shall be settled in the manner hereinafter provided for the settlement of disputes respecting damages and expenses.

Justices to repair and alter and close sewers.

165. The Justices shall maintain, and from time to time repair, and as they see fit, enlarge, alter, arch over, or otherwise improve all or any of the sewers and drains vested in them:

and may discontinue, close up, or destroy such of them as they may deem useless or unnecessary.

If by reason of anything done under this section, any person is deprived of the lawful use of any sewer or drain, the Justices shall, at a place within one hundred feet of the sewer or drain, of the use of which he is deprived, provide the means of drainage into some public sewer, tidal river, or other place into which the Justices are empowered to empty their sewers, and thereupon the owner shall make a drain leading thereunto, of such materials, of such size, at such level, and with such fall, as the Justices shall direct;

and if he neglect to do so within a reasonable time, the Justices may cause the same to be done, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner.

Cleansing and emptying sewers.

166. The Justices shall, so far as the Municipal Fund permits, cause the sewers and drains vested in them to be so constructed, maintained, and kept, as not to be a nuisance or injurious to health, and to be properly cleared, cleansed, and emptied;

and for the purpose of flushing, cleansing, and emptying the same, may construct and place, either above or underground, such reservoirs, sluices, engines, and other necessary works;

and may also, with the sanction of the Local Government, cause all or any of such sewers and drains to communicate with, and be emptied into, any tidal river or other fit place, or cause the refuse from such sewers and drains to be conveyed by a proper channel to the most convenient site for its deposit, and may sell the same for any agricultural or other purpose as may be deemed most expedient, but so that the same shall not become a nuisance.

Bed of stream receiving sewerage to be cleared.

167. When the contents of any sewer or drain or any other flow or filth or refuse, are discharged into any river or stream, in the bed or channel of which the quantity of water at any season of the year is so much diminished, by natural or artificial causes, as to be insufficient to keep such channel clean or clear, the Justices, with the sanction of the Local Government, so far as the Municipal Fund permits, shall make such alteration in the bed of such river or stream as may prevent such sewer and drain-water from spreading over the surface of such bed, or from accumulating and stagnating in parts thereof, to the injury of health or the annoyance of the surrounding population.

Unauthorized drains leading into public sewers may be demolished.

168. If any person, without the written consent of the Justices first obtained, makes or causes to be made, or alters or causes to be altered, any drain leading into any of the sewers or drains vested in the Justices, the Justices may cause such branch-drain to be demolished, altered, re-made, or otherwise dealt with as they shall think fit; and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the person making or altering such branch-drain.

House over sewers, &c., not to be erected without consent of the Justices.

169. No house shall be newly erected over any sewer or drain belonging to the Justices without their written consent;

and if any house be so erected, the Justices may cause such house to be pulled down or otherwise dealt with as they may think fit;

and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the person so erecting the house.

Justices empowered to make drains from houses which are not properly drained.

170. If any land within the Town and within a reasonable distance of a sewer fit for use, or of some tidal river or other place at which the Justices are empowered to empty their sewers, be at any time not drained to the satisfaction of the Justices by a sufficient drain or pipe communicating with some sewer, tidal river, or other place as aforesaid, the Justices may, if the owner neglects to do so within fifteen days after notice, construct or lay from such land, a covered drain or pipe, of such materials, of such size, at such level, and with such fall, as they shall think necessary for the draining of such land;

and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner.

Level of houses hereafter built within the Town.

171. No house shall be built within the Town upon a lower level than will allow of the drainage of such house or building being led into some public sewer then existing or projected, or into some tidal river or other place into which the Justices are empowered to empty their sewers.

Houses hereafter built to have drains constructed under the orders of the Justices.

172. If any house newly erected or re-built within the Town have such means of drainage, as in the last preceding section mentioned, existing within one hundred feet thereof, the owner shall make a drain leading thereunto from the site of such house of such materials, of such size, at such level, and with such fall, as the Justices may direct;

and if he neglect to do so within a reasonable time, the Justices may cause the same to be done, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner.

Justices may construct certain portions of drains under public drains and streets.

173. The Justices themselves may construct and lay down such portions of the drains mentioned in sections 165, 170, and 172 as may be carried through or under any public drain, aqueduct, or street, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner.

Supervision of certain works.

174. The Justices may cause the works mentioned in sections 165, 170, and 172 to be supervised while in progress, and from time to time during their execution to order such reasonable alterations therein, additions thereto, and abandonment of part or parts thereof, as may to the Justices appear, on the fuller knowledge afforded by the opening of the ground, requisite to secure the complete and satisfactory execution of such works as aforesaid.

Group or block of houses, &c., may be drained by a combined operation.

175. If it appear to the Justices that a group or block of houses may be drained or improved more economically or advantageously in combination than separately, and a sewer of sufficient size already exists, or is about to be constructed, within one hundred feet of any part of such group or block of houses, the Justices may cause such group or block of houses to be drained and improved by a combined operation;

and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owners of such houses in such proportions as shall to the Justices seem fit.

Sewers in streets to be covered with traps, &c.

176. All sewers and drains in streets, whether public or private, shall be provided by the Justices, or by the persons to whom they severally belong, with proper traps or other coverings or means of ventilation, so as to prevent stench.

If the owner of any private sewer or drain shall, for ten days after notice given to him by the Justices, neglect or delay to provide proper traps or coverings or means of ventilation as aforesaid, the Justices may forthwith provide and apply the same;

and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner.

Power of Justices to erect or affix to building pipes for ventilation of sewers.

177. The Justices may erect on, or fix to, any house such pipes as they may deem necessary for the proper ventilation of the sewers belonging to them, and such pipes shall be carried to a height of not less than six feet above the highest part of the house, and erected so as not to occasion any nuisance or inconvenience to any house in the neighbourhood.

Branch-drains privies, &c., to be under the control of the Justices, and to be kept in good order by owners.

178. All branch-drains, as well within as without the land to which they belong, and all privies and cess-pools within the Town, shall be under the survey and control of the Justices, and shall be altered, repaired, stopped up, demolished, and kept in proper order at the costs and charges of the owner of the land to which the same belong, or for the use of which they are constructed or continued;

and if the owner of any land to which any such drain, privy, or cess-pool belongs, neglect, during eight days after notice in writing for that purpose, to alter, repair, stop up, demolish or put in good order the same, in the manner required by the Justices, the Justices may cause such drain, privy, or cesspool to be altered, repaired, stopped up, demolished or put in good order, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner.

Penalty for persons making or altering drain, &c., contrary to the orders of the Justices.

179. If any branch-drain, privy, or cess-pool be constructed contrary to the directions and regulations of the Justices, or contrary to the provisions of this Act, or if any person, without the consent of the Justices, constructs, re-builds, or unstops, any branch-drain, privy, or cess-pool which has been ordered by them to be demolished or stopped up, or not to be made, the Justices may cause such amendment or alteration to be made in any such drain, privy, or cess-pool, as they think fit; and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the person by whom such drain, privy, or cess-pool was improperly constructed, rebuilt, or unstopped.

Inspection of drains, privies, and cess-pools.

180. The Justices, or any Officer authorized by them in that behalf, may inspect any branch-drain, privy, or cess-pool, and for that purpose, at any time between sunrise and sunset, after one hour's notice in writing to the occupier of the land to which such drain, privy, or cess-pool is attached, may enter upon such land with such assistants and workmen as are necessary, and cause the ground to be opened where they or he may think fit, doing as little damage as may be;

and if, upon such inspection it appears that such drain, privy, or cess-pool is not in good order and condition, or that it has been constructed contrary to the provisions of this Act, the expenses of such inspection shall be paid by the person to whom such drain, privy, or cess-pool may belong:

but if the drain, privy, or cess-pool be found to be in proper order and condition, and not to have been constructed in violation of the provisions of this Act, the Justices or Officer as aforesaid shall cause the ground to be closed and made good as soon as may be, and the expenses of opening, closing, and making good such drain, privy, or cess-pool, shall, in that case be paid by the Justices.

Provided that nothing hereinbefore contained shall authorize an entry into any room appropriated for the zanana or residence of women, which by the custom of the country is considered private, except by the agency of women.

Power to fill up unwholesome tanks, &c., on private premises.

181. When any private tank or low marshy ground, or any waste or stagnant water, being within any private enclosure, appears to the Justices to be injurious to health, or offensive to the neighbourhood, the Justices may require, by notice in writing, the owner of the same to cleanse or fill up such tank or marshy ground, or to drain off or remove such stagnant water;

and if he shall refuse or fail to comply with such requisition within eight days from the service thereof, the Justices, their Officers, and workmen, may enter into the said premises, and do all necessary acts for all or any of the purposes aforesaid as they shall think fit;

and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner.

Power to drain off, and cleanse, stagnant pools in open places.

182. The Justices may from time to time, as they shall see fit, drain off into any sewers belonging to them, and cleanse and fill up or otherwise abate, any stagnant pool, ditch, tank, pond, or other receptacle of water (the same not being within any private enclosure), which shall appear to them to be useless or unnecessary, or likely to prove injurious to the health of the inhabitants, whether the same be the private property of any person or otherwise; and the Justices, their Officers, and workmen, may do all necessary acts for effecting any of the purposes aforesaid.

PART III.—Of General Conservancy.

Removal of night-soil.

183. The Justices, from time to time, may appoint—

(a) the hours within which night-soil or other offensive matter may be removed;

(b) the kind of cart or other receptacle in which it may be removed;

(c) the route by which such cart or receptacle shall proceed.

Places of deposit for filth.

184. The Justices shall, from time to time, appoint or provide places for the deposit of dust, dirt, filth, and any other refuse whatsoever collected and removed in accordance with this Act;

and for keeping all cattle, carts, implements, and other things required for the above or any of the purposes of this Act.

Filth and refuse to be the property of the Justices.

185. All dirt, dust, filth, and any other refuse whatsoever collected from the streets, houses, privies, sewers, and cess-pools shall belong to the Justices, who may sell or dispose of the same as they may think proper and the money arising from the sale thereof shall form part of the Municipal Fund.

Erection of new huts to be under the control of the Justices.

186. No person shall erect, within the Town, any hut or huts on any land on which no huts are standing, without previous notice to the Justices;

and the Justices may require such hut or huts to be built so that they may stand in regular lines, with a free passage or way in front of each line, of such width as the Justices may think proper for salutary ventilation, and to facilitate scavengering, and at such a level as will admit of sufficient drainage.

Power to direct removal of huts built without notice.

187. If any such hut or huts as mentioned in the last preceding section be built without giving notice to the Justices, or otherwise than as required by the Justices, the Justices may give notice to the builder or builders thereof to take down and remove the same within one month, and if such hut or huts be not taken down or removed according to such notice, the Justices may cause the same to be taken down and removed, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the builder or builders of the same.

Power of Justices as to existing huts.

188. Whenever the Justices are satisfied, from inspection, or by report of competent persons, that any existing block of huts in the Town, is, by reason of the manner in which the huts are crowded together, or of the want of drainage and the impracticability of scavengering, attended with risk of disease to the inhabitants or the neighbourhood, they may, with the sanction of the Local Government, cause a notice to be fixed to some conspicuous part of such block of huts, requiring the owners or occupiers thereof, or at the option of the Justices, the owner of the land on which such huts are built, within a reasonable time to be fixed by the Justices for that purpose, to execute such operations as the Justices, with such sanction as aforesaid, may deem necessary for the avoidance of such risk.

And in case such owners or occupiers, or the owner of the land, shall refuse or neglect to execute such operations within the time appointed, the Justices may cause such huts to be taken down, or such operations to be performed in respect of such huts, as the Justices may deem necessary to prevent such risk.

If such huts be pulled down, the Justices shall cause the materials of each hut to be sold separately, if such sale can be effected; and the proceeds shall be paid to the owner of the hut, or if the owner be unknown, or the title disputed, shall be held in deposit by the Justices, until the person interested therein shall obtain the order of a competent Court for the payment of the same.

The Court of Small Causes shall be deemed a competent Court for that purpose.

Power to shut up, secure, clear, and clean deserted houses.

189. If any land, by reason of abandonment or of disputed ownership or other cause, shall remain untenanted, and thereby become a resort of idle and disorderly persons, or become in a filthy or unwholesome state,

or be complained of by any two or more of the neighbours as a nuisance,

the Justices, after due enquiry, may cause notice in writing to be given to the owner, or to the person claiming, or believed to be, the owner, if he be known and resident within the limits of their jurisdiction, and shall also cause such notice to be put on the door of the house or some conspicuous part of the land, requiring the persons concerned therein, whoever they may be, to secure, enclose, clean, or clear the same;

and if such notice shall not be complied with within eight days, the Justices shall cause the necessary work to be executed, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner, or in case of abandonment or disputed ownership, by the sale of any material found upon such land, and section 160 shall be applicable to such sales.

Notice of new buildings to be given to the Justices.

190. Before beginning, within the Town, to build or re-build any house, the person intending to build or re-build such house, shall give to the Justices notice thereof in writing, and shall accompany such notice with a plan, showing the levels at which the foundation and lowest floor of such house are proposed to be laid, by reference to some level ascertained under the direction of the Justices.

Justices to signify disapproval within fourteen days.

191. Within fourteen days after receiving such notice as is mentioned in the last preceding section, the Justices shall signify their approval of the proposed levels, or, if they disapprove thereof, they shall fix other levels in lieu thereof within the same time.

Houses built without notice, or contrary to provisions of this Act, may be altered by the Justices.

192. If such building as is mentioned in the two last preceding sections be begun or made without sending such notice and plan as are mentioned in section 190, or at any levels different from those fixed by the Justices within the said fourteen days, or in any other respect contrary to the provisions of this Act, the Justices may, if necessary, cause such building to be altered or demolished as the case may require;

and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the person failing to comply with the provisions aforesaid.

If Justices fail to signify approval, &c., within fourteen days, parties may proceed without.

193. If the Justices fail to signify in writing their approval or disapproval of the levels shown on such plan as is mentioned in the last preceding section, and to fix other levels within fourteen days after receiving such notice and plan as aforesaid, the person giving such notice may, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, proceed to build or re-build the house therein referred to, according to the levels shown on such plan:

Provided that such building or re-building be otherwise in accordance with this Act.

The word "house" in this and the three last preceding sections does not include a hut.

194. The Justices may provide and maintain in proper and convenient situations, so as not to create a nuisance, common necessaries and urinals, and shall cause the same, when provided, to be kept in proper order and to be daily cleansed.

Common necessaries.

195. The Justices may license, for any period not exceeding one year, such necessaries for public accommodation, and such tola mehters' depôts as they may, from time to time, think proper; and may at any time, on giving one month's notice, cancel any license granted under this section, if it shall seem proper to them to cancel it.

Licensing of public necessaries, and tola mehters' depôts.

196. The Justices may, by advertisement in at least two of the daily newspapers published in Calcutta, and by placards posted up in conspicuous places throughout the town, or any portion thereof, declare that the duties usually performed by tola mehters shall be performed by an establishment under the control of the Justices, and the Justices shall make suitable provision accordingly.

Justices may direct performance of duties usually performed by mehters.

When the Justices have made such provision, the occupier of any land in respect of which such duties are performed shall be liable to pay in respect of the same such fees as may be imposed by the Justices at a meeting.

197. The owner or occupier of any land having a privy on it shall have such privy shut out by a sufficient roof, and wall or fence, from the view of persons passing by or residing in the neighbourhood: and no person shall keep a privy with a door or trap-door opening on to any street. Provided that the Justices may, in their discretion, permit the continuance, for such time as they may fix, of any such privy with a door or trap-door opening on to any street, where such privy already exists and does not create a nuisance.

Neglecting to enclose private privy.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is chiefly to consolidate the law relating to the municipal affairs of Calcutta, which is now scattered over ten Acts of the Council, and which in some instances has been found to be difficult of interpretation, consequent on the provisions of all the Acts not being quite consistent with each other.

The opportunity has been taken to make some amendments which the practical working of the law has proved to be necessary. The most important of these amendments is, in relation to the water-supply, which, owing to the increased requirements of the town and the wastage consequent on defective fittings and carelessness in using the water, is not sufficient to enable the Justices to fulfil the obligations which the existing law imposes upon them in respect of keeping up the supply at high pressure throughout the day. It is believed that the amendments proposed by the Bill in this respect are such as will not cause much inconvenience to the public.

In order to enable the Justices to increase the water-supply works, the maximum of the annual water-rate has been raised from five to six per cent.

Another amendment of some importance is a proposal to raise the maximum of the lighting-rate from 2 to 2½ per cent., as the proceeds from the present maximum rate are not sufficient to meet the current expenses connected with the lighting of the town.

The Bill does not propose to deal with the question of allowing an appeal from assessments made by the Justices. Such a proposal must necessarily raise questions as to the tribunal to which the appeals should be made, and the form of procedure that should be provided for regulating the conduct of such appeals. It is thought better, therefore, to leave the determination of this question for the consideration of a Select Committee.

It has also been left for determination by the Select Committee whether the Acts for the regulation of markets in Calcutta should be included in this consolidation measure, or whether they should be allowed to stand as regulating a special subject, which is not so intimately connected with the municipal government of the town as to render it necessary that the law for the government of markets should be a part and parcel of a general municipal enactment.

LOCAL FUNDS AND PROVINCIAL RESERVE FUND, 1875-76.

RESOLUTION.

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT.—FINANCE.

Calcutta, the 12th April 1875.

READ—

The Resolution of this Government in the Financial Department, dated the 23rd March 1875, on the estimates of receipts and expenditure on account of local funds for the year 1875-76.

Read also—

A letter from the Accountant-General, No. 1087, dated the 31st March, submitting explanations on the Local Funds' estimates.

In the Resolution of the 23rd March, it was assumed that the opening balance of the local funds on the 1st April 1875 would present a deficit of Rs. 21,59,281. The deficit of local funds proper was calculated to be Rs. 28,85,983: the difference between this and the former sum being thus balance at credit of provincial reserve. Credit was taken for 25 lakhs of rupees as a special grant from Imperial Funds on account of famine relief works: and it was estimated that after making a contribution to provincial services of a sum of Rs. 5,09,010, a sufficient sum would remain under the head of provincial reserve to meet special and unforeseen expenditure on provincial account during the year, and also to supply such part of the debit against local funds as it might eventually be determined that the Government of Bengal should defray. The closing balance in provincial reserve on the 31st March 1876 was estimated at Rs. 27,63,422, and the deficit in local funds proper on the same date was calculated at Rs 28,39,333. If these anticipations had been realized, it would have been possible for the Government of Bengal to grant, from provincial reserve, a sufficient sum to meet the greater part of the liabilities incurred by local funds for the prosecution of famine relief works.

2. The Accountant-General, however, has now submitted an explanatory statement, from which it appears that as the grant of 25 lakhs of rupees from Imperial funds was actually made within the year 1874-75, and was embodied in the figures of that year, no part of this grant will be available for expenditure in the year 1875-76. This explanation materially alters the financial position of the Government.

3. The corrected estimates for the year 1875-76 will now stand as follows:—

LOCAL FUNDS (excluding Provincial Reserve).

	Rs.		Rs.
Receipts of the year ...	31,03,950	Opening deficit balance ...	28,85,983
		Expenditure during the year .	30,57,300
		Total ...	59,43,283
		Debit closing balance on 3rd March 1876	28,39,333
		Total ...	31,03,950

	Rs.		Rs.
Opening balance	7,26,702	Expenditure during the year	9,35,770
Receipts of the year ...	10,95,500	Contribution to provincial services	5,09,010
		Total ...	14,44,780
		Closing balance, 31st March 1876	3,77,422
Total ...	18,22,902	Total ...	18,22,202

Deducting this closing balance from the debit closing balance under local funds proper, the figures of local funds at the close of the year 1875-76 will show an estimated deficit of Rs. 24,61,911.

4. The Lieutenant-Governor is unwilling to reduce the grants already made for provincial services in the several departments, unless it should prove absolutely necessary to do so. The exact amount of the contribution from Imperial funds towards the cost of famine relief works has not yet been ascertained, and any additional grant which may be made upon this account will be available in reduction of the deficit shown in the Local Funds' estimates. The Resolution of the 12th March 1875 will therefore, for the present, remain unaltered: but it must be understood that the grants therein made may be subject to modification if the financial exigencies of the year should so require. The Lieutenant-Governor desires to impress upon all officers the necessity for strict economy in all departments of provincial expenditure.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

H. J. REYNOLDS,
Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

Kendrapara	2,693 12 4	12,141 6 8	2,061 7 1	13,471 1 10	In the Orissa circle the falling off in the total collections "to end of month" is chiefly due to the decrease in the transport of food-grains. In the South-Western Circle the falling off in the collections for the month is due to the closure of the canals for cyclone repairs. The total collections are considerably in excess of those of last year.

The mean barometer, as likewise the dry and wet bulb thermometer, means are derived from the twenty-four hourly observations made during the day.

The dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants. The figures in column 10 represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity. The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1½ feet, and that of the anemometer 70 feet 10 inches above the level of the ground. The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.
